DROUGHT RELIEF CONFEREES COMPROMISE ON $45,000,000 AS CONGRESS PUTS ON SPEED

2 HELD GUILTY IN BUSH DEATH ESCAPE CHAIR

Court to Impose Penalty on Carnell and Mahoney January 2.

ACQUITTED OF INTENT IN 2D-DEGREE VERDICT

Spectators Nearly Mob Attorneys for Defense in Appreciation.

As a result of a verdict of a District Supreme Court jury before Justice Peyton Gordon yesterday, William J. Carnell and Frank Mahoney face sentences of from 20 years to life for their part in the shooting of Louis Bush, head of the Grey Bus Lines, October 6.

The jury, after deliberating 90 minutes, found both men guilty of second-degree murder. The verdict was returned on the second count of the indictment, which accused the two men of killing Mr. Bush in the commission of an unlawful act—attempted robbery. Both men were acquitted on the first count, which charged Mr. Bush had been killed purposely.

The verdict was announced by Bradner W. Holmes in answer to questions from Clerk Lee Ashford.

In response to the question regarding the first count, Mr. Holmes said, "Not guilty."

Foreman "Slips."

"As to the second count of the indictment, Mr. Foreman, what is your verdict?" asked Mr. Ashford.

"Not guilty—beg pardon—second count? Guilty!" said the foreman. Mr. Holmes caught himself so quickly that spectators did not catch the significance.

Justice Gordon, as is customary, reserved sentence. This will not be passed before January 2, he announced.

While the jury was out, Mrs. Sarah M. Sullivan, mother of Carnell, who had been held in jail as a material witness, was released. She left immediately and was not present when the verdict was returned. She was not used in the trial, although police said she had told them her son spent the night of October 6 at her home and had threatened her life if she told on him.

Carnell "Breaks."

Carnell, whose demeanor throughout the trial had been rather jaunty, broke for the first time when Justice Gordon was charging the jury. After the jury retired he was in tears, his weeping convulsing and distorting his face. When he returned to hear the verdict, he was cool and collected.

Mahoney appeared to be interested in everything during the trial and apparently was unperturbed. When he returned to hear his fate, though, he nervously fingered a rosary and continued to do so as Mr. Holmes told the verdict.

Neither man had any statement to make after the verdict. They were hurried from the courtroom to a van and taken to the District Jail, where they will remain until sentence is passed.

Pending this formality, defense counsel Louis L. Whitestone and W. R. Lichtenber for Carnell, and F. J. Donahue and Cedric Johnson for Mahoney, refused to discuss possibility of appeals.

Counsel Satisfied.

That such step will not be taken was indicated by the manner in which the counsel for the defendants took the verdict.

Mr. Whitestone said: "We are very happy that it was second degree."

Mr. Donahue said: "It was the only possible verdict."

The courtroom was packed when the verdict was returned, and the four young defense attorneys, all of whom had been appointed by the court, were given a regular reception, spectators practically mobbing each other to grasp their hands. For Mr. Whitestone and Mr. Lichtenberg this was their first experience in handling a murder case.

The jury took the case at 2:25 o'clock after hearing arguments and addresses of opposing counsel and an exhaustive charge by the judge.

Court Explains Law.

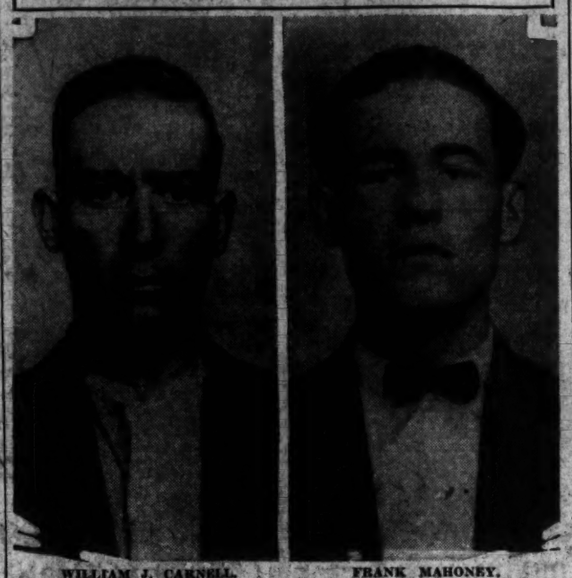

Justice Gordon in his charge covered first degree murder, second degree murder, manslaughter and acquittal in regard to the first count of the indictment. Regarding the second count, his charge covered only first and second degree murder and acquittal.

Concerning the second count Justice Gordon pointed out the testimony that the two men had gone to Bush's garage to rob him, and emphasized the jury could not find them guilty of first degree murder unless they believed the shooting had been done deliberately.

Testimony was to the effect that Carnell and Mahoney had spotted Mr. Bush near the Plaza Hotel, after arming themselves with a gun, and had begun search for a "stick-up" victim. After that they trailed Mr. Bush to Dupont Circle, where, by running past a red light while he

JURORS DUE TO GET SMITH CASE TODAY

COURT PREVENTS CLASH

The jury of ten men and two women in the F. H. Smith Co. conspiracy trial in District Supreme Court will get the case by 1 o'clock this afternoon, developments yesterday indicated. Justice William Hitz, presiding, set 10:30 o'clock this morning as the hour for convening court, and limited arguments of counsel to one hour each.

Nugent Dodds, assistant Attorney General, for the prosecution, and Wilton J. Lambert, for the defense, will present their closing arguments, and the judge's charge to the jury is expected to consume about 20 minutes. On that basis, the jury will begin its deliberations at about 12:30 o'clock.

The defendants, G. Bryan Pitts, former chairman of the board of the Smith Co., and C. Elbert Anadale and John H. Edwards, jr., former vice presidents, are charged with conspiracy to embezzle funds of the firm and to conceal its records.

Frank G. Raichle, who spent the entire afternoon presenting the opening arguments for the defense, had pointed out that although Mr. Dodds had used an alleged stenographic report of the grand jury hearings in the case in cross-examining Charles F. Marvin, former assistant treasurer of the Smith Co., and one of the first defense witnesses, he had not called in the stenographer or one of the grand jurors to identify it. Mr. Dodds appeared to accept this statement as a charge that he had intended deliberately misquoting from the record.

Leaping to his feet, he demanded that Mr. Raichle make specific charges to that effect, receiving in reply the defense lawyer's assurance that no personal affront was meant. The two attorneys glared at each other until Justice Hitz reminded Mr. Raichle that he had only about 25 minutes left in which to complete his argument. The potential quarrel immediately subsided and Mr. Raichle returned to his argument.

The defense's argument, as outlined by Mr. Raichle, is predicated upon the same contentions which have been apparent in testimony and cross-examination since the beginning of the trial. Credibility of prosecution witnesses, was violently assailed.

Mr. Raichle went back to the year 1927, and declared, upon testimony of auditors who had handled the books of the Smith Co. twice annually since the three defendants were in office, that its affairs had been conducted in an orderly and regular fashion. He pointed out that testimony has shown

STEEG'S MINISTRY UPHELD IN CHAMBER

Slender Margin Is Given New Cabinet After Bitter Attacks Are Heard.

BALLOT BOX IS STUFFED

Paris, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Premier Theodore Steeg and his six-day-old cabinet today captured a vote of confidence by a majority of only seven votes in their first appearance before a hostile chamber of deputies.

The vote was 291 against 284, and the oppositionists vowed they would overthrow the new ministry after the New Year's recess.

Steeg's day began in an air of pessimism. After much effort last week he finally formed a ministry to succeed that of Andre Tardieu and immediate attacks and defections began. The situation was made worse by the resignation of three officials this afternoon just before the cabinet went before the chamber with its initial declaration of policy.

The minister of pensions, Robert Thoumyre; Rene Coty, undersecretary of state for the interior, and Camille Cautru, undersecretary for agriculture, were the men who quit. As representatives of the republicans of the left and moderate center groups they opposed M. Steeg's ministerial declaration in favor of lay schools as opposed to the giving of religious instruction.

But this very thing won the favor of the left groups, which staged a demonstration of enthusiasm such as seldom is seen even in the temperamental French lower house, and brought the necessary although slender victory.

The intervention of former Premier Edouard Herriot was viewed as another factor in the victory. In an impassioned appeal M. Herriot called on the chamber not to precipitate another ministerial crisis at this stage of affairs, and his plea appeared to carry a lot of weight with the hesitating members of the moderate parties.

Observers believed also that the very ferocity of an attack by Louis Marin, who scored the Steeg combination caustically on behalf of the right parties, defeated its own ends.

The voting was hectic, so much so that stuffing of the ballot boxes gave rise to an early report the government had been defeated by ten votes. It was found that the urn used for the tallying was filled with more than 1,000 ballots, whereas less than 600 should normally be there. And a forecast of future trouble was heard in the shouts of "dissolution" from many deputies.

It was noted that M. Tardieu, retiring premier and leader of the opposition in the chamber, scrupulously refrained from intervention in the debate. Throughout the six-hour sitting he remained in his seat, say-

ANALYSIS HITS HIGH-PAY CLAIM MADE BY WOOD

Budget Bureau's Figures Show Thousands Earn Less Than $1,320.

LOW-PAID WORKERS AFFECTED BY BILLS

Senate Reinserts Increase Items Deleted by House as Conferees Meet.

Low and not high-paid Government employes will benefit, or suffer, because of the action of Congress on the President's recommendations for increased salary appropriations next year, according to an analysis made yesterday.

In sharp contrast to the proclamations of Representative Will R. Wood (Republican), of Indiana, chairman of the House appropriations committee, that Government employes were already too highly paid, the report of the Budget Bureau shows that in the Government service in Washington alone there are 4,000 Government employes receiving $1,100 a year or less.

Of the number receiving not more than $1,100, one-third are paid less than $1,080.

The arbitrary classification includes many government employes at a certain figure and less, but analysis by the budget bureau show that many of those included in the listing under the top salary head for their group receive considerably less.

Majority Outside Capital.

There are 3,125 government employes in the District who are paid not more than $1,320 a year, and of this number about one-fourth receive only $1,260, and many individuals do not get that amount.

These figures are approximations and averages from the budget bureau report, and were cited yesterday by supporters in Congress of the proposed pay increases to controvent Representative Wood's argument anent the splendidly paid government employe.

Other figures quoted from the budget bureau report show that 736 employes, who would benefit from the proposed increases, receive $1,440 or less a year. One third of these receive $1,320 or less.

Analysis of the Government pay roll shows that there are at least three times as many Government employes in the so-called field service who will benefit from the increases as there are in Washington. Study also shows that appropriation of the recommended increase will mean $5 a month increase to the lowest paid Government employes throughout the country, with most of the money going to persons living outside the National Capital.

These facts are among those which Representative Fiorell La Guardia (Republican), of New York, has pre-

$135,000 Blaze Visits Lynchburg Main Street

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Dec. 18.—Fire tonight wrought damage of $135,000 or more to Eleventh and Main streets, when the store of the J. C. Penney Co. and the McGehee-Milliner Overall Co. were gutted. The loss is partly insured.

The blaze started either in the rear of the first floor of the Penney store or on the fourth floor and dropped down an elevator shaft. The overall plant was over the store. The Patterson Drug Co., next door, suffered smoke and water damage, and Sears, Roebuck Co. was damaged by smoke. Firemen were at a loss to ascertain the cause of the fire. Electric light and street car services were disturbed for about three hours.

MUSSOLINI BLAMES U. S. MARKET CRASH

HITS MASS PRODUCTION

Rome, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—The American stock market crash and "money crisis" of the fall of 1929 are principally to blame for Italy's present financial ills, Premier Mussolini told the Senate this afternoon.

In a speech marked by biting irony, frankness and characteristic vigor, the Duce decared Italy was "nearing port, was perhaps in view of port, when the American crisis broke out unexpectedly and exploded like a bomb."

His placing the blame on the American situation was part of the Duce's defense for his drastic cut of 12 per cent in the salaries of all state employes.

However, the Duce pointed out, the people of Italy are finding that if conditions are bad here, they are also bad elsewhere. He said that on August 13 he issued instructions that passports be granted in the largest number possible to all the countries except the United States—"including Russia, where, however, up to today nobody has sought to go," the Duce observed.

His exception of the United States was because the American quota was long ago exhausted.

"Was this perhaps a change in our emigration policy?" Mussolini asked. "No. But there was a singular situation determined in Italy. Many in good faith thought really that this was hell and that paradise was elsewhere; that there was misery only in Italy and elsewhere was the reign of abundance; that only in Italy was there unemployment and elsewhere there was not.

"Very well," he said. "This measure from the viewpoint of morale has given 100 per cent results. In the first few days the police stations were full of people insistently demanding passports; then this crowd thinned and now there are more coming back than are leaving."

The duce found little favor for the American economic policy, which he described as "mass production and mass consumption."

"This formula is a mistake," he

Skill of Pilot Lauded in Bringing Ship to Earth With Engines Dead.

Leaping from an Army plane of his own design, when its motors failed, Stephen A. Forberger, project engineer of the Fokker plant, met instant death late yesterday, as the plane landed safely in a field off Kenilworth avenue and Sheriff's road northeast. The rip cord of his parachute had been pulled, but at a height insufficient to break his fall, and his body was found, crushed to pulp, more than a mile from the point where First Lieut. Harrison G. Crocker plunged the big ship to a landing.

Lieut. Crocker was piloting the the plane from Teterboro Airport, N. J., to Wright Field, Ohio, with Mr. Forberger as a passenger. They had intended to pass the night at Bolling Field, and had made the trip here without mishap when both motors sputtered and went dead, at an altitude of less than 800 feet. Crocker was unaware that Forberger had jumped, and as soon as the big ship pancaked to the ground he ran to the rear cockpit to see if his passenger had been hurt.

Two boys informed him that they had seen a body fall from the plane, and a searching party shortly afterward discovered Pomberger's body, which had landed in a tree. Every bone in his body had been crushed and physicians at Casualty Hospital said that he had met instant death.

Lieut. Crocker was unhurt, and the plane was not badly damaged. It was a bi-motor, low wing monoplane bomber, of an experimental type. It had a retractable landing gear, and the fact that Lieut. Crocker had not released the landing wheels wah credited with saving him from in-

Seven Believed Drowned In Capsizing of Launch

San Francisco, Calif., Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Seven persons were reported drowned when their launch capsized in heavy swells of the Pacific Ocean off Tomales Bay late today. A rescue launch also overturned and its three occupants were forced to swim to shore.

Coast Guard crews left Point Reyes for the scene, in the hope that some of those from the launch were still clinging to the overturned boat. Four women and three men were believed to have been in the craft.

Senate Votes to Restore Hoover Control Over Public Works.

M'KELLAR'S CHARGE PROVES BOOMERANG

Senators Defend President From Imputations About European Funds.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

With the yuletide beckoning coquettishly to them the Senate and House moved rapidly out of the woods yesterday and as a result it is not improbable that both the public works and drought relief bills will be passed in time for a recess tomorrow.

The ball was started rolling when the House voted 226 to 146 to substitute the $30,000,000 drought measure for the Senate's $60,000,000. Then the conferees got promptly together and last night had agreed upon a compromise designed to save faces all around.

Under the compromise the drought appropriation is set at $45,000,000 and a provision inserted that it may be used for food for destitute farmers in cases of extreme emergency. The original Senate provision by which the funds would be made available for loans for food on the same basis as loans for crop rehabilitation was eliminated. The concession to the administration is that it will be basically an appropriation for crop rehabilitation, but with the provision for food should it become absolutely necessary.

Public Works Bill Action.

The amount of the appropriation has never been seriously in controversy as the Agricultural Department has money left over every year from these calamity crop rehabilitation funds.

In the same spirit of compromise the Senate voted 42 to 39 to recede on the Robinson amendment to the $116,000,000 public works bill which would have denied the request of the President for authority to transfer funds from one allocation to another, and this bill was returned to conference where a compromise is in the making on the Cousens amendment requiring that employes on public works be residents of the locality and calling for the highest wages paid in the community.

In view of the compromise last night on the drought relief bill the House's earlier vote on the $30,000,000 figure loses much if not all of its significance, as the House leaders in seeking to hold their forces in line had passed around the word that there would be a compromise. Sixteen Republicans, nevertheless, did bolt while six Democrats left their ranks. The Republicans were:

Desertions on Both Sides.

Browne, Wisconsin; Butler, Oregon; Campbell, Iowa; Christgau, Minnesota; Cooper, Wisconsin; Craddock, Kentucky; Ellis, Missouri; Garber, Oklahoma; Garber, Virginia; Hull, Wisconsin; Kading, Wisconsin; Kendall, Kentucky; Mrs. Langley, Kentucky; Nelson, Wisconsin; Schneider, Wisconsin, and Shaffer, Virginia.

The six Democrats who voted with the administration were Ayres, Kansas; Black, New York; Buchanan, Texas; Griffin, New York; Hill, Washington, and Ludlow, Indiana.

Six members voted against the bill on its final passage.

The vote in the Senate to recede on the Robinson amendment to the public works bill saw the return of the old coalition with the exception that Norbeck and McMaster, of South Dakota, voted with the administration forces, and it was also quite clear that while it was Robinson's amendment, rather than make it a matter of contentoin he kept enough Democratic votes absent to give victory to the other side. Thirty-five Republicans and 7 Democrats voted to recede and 27 Democrats, 11 Republicans and Shipstead, Farmer-

FARM BOARD VOTED EXTRA $150,000,000

Senate Appropriations Body Approves Bill and Sends It to Floor.

LEGGE OUTLINES WORK

(Associated Press.)

The House voted to give the Federal Farm Board an additional $150,000,000 of its revolving fund yesterday and the measure was well on its way through the Senate before nightfall. The Senate appropriations committee gave approval to the measure and sent it to the Senate floor.

This appropriation would swell the total given the board thus far to $400,000,000 and it plans to ask for the remaining $100,000,000 of the $500,000,000 authorized for use in the next fiscal year. The fund approved yesterday is for immediate use in stablization cooperative marketing association loan operations.

Testifying before the House appropriations committee for the additional funds, Chairman Legge said the board was making some progress in bringing about relief.

The board has been able, he said, to maintain wheat prices in this country artifically. He said if it had not been for the board's grain stabilization efforts, the price of wheat would be 25 cents a bushel.

"It is true today," Legge said, "that low as the price is, it is artificially maintained, not only on wheat but other grains."

There was very little movement in cotton, Legge said.

"The spinning business all over the world seems to be prostrated," he continued. "It is just about as good as it can be. It has improved a little bit. There has been more activity in the last 60 days and consumption of cotton is not increasing as it is on wheat."

An enormous quantity of wheat is being fed to livestock because of the short corn crop, he said, and some persons are burning it for fuel.

"From the export standpoint," Legge said, "I do not see any hope for the American wheat producer in competition with the peon labor of Argentina and the practically serf laborers of Russia, with their lower standard of living." Legge recommended that the Government take over the regulation of agriculture commodities exchanges.

He advocated that definite authority be given a Government official to draw up their rules.

Little Girl Brings Pennies To Boost Christmas Fund

Trudges Through Slush to Donate $7.55 That She Had Collected.

Trudging through the snow and slush to the office of The Post, came little Marian Elizabeth Radley, not quite three years old. In her hand she clutched a sack containing $7.55 which she had brought to contribute to the Post's fund for making other children happy on Christmas.

Of the $7.55, the sum of $4.05 was in pennies which weighed Marian down but did not tire her to such an extent that she couldn't reach her goal. She also had $3.50 in other money and she dumped the entire amount at the cashier's window with instructions that it be placed in the fund.

Calvin Coolidge

Says:

This universe into which we are born, with all its weaknesses and imperfections yet with all its strength and progress, is the only one in which we can live and we may as well make the best of it. The people with whom we come in contact, the business organization which we have formed and the Government we have adopted are the only ones we have and we can hope for improvement only by working with them and for them with all our ability. We can not receive the benefits of prosperity and escape bearing the burdens of adversity.

Every other nation looks on us with envy. When their governments are being overturned by disorder and revolution, our own country is quiet and orderly, our Government is strong and responsive to the needs of the people, and our greatest city is able to contribute over $10,000 per hour for a month for charitable relief.

The moral force of the country, the courage and confidence of the people, the ability to live nobly have been emphasized by our problems. The people of the United States are showing they can meet their obligations to each other and to the world.

Sunken Gardens at Shaft Regarded as Impractical

Grant Expresses View to Advisory Committee; Soil Contains Great Amount of Water; Data for Beautifying Area to Be Studied Further.

Declaring the plan impractical Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, virtually sounded the death knell yesterday for the proposal to build a sunken garden on the Washington Monument grounds. The National Park and Planning Commission director expressed this view at a meeting of the monument advisory committee, of which he is a member.

Since the McMillan Commission, back in 1901, advocated construction of such a garden, efforts to carry through the proposal to its fulfillment have been vain. Although he voiced skepticism over the plan, Col. Grant reiteraied his indorsement of a program to beautify the grounds.

Construction of a sunken garden would have entailed the digging away of ground on the west side of the monument, where stairs would be placed, and placing of terraces on the east side.

Figures and reports on drilling adjoining the monument were presented. The soil has been found to contain much water and the rock, on which the memorial rests, to extend to great depths.

The advisory committee announced it would continue to study plans for beautification of the monument area.

McKellar Charge Reacts.

Withal it was a better day for President Hoover and a very bad one for Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, who qualified as a presidential traducer extraordinary. McKellar's charges that Mr. Hoover had failed to account for the $100,000,000 European relief fund voted to him in 1919 had a bad reaction in the Senate and very probably influenced two or three votes on the Robinson amendment.

Both Senators Glenn, of Illinois, and Vandenberg, of Michigan, entered a warm defense of the President, and Senator Steiwer declared that the accounting had, as a matter of fact, been given to the Secretary of the Treasury and that the then Secretary was responsible for the report not reaching Congress, although he was not finding fault with the Treasury. Even Senator Carter Glass, deprecating Mr. McKellar's remarks, pointed out that none of the funds appropriated for Europe were expended except under the supervision of Treasury agents.

"There is no questioning Mr. Hoover's honesty and integrity," he declared.

"Nothing is more futile," said Vandenberg, "than an effort at this date to tarnish the war record of Mr. Hoover as food administrator."

Glenn's Studied Defense.

Glenn declared that the "only implication in this assertion is that Mr. Hoover is a dishonest man and an embezzler of public funds. I resent the implication and I deny the assertion." He said he would do the same if it were a Democratic President involved.

Senator Glenn's was a studied defense, developed overnight and designed to be an appeal to the emotions to place Mr. Hoover right against all the abuse that has been heaped upon him.

But unfortunately, right at the high point of his oration, when he reached sharply for the heartstrings, he mixed his figures of speech, or rather put a couple of statements in juxtaposition that threw the Senate and the galleries into a roar of laughter, and the effect of his appeal was, of course, lost.

He did make the point, though, that Mr. Hoover has more of the milk of human kindness and affection than Senator McKellar, because the President is married and has children, while Mr. McKellar is a bachelor and knows not the furnace nor the fireside.

Col. Arthur Woods said yesterday he would gladly give the Senate any facts he may have as to the extent of unemployment and steps being taken to relieve it.

The chairman of the President's Emergency Committee for Employment added he had received no summons to appear before the Senate appropriations committee. The calling of Woods was authorized Wednesday by the Senate.

O'Connor Answers Ship Sale Charges

Denies Comptroller's Right to Pass on Disposal of Merchant Boats.

T. J. O'Connor, chairman of the Shipping Board, has sent a communication to Congress in which he makes a vigorous reply to charges aimed at the Merchant Fleet Corporation a year ago by Comptroller General McCarl.

McCarl charged that millions of dollars had been lost to the Government as a result of the manner in which the Merchant Fleet Corporation disposed of its ships to private companies and individuals.

In his communication to Congress, Chairman O'Connor said that McCarl's auditors knew nothing about merchant marine matters; inferred that President Hoover did not think enough of the charges to make public a report on them from the Department of Justice, and challenged the right of the Comptroller General to approve or disapprove of the sale of ships by the Fleet Corporation.

Supreme Court to Hear 'Abie's Irish Rose' Fight

"Abie's Irish Rose" is going to have a hearing before the Supreme Court, but its run probably won't last as long as it did on Broadway. Anne Nichols, author of the play, is preparing to ask the court to review Federal court decisions that Universal Pictures Corporation, Carl Laemmle and a few others did not infringe her copyright.

She charged their "Cohens and Kellys" was a complete "steal, piracy and infringement" of her play and sought damages and an accounting, but the lower court found the picture was based on two other plays and ordered her to pay $10,000 counsel fees.

STIMSON SUGGESTS NEW BAN TO ALIENS

Prefers 90 Per Cent Horizontal Cut to Two-Year Exclusion Plan.

HE FEARS RETALIATION

(Associated Press.)

A horizontal cut of 90 per cent in all immigration based on the national origins method of selection was suggested by Secretaries Stimson and Doak yesterday if Congress intends enacting such legislation to aid employment.

The State and Labor Department heads registered their opposition before the Senate immigration committee to the Reed bill to bar all immigration, except relatives of foreign-born American citizens, for two years.

Stimson said this measure, as well as the Johnson bill now pending in the House, would "destroy" the existing national origins selective policy by allowing an increasing number of relatives to come in from southern Europe and fewer kin from northern European countries, reversing the policy of existing law.

Enough applications from relatives already are on file to absorb existing quotas, he said.

Doak said his department was in "substantial agreement" with the State Department and thought a "simple and direct" cut in immigration, with equal distribution of the reduction in accordance with the present policy, would be best.

Stimson made it plain he was not advocating the 90 per cent cut as a new policy, but simply as a plan he believed better than the proposed legislation.

The present ratio of European immigration, he said, was 5 to 1 in favor of northern Europe. The Johnson bill, he added, would change this to 2 to 3 and the Reed bill to 1 to 13.

Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, author of the exclusion resolution, expressed "great shock" at this calculation.

Stimson also warned that the possibility of "retaliation" must be considered in any such legislation and suggested the proposed limitation on "key" men, such as scientists and the like, be liberalized.

Asked how he would apply his proposed 90 per cent cut to Canada, Mexico and South and Central American countries, whose immigrants are not under quota restrictions, Stimson said he would reduce that immigration from the totals which would have been allowed each of those countries in the last fiscal year had the national origins quota law applied.

Decision of Clark Fails in Rum Case

Judge in Chicago Says High Court Once Before Did Uphold Reasoning.

Chicago, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—An effort to quash an indictment for a prohibition violation by invoking the decision of Federal Judge William T. Clark, of New Jersey, that ratification of the eighteenth amendment was invalid, failed in United States district court today. Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley held that Judge Clark's reasonings already had been submitted to the United States Supreme Court in other cases and were not upheld.

"I am not going to be annoyed further with motions of this character," Judge Lindley said.

Attorneys for George Morris, charged with operating a still and possessing liquor, had filed a motion to quash the indictment, and asked today to withdraw the motion to reserve that plea for use in an appeal if their client were convicted.

contribution and gave from her own little savings bank, because she couldn't bear to think of other children without toys and nice things on Christmas morning.

Other folks apparently have the same idea as Marian, for The Post Fund yesterday grew to $1,800 proportions and it looks as though the last three days (for the fund closes Sunday) will see the campaign bring in at least the $2,000 which has been a sort of goal. If it is more than $2,000, that many more children will enjoy Christmas for in addition to the 2,000 needy youngsters now listed, many appeals are being made daily for other children who face the prospect of empty stockings.

Toys and other Christmas cheer for 2,000 or more children will cost considerable money. If the fund goes over the $2,000 mark or even considerably beyond that, every needy boy and girl will have something for which to be thankful on Christmas morning. Santa Claus will be a reality and not a myth. But if the funds falls short, some of the youngsters will spend a cheerless holiday.

The Post does not believe the fund will fall short. Rather it has confidence that the residents of Washington will rally around the cause and send the grand total for the toys fund way above the tentative goal before Sunday night, when the campaign comes to an end.

Send your check or your cash to the Toy Fund Editor of The Post before Sunday and help make Christmas really "merry" for the unfortunate children of the Capital. Only three days to go.

FIRST AT PLANE AFTER FATALITY

John McLean (left) and Carlton Lingebach were the first to arrive at the big Army bombing plane, which made a forced landing in a field at Kenilworth yesterday, after its designer had leaped to his death with a parachute which failed to open.

BANKRUPTCY INQUIRY IS GIVEN APPROVAL

FIVE ARE AT CONFERENCE

(Associated Press.)

The Justice Department's investigation of bankruptcy, authorized by the White House, yesterday received the backing of five business associations representing 975,000 members, following an estimate from solicitor General Thatcher that bankruptcy cases had risen into the billion dollar class last year.

The solicitor general said it would be impossible to complete the nation-wide survey for at least another month. The survey thus far, he said, has revealed that nearly $4,000,000,000 worth of claims have been wiped out through bankruptcy during the past five years, jumping from around $200,000,000 in 1920 to approximately $1,000,000,000 yast year. He estimated these 1929 liabilities had originated mainly before the business depression.

Thatcher conferred yesterday with a committee of five, including William C. Fraser, president of the National Association of Credit Men; James R. Hewitt, chairman of the Legislative committee of the National Retail Credit Association; R. V. Fleming, representing the American Bankers' Association; F. H. Burns, representing the National Association of Manufacturers, and Lloyd K. Garrison, special assistant to the attorney general, who is helping conduct the investigation. Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the board of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, was represented.

The committee pledged its cooperation and formed an organization to gather statistics.

Later the members received an expression of appreciation from President Hoover at the White House, and in turn voted their thanks for being consulted by the Justice Department in what was termed the "first real effort to see what the history of bankruptcy has been."

Garrison told the group some 70,001 bankruptcy cases were being analized on the basis of records prepared by referees in bankruptcy and clerks of District courts throughout the country.

Police Break Down Door And Find Woman Dead

Police, breaking into a room after being summoned by a woman who said she was unable to rouse her sister, yesterday found the lifeless body of Mrs. Minnie Robeen, 56 years old. Help had been summoned by Mrs. Mary Halstead, who lived with her sister at 3024 Q street northwest.

Dr. E. Stuart Lyddane, who has offices nearby, pronounced the woman dead after Seventh Precinct police had broken in the bedroom door.

House Move to Change Session's Date Planned

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Snell, of the rules committee, announced in the House yesterday he would not oppose bringing a resolution to change the meeting time of Congress to a vte at this session.

He specified, however, the measure would have to stipulate a definite date for adjournment of the second session.

jury, as the heavy plane slid along on its fuselage and came to a stop within about 100 feet.

Mr. Forberger's body was taken to Casualty Hospital in an ambulance, and will be held there pending the arrival of Fokker officials today. He had been with the firm for several years, and was instrumental in developing several types of modern combat planes. Confusion over his identification resulted, as he bore letters addressed to I. H. Owens, an engineering division representative of the Fokker plant who remained at Hasbrouck Heighth.

Lieut. Crocker, who was visibly unnerved by his narrow escape, said that he did not know the name of his passenger. For several minutes after he had landed the pilot sat in a daze, refusing to answer questions of Eleventh Precinct policemen and the crowd that quickly gathered about the big plane.

"I had no idea that Forberger had jumped," he later explained. "When the motors went dead I banked to the right and centered all my attention on getting the ship in the small field. I can't understand why he jumped, as we were only about 500 feet from the ground when the engines cut out, and there was a good chance of landing safely."

Lieut. Crocker, who was equipped with a parachute, remained with the plain until officers from Bolling Field arrived on the scene. An official investigation of the accident will be made today.

Local aviation leaders were warm in their praise for the pilot's skill in making an almost perfect "dead stick" landing in the small field. Lieut. Crocker, who is attached to Wright Field, has been in the Army air service since the war, and is considered one of that organization's most able and experienced fliers.

Carlton Lingebach, 16 years old, of 1422 Forty-fourth street northeast, and John McLean, 14, of 1408 Forty-fourth street northeast, were the first to reach the plane after it landed. Several hundred persons quickly gathered at the scene.

Eruption of Volcano Fatal to 15 in Java

Batavia, Java, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Fifteen persons died today in the sudden and violent eruption of a volcano at Merapi, Central Java, which had been active for two weeks.

Many surrounding villages were rolled down alarmingly and slowly filled the neighboring valleys. The eruption was accompanied by loud rumblings, which are increasing but it was believed that the rain of ashes had subsided.

New York, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—The latest developments in cancer in more than two score scientific institutions in seven countries were made public today.

They are summarized in the contents of the first issue of the American Journal of Cancer, now in press, a publication designed to cover the entire field of cancer.

This, it is stated in the summary, was not possible previously in the United States because of the prohibitive expense of printing the lengthy papers with the colored illustrations which make them useful to physicians.

Funds for the new venture were supplied by the chemical foundation, of which Francis P. Garvan, of New York, is president, as part of a plan to facilitate national cooperation of physicians and scientists in combatting cancer.

Dr. Francis Carter Wood, of Columbia University, is the editor. The first issue has 500 pages, dozens of illustrations and numerous articles and abstracts of the work of scientists in America, Japan, England, France, Spain, Italy and Germany. There are special articles from Columbia, Harvard, the Memorial Hospital of New York and the Mayo Foundation.

Among the unusual sidelights in the first issue is an expression of doubt that age is a cause of cancer. Dr. William H. Woglom, of the Institute of Cancer Research, Columbia University, writes:

"Today, it is known that sarcoma, like carcinoma (both are forms of cancer), become more frequent the greater the burden of years, and it is strongly suspected that age itself may really have nothing to do with the inception of malignant disease (cancer), save only that long life means an extended period throughout which the action of an irritant can be exerted."

By "action of an irritant" Dr. Woglom refers to observations that irritation of some sort frequently precedes cancer.

There is also in the journal an unusual point of view of benefits of sunlight in the treatment of cancer.

"The patient," it states, "should be allowed as much activity, especially in the open air, as can be tolerated without fatigue. Sunlight is invigorating and helpful.

"A moderate tan decreases the otherwise pallor and may in some manner enhance resistance to disease."

CLARK RULING GOES TO SUPREME COURT

SPEED WILL BE SOUGHT

Newark, N. J., Dec. 18 (A.P.).—The Federal Government today appealed to the United States Supreme Court from Judge William Clark's decision finding the eighteenth amendment invalid.

Philip Forman, the Federal district attorney who prosecuted the case of the United States vs. William Sprague and William Howey—the case in which Federal Judge Clark rendered his decision—made the appeal today. Only a few persons were in the courtroom when Forman started the procedure which will put the issue before the highest court.

Signs Two Orders.

During the proceedings Judge Clark signed two orders. One, at the request of Sprague's counsel, quashed the indictment against Sprague, who was charged with illegal transportation of beer. The other, at the request of the district attorney, provided for the appeal going directly to the Supreme Court without the usual intermediate stop at the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Forman then attached to the papers filed with the district court clerk his preliminary assignment of points on which his appeal will be based. The papers then were forwarded to the clerk of the United States Supreme Court at Washington.

The paper, headed "Assignment of Errors," read:

"1—The court erred in allowing the motion of the defendant in the above case. (Motion for quashing of indictment).

"2—The court erred in directing the indictment in the case be quashed.

Holds Court Erred.

"3—The court erred in ruling the 18th amendment to the Constitution of the United States is invalid and that the National prohibition act, enacted pursuant thereto is therefore unconstitutional and void."

Forman said the Solicitor General of the United States, eager, as are the defense attorneys, to bring the case to early trial, planned to have the case moved up on the calendar from its normal position. In this manner the uncertainty pursuant upon the Clarke decision would be clarified.

The opinion of Judge Clark was that the amendment should have been submitted to the people for ratification through convention and not to their legislatures.

MOFFETT PREDICTS FURTHER ARMS CUT

Says Other Powers Fear U.S. Will Be in Control of Air Power.

NEW CRUISER IS URGED

(Associated Press.)

An aviation pioneer said yesterday before a House committee that it was probable further naval building restrictions would be suggested at the next arms limitation conference by powers which believe the United States eventually will control the seas through superior strength in the air.

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, said at the London conference Great Britain and Japan sought to limit airplane carriers to a total considerably below the 135,000-ton maximum set by the treaty. He quoted Premier Macdonald, of England, as saying he wanted to limit total aircraft carrier tonnage to 100,000 and that he expected to do that in the future.

"Is it your belief," Chairman Britten, of the naval committee, asked, "that Great Britain and other countries will try to curtail construction of airplane-carrying ships because they think the United States will control the airplane industry as it does the automotive industry and thus control the seas?"

"Yes, that's very probable," Moffett answered.

Moffett also urged the committee to approve an authorization for a ship unlike any other now afloat—a cruiser which would have the powers of the established 8-inch gun vessel and in addition carry 24 operating planes.

He likened these planes to guns which "shoot 200 miles," that being about the distance to which they could fly, drop their bombs and return to the ship, and said the vessel would be "superior to any other cruiser we have."

said, "and they themselves recognize it.

"It is a mistake because production is by machine and consumption is by man. The formula was logical merely from a mechanical view, but a small obstacle is enough to cause its collapse."

He regarded "dumping" of Russian wheat as "rather important," quoting figures to show that a large amount of wheat is being imported by Italy from the Soviet Russia.

GUATEMALAN PEACE BELIEVED RESTORED

DIPLOMATIC CORPS AIDS

Guatemala City, Guatemala, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Peace had returned to Guatemala tonight after a revolution which installed Gen. Manuel Orellana as the third president the country has had within a week. The congress indicated in a formal manifesto a belief that the trouble was definitely over.

The statement disclosed that the various ambassadors and other representatives of foreign nations had sat in on congressional conferences looking toward reestablishment of peace. The mediation of the diplomatic corps was helpful, the statement says, but the diplomats functioned only as unofficial observers.

"The congress considers the critical period over," the statement read, "and calls attention to its satisfaction over the fact that the recent political difficulties resulted in a mimimum of blood-spilling."

The document bore the signatures of the representatives from Mexico, Germany, Italy, Belgium, the United States and several Central American states. It contained a paragraph to the effect that the diplomats gave their aid only as unofficial observers at the invitation of the congress.

The new president completed his cabinet tonight. The list of ministers follows:

Maryland's Stand In 1775 Defended

Speaker Asserts Manorial System Made Colony Satisfied.

Maryland's stand in the Revolutionary War was defended last night by Dr. Francis J. Hamelt, head of the graduate department of English at Catholic University, in an address before the Maryland Society of Washington, meeting at the Washington Club.

Dr. Hamelt described the manorial system instituted by Lord Baltimore, the gayety centering at the Annapolis capital and other features of the satisfied colony, which made it loath to join the rebellion. He cited instances, however, when Washington relied most on his Maryland troops in decisive Revolutionary battles.

George H. Calvert, jr., president of the society, and a direct descendant of Lord Baltimore, and Mrs. Calvert headed the receiving line at the reception preceding the address. In the line were Mr. and Mrs. Clement Sheriff, Raleigh Sherman, Mrs. Emma M. Loker and Miss Virginia E. Hebb. There were musical selections by Mrs. Estelle Hunt Dean and entertainment of members by the Clark brothers. John M. Boteler was in charge of the program.

Theft of Watch Reported.

Frank B. Preve, of 300 fourteenth street southwest, last night told police that robbers had entered his home and taken a watch and other jewelry, which were valued at $75.

that the cash surplus and undivided profits of the company increased, under management of the defendants, from $300,000 in 1927 to $3,000,000 in 1929, indicating that, rather than defrauding the firm, the defendants had aided it materially.

Virtually Owned Company.

The defense lawyer also pointed out that all of the common stock and 90 per cent of the preferred stock of the company had been owned by Pitts and Samuel J. Henry, former president of the firm. Any conspiracy to rob the Smith Co., he contended, would be a conspiracy of the officers to rob themselves.

Terming the testimony of Mr. Henry, who is jointly indicted with the three present defendants, but who has been granted a separate trial, as "the ravings of a madman," Mr. Raichle pointed out conflicts in his testimony and that of Anthony Senes, former self-styled "confidential agent" to Pitts. Henry, he said, was admittedly fighting with Pitts over control of the Smith Co., and "would be willing to swear to anything which would advance his cause."

Earlier in the day a defense plea for a mistrial, the fourth since the trial started, was denied by Justice Hitz. The motion came during presentation of the prosecution's opening argument by Neil Burkinshaw, assistant District attorney.

Alluding to Pitts as "he of the wizard-like memory," Mr. Burkinshaw declared that the defendants had "gutted the Smith company to the tune of $1,000,000."

"The defense," he said, "would have you consider the nocturnal removal of trunkaful of Smith company records only a midnight expedition to empty a wastebasket."

He declared further that prosecution accountants, in seeking evidence from the Smith Co. records upon which to base their case, "had faced every obstacle the ingenuity of Pitts and his two associates could devise. Pitts harassed, impeded and obstructed the Government in the preparation of this case. His conduct was that of a thief in the night.

"Ansdale and Edwards were the tools which made these amazing peculations possible. They were in it up to their necks. The fact that the money went to gratify the personal taste of G. Bryan Pitts in no wise relieves them of responsibility as conspirators.

"All three are tied up with a story of financial irregularity which has no parallel in the history of the National Capital," he said.

The prosecution attorney also pointed out that the authorizations and receipts which the defense introduced in evidence to show that Pitts had legally received the money named in the 95 items of the Government's bill of particulars, were suspiciously makeshift in appearance. These papers, he pointed out, bore no letterheads, were of odd sizes, and "obviously were fabricated to meet the exigencies of this case."

sented to Republican leaders of the House and promised to use in public debate on the floor of the House in his determined effort to not only have the so-called Wood amendment eliminated from the various annual appropriation bills, but to have reinserted the amounts for salary increases which were stricken out by Mr. Wood's appropriation committee.

Fight Still in Conference.

Settlement of the salary fight was not forthcoming yesterday. The House and Senate conferees met twice in the Senate appropriations committee office to settle the matter but came to no agreement. The Senate not only struck the Wood amendment out of the Postoffice-Treasury appropriation bill, but it also inserted the salary increase items stricken out by the House.

Representative Wood, on leaving the meeting of the conferees late yesterday, said that th eso-called Wood amendment was not a point in issue between the conferees. He conceded, he said, that that provision was beaten, but protested again that the amendment was not his and should not be labeled with his name, because it had been approved by all but two of the House appropriations committee members.

The conferees are to meet again this morning and probably will then reach a decision, and supporters are confident that the report will be a victory for the employes.

Medical Care Group Names Consultants

Two prominent surgeons have been appointed consultants of the committee on the costs of medical care, according to an announcement made yesterday by the group. They are Dr. John M. T. Finney, of Baltimore, and Dr. David Riesman, of Philadelphia.

The former is professor of clinical surgery at Johns Hopkins Medical School, while Dr. Riesman is professor of clinical medicine in the medical school at University of Pennsylvania. They will join Dr. Roger I. Lee, of Brookline, Mass., as consultants.

MT. VERNON SCHOOL STATUS DISCUSSED

SNOW CAUSES MISHAPS

Fairfax Bureau of The Post, P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va. Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

A mass meeting of the citizens of Mount Vernon District was held in the Community Hall at Woodlawn to discuss the proposed location of school centers and the methods of financing the erection of the new buildings at such centers. After a full evening's discusion the problem seemed as far from settled as when the question was first brought before the county school board by the citizens. At the close of themeeting the two factions had developed, those in favor of four centers in the district, with four-room school buildings, and those in favor of fewer centers, with seven-room buildings. These factions seemed to be as far apart as possible, with little hope of an amicable agreement being reached in the near future.

The meeting was called by a special committee appointed at the last meeting of the county school board. This committee is composed of School Trustees Herbert Williams, of Providence District; F. Shield McCandlish, of Fairfax; John Haislip, of Mount Vernon District; and Edmund H. Allen, of Newington; John Martin, of Franconia, and Edward C. Gibbs, of Mount Vernon.

The situation is somewhat complicated, inasmuch as the only large modern school plant in the district at present is located at Potters Hill. There is a colored settlement on one side and the Fort Humphreys Military Reservation on the other.

Rapidly Growing Center.

Franconia, a rapidly-growing community, is only 3 miles from Potters Hill, and the school board has stated that it does not feel justified in establishing centers so close together. The suggestion that pupils from Franconia be transported to Potters Hill or Annandale was vigorously opposed by the school's patrons.

A set of figures prepared by Divisional Superintendent of Schools Wilbert T. Woodson showing the receipts and disbursements of the school tax money in Mount Vernon District for the last year showed that only $1,000 more was collected in that district than was spent by the board. For some time the citizens of that district have been under the impression that the district had paid $6,000 more each year than had been returned.

Answering the criticism that county money had been spent this year on the schools at Herndon and Fairfax, Supt. Woodson stated that both of these schools had been paid for originally out of corporation bond issues by the citizens of these towns and under the present system the schools are serving as school center for these communities and are taking care of a large number of pupils living outside of the corporation limits.

Trustee Blames Citizens.

Trustee McCandlish, of Fairfax, addressed the meeting and told the citizens that they were largely responsible for the present deplorable conditions of the schools in that district, as they had made no effort to secure better school facilities by special tax levies, bond issues and State literary loans as the northern districts in the county had done. He and Trustee Haislip, of Mount Vernon District, urged the people to appeal for a 25-cent levy on the $100 valuation of property as a means of establishing a building fund for new schools. W. P. Reid, chairman of the county board of supervisors, advocated a bond issue election to determine the wishes of the people of that district.

Trustee Williams pointed out that the question of what type of schools, how many needed, how they are to be financed and where located was a matter for the people to solve before presenting the question to the county authorities.

The special committee will meet during the Christmas holidays in Fairfax to discuss the matter and endeavor to work out some feasible plan that will be for the best interests of the district and to formulate a report that will contain concrete recommendations to be presented at the January meeting of the school board.

James McBride, 22, and R. A. Hutton, 42, of Hume Springs, Alexandria, and J. Beavers, 22, of Hunters Station, received broken left legs in two accidents yesterday caused by the snowfall and slippery roads.

McBride nad Hutton were injured when the car in which they were riding, driven by Hutton, skidded and overturned on the Fort Hunt road, about 2 miles south of Alexandria. Both men were taken to the Alexandral Hospital. McBride also suffered from exposure, as it was some time before any one came to his aid.

Beavers was caught between a concrete mixer and a large piece of stone being swung by a derrick while working on Little Hunting Creek Bridge, a part of the Mount Vernon boulevard, late Wednesday. He was taken to the Alexandria Hospital for treatment.

During the snowstorm a large number of automobiles were wrecked at the bottom of Snake Hill, on the Washington-Richmond highway. One of the cars skidded from a culvert and came to rest standing on its radiator. No one was reported injured in the accident. Another accident occurred near Alexandria on the Lee-Jackson highway at Seminary, when a trunk belonging to the Virginia Public Service Co. was thrown into a field as the trailer attached to it loaded with telegraph poles skidded and overturned. The five men who were riding in the trunk escaped injury.

MAN FINED FOR ASSAULT

Charles Davis, Negro, 18 years old, a prisoner in the House of Reformation at Cheltenham, was shot in the leg last night by John Pyles, superintendent of the institution. Pyles said he heard a noise near a building where food was kept and fired in the darkness, striking the youth.

Davis' wound was treated by Dr. W. H. Gibbons, of Croome, and he was taken to the Marlboro Jail by Sheriff W. C. Hopkins. He was held for investigation, as it has not been decided whether or not a larceny charge will be placed against him.

Two men were held for the grand jury yesterday when they appeared in Capitol Heights Police Court to face charges of chicken stealing. They are William Talbert and James McKenny, both of Capitol Heights.

The men are alleged to have stolen a number of fowls from Annie Hudson. They were apprehended after Mrs. Hudson found the chickens at a neighbor's house. The neighbor said that she had bought them from the two men held in the case. Pending the action of the grand jury, the pair is at liberty on bond of $100 apiece.

A. B. Benson was fined $1 for assault and battery on a 7-year-old child, Fabian J. Augustine, of Seat Pleasant. Benson, who lives in the same town, is alleged to have struck the boy with a rake in an argument over burning some dead leaves. He admitted that he struck the child, but claimed that it was accidental.

Mrs. Mabel Harris, 42 years old, of Pittaburgh, Pa., will face a Prince Georges County grand jury on a manslaughter charge arising out of an accident on the Baltimore boulevard on December 1. Two persons were instantly killed in the crash and another one died several days later.

Mrs. Harris herself has been in Casualty Hospital since the accident. She was driving a car which also contained her sister-in-law, Miss Gladys Harris, of Pittsburgh. Miss Harris died several days after the collision.

The Harris car was in a collision with one driven by John M. Braun, of Baltimore, near Laurel. Mr. Braun and his fiancee, Eleanor Follmer, also of Baltimore, were instantly killed.

Testimony of State Policeman John Baggett showed that Mrs. Harris' machine struck Mr. Braun's car on the right side, in the middle of the road. H. M. They went on record as favoring the extension to the full width of Rhode Island avenue, to take care of all the traffic on the Baltimore road.

Miss Charlotte Davis, of Hyattsville, will be the new treasurer, with Mrs. Mary Fainter as secretary. Mrs. Emily Suess, of Hyattsville, was chosen sergeant-at-arms, and Mrs. Angela Aiello will be historian.

A decision to keep an "emergency shelf" stocked and ready for the relief of the families of needy former service men was reached at the last meeting. Members were asked to donate staples, such as canned foods, sugar and flour, to the shelf.

No word has been received from the two boys who left their homes in Hyattsville Tuesday morning to go to school, but who have not yet returned. They are Luther Marcus and Burin Gardner, both pupils in the Olive Street Elementary School.

Marcus is said to have taken a shotgun with him when he left, and the other boy is reported to have had about $7. Chief of Police Albert Anderson, after talking to friends of the pair, expressed an opinion that they had gone south.

Marcus is about 5 feet 6 inches tall, and is 15 years old. He has a dark complexion and dark hair and eyes. He wore laced boots, olive drab breeches and a red sweater. The Gardner boy was 14 years old and wore dark trousers.

Caesar L. Aiello will act as Santa Claus at the Christmas festival to be held tonight in the Masonic Hall in Hyattsville. The affair is being given by the County Federations of Women's Clubs, and children are to be the guests. The tree for the occasion was paid for by the chamber of commerce.

Children of the College Park School will present a tableau as part of the program, and addresses of welcome by Mrs. Rudolph S. Allen, president of the federation, and State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer are also scheduled.

TAXPAYERS DISCUSS ALEXANDRIA BUDGET

Many Revisions of Tentative Plan Asked by 25 of Citizens' Body.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Approximately 25 taxpayers appeared before the city council yesterday at the public meeting which, according to the announcement made by Mayor Carroll Pierce, was for the purpose of having the taxpayers express their views on the tentative budget now under consideration, and to advise with the council as to any changes they may consider desirable.

Those appearing before the council were furnished with copies of the budget by City Manager Wallace Lawrence, and several addressed the council briefly. Among those was J. Harvey Robinson, who suggested a reduction in the salary of Police Capt. Campbell, and also that the office of the City Collector be abolished and that taxes be collected by the city treasurer. A reduction in the expenses of the police court was also recommended by Mr. Robinson.

Dan S. Hollenga, as business manager, of the Chamber of Commerce, recalled that some time ago he had asked for an appropriation for the maintenance of a proposed city park which, he indicated, might be presented to the city next year. He also urged the establishment of a welfare department for the city, and the creation of a fund for entertainment of visitors and distinguished guests, and to encourage manufacturing prospects to come to Alexandria.

State Fixes Salary.

Hugo Herfurth, sr., believed that the appropriation for the office of the commissioner of revenue should be reduced, but he was informed by Mayor Pierce that the council has no jurisdiction, as the compensation for this office is fixed by State law.

J. William May, representing the publicity committee of the Chamber of Commerce, indorsed Mr. Hollenga's request for an appropriation for entertainment of visitors and distinguished guests.

Dr. R. Lee Wilkins inquired as to the appropriation for the city health department, and recommended that it be reduced.

Thomas Carter voiced his general approval of the acts of the council, but warned that conditions this year have been such as to make it advisable to save in every possible way.

Asks Taxation Cut.

A. S. Doniphan asked that the tax rate be reduced, and cited some property he owns, stating that the tax rate, as tentatively fixed, was out of all proportion to the value of his property.

Walter S. Smith protested the city automobile license tax, and urged that it should be abolished. This has been considered by the council on several occassions, with the plan being discarded as impracticable.

R. L. Berryman, of Potomac, asked for improvement of the 100 block, East Windsor avenue, in front of the community house, and also suggested that a public ambulance should be provided for the city. Charles L. Adams, of Potomac, also advocated the improvement of this street, whether the abutting property owners are willing to pay their proportion of the cost or not, stating that this particular street is used more by the general public than by the property owners abutting.

Fred C. Goodnow advocated the appointment of a building and electric inspector, and cited instances of buildings which would barely hold together, until they are sold. He believes that a small extra fee might be charged for building permits which would take care of this matter, so that it would not be a heavy burden on the budget. Mayor Pierce stated this would be given consideration.

Indorse Inspection Plan.

V. Ward Boswell, after indorsing the recommendation of Mr. Goodnow as to the proposed building inspector, made an appeal on behalf of the children of the city, and called attention to an item in the budget for a social service worker at $800. He stated that, so far as he knows, Alexandria is the only city in Virginia of more than 4,000 population which has not a trained welfare worker. He called attention to the fact that Judge Snow, of the juvenile court, when he has delinquent children brought before him, has only two recourses, one to send them to a State institution, where the influences are not good, and the other to require parents to send them out of the city. In the latter event, he says, they will return after a few months and exert a bad influence on other children. He stated that a properly conducted welfare department would cost $3,000 a year, and called attention to the fact that last year Arlington County collected $4,500 for this purpose.

After all had been heard the meeting was adjourned, and shortly thereafter the council went into executive session to consider the budget.

In the regular meeting preceding the public session an application of Mrs. Thelma DeVaughan for the establishment of a beauty parlor in Potomac was approved; petition of R. G. Noble for a filling station was denied, and a petition was received from J. Dreifus Sons protesting against the proposed planting of trees on the 100 block of Prince street.

A revised sewer tapping ordinance was received and placed on its first reading, then held over under the rules.

Financial Report Made.

The financial report for November was submitted by the city manager. A communication from Julian Davis, secretary of Motor Company No. 4, of the Alexandria Fire Department, voicing the objection of the company to the removal of the fire siren at King and St. Asaph streets, was received.

Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the Chamber of Commerce, presented the report of a committee of the chamber in regard to the proposed increase in rates by the Alexandria Water Co., to become effective February 1, urging that the council oppose the increase "to the last ditch," and suggesting that the amount carried in the tentative budget for this purpose probably would not be sufficient. He was informed that this amount was for legal and engineering services and was tentative.

J. William May, chairman of the publicity committee of the Chamber of Commerce, indorsed Mr. Hollenga's statements, and said it is the opinion of many citizens of Alexandria that the city could expect small consideration from the State Corporation Commission, and in the opinion of his committee it will probably be necessary to take the protest to the court of last appeal.

Representatives of a number of clubs and organizations have selected W. L. Norford as chairman of the committee to distribute tickets for an entertainment to be given on January 14 next in the old First Presbyterian Church for the benefit of the unemployed in the city, to be given out under the supervision of former Mayor William Albert Smoot, chairman of the Alexandria United Charities.

Mr. Norford has named as his assistants R. Samuel Luckett, commander of R. E. Lee Camp, Sons of Confederate Veterans; Mrs. Mary W. Troth, president of the Business and Professional Women's Club; Roger C. Sullivan, president-elect of the Kiwanis Club; Thomas N. Jones, Lawrence Roland, Miss Helen Norris Cummings, president of the Cameron Club; Percy E. Clift, Sidney Weil, commander of Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion; Miss Frances McDermott, Mrs. Reba Barrett Smith, Charles Swetnam, worshipful master of Alexandria-Washington Lodge of Masons; Mrs. Charles Blondheim, Mrs. Mauchlin Niven, W. Clifton Cunningham, Edgar R. Thomasson, A. D. Yates, Irvin Diener, Harry A. Lipscombe, Mrs. Charles M. Shepperson, Mrs. John W. Travers, L. H. Dudley, J. Frank Myers, C. Philip Heishley, Virgil Davis and D. Mauchlin Niven.

Dan S Hollenga business manager of the Chamber of Commerce, addressed the Kiwanis Club yesterday on the need for welfare work in the city. He urged the Kiwanis to take this matter up in considering its program of work for 1931.

J. Randall Caton, international trustee of the Kiwanis National Organization and a member of the local club, was presented with a statue by Irvin Diener, on behalf of the club. William H. Meeks, chairman of the Christmas observance committee, reported that bundles will be distributed by the club on December 24.

Robert O. Hutchinson, lieutenant governor-elect of the Capital district, will be present on Monday night for the Kiwanis training school.

The First National Bank, the oldest national bank in Virginia, celebrated its sixty-sixth year of existence on Wednesday. The present officers are: Gardner Lloyd Boothe, president; M. B. Harlow, vice president; George E. Warfield, cashier and trust officer; Arthur K. Warfield, assistant cashier and trust officer; Robert G. Whitton, assistant cashier. Directors are Gardner L. Boothe, M. B. Harlow, Benoit Baer, Harry Hammond, Albert V. Bryan, William A. Moore and George E. Warfield.

The city yesterday placed a force of 50 men on the streets cleaning snow from crossings, in addition to the 20 men on the chain gang, who were also engaged in the task. A number of unemployed men and boys, aside from unemployed of the city were engaged in cleaning streets and sidewalks throughout the city.

The Wardman Mortgage and Discount Corporation receivership hearing was held all day yesterday in the Corporation Court, Judge William P. Woolls presiding, with every indication that taking of testimony will not be completed until in January. The testimony of John Berg, certified public accountant, who audited the firm's books for the complainants, was on the stand all day.

With a heavy calendar of civil and criminal cases during the balance of the month, and the holidays intervening, Judge Woolls has stated he can see little opportunity of assigning any time to the case until after the first of the year. Berg will be followed on the stand by Harold S. Roberts, certified accountant of Washington, who had regularly audited the books of the corporation since its organization. Judge Daniel Thew Wright, chief counsel, has announced that two or three more witnesses will be called, but has not stated who they will be.

MILLS HIT BY STRIKE WILL MEET DIVIDEND

Riverside and Dan Factories to Distribute $225,000 on Preferred Stock.

WOMAN AIDS YULE TREE

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Dec. 18.—The directors of the Riverside and Dan River Cotton Mills, at their regular winter meeting held in the company offices this evening, hung out the "business as usual" sign by declaring the usual 3 per cent semiannual dividend on preferred stock amounting to $7,500,000. It means that $225,000 will be distributed among the shareholders of record on January 1. The common dividend was passed, not having been paid since last January, owing to the unsettled state of the cotton goods market.

Danville literally hung on the directors' decision this evening because commercially the preferred dividend means a great deal and this year it was of even greater importance in view of the strike.

Danville, Va., Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Strike activities today were limited largely to the passive campaign of holding out against return of members to work in the mills. Pickets were on duty today as the mill gates opened. There were no reports of disorder as militia and police continued patrol duty about the mills.

Union officials vigorously denied today that a large percentage of strikers would return to work if assured of "protection after the troops leave." The statement was made today by Gen. Samuel G. Waller, acting adjutant general, that he learned from authoritative sources that assurance of "protection" would result in a large number of strikers returning to the mills. C. W. Bolick, strike manager, said such information was not accurate and was made to influence strikers to return to the mills.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Laden with gifts for the children of the textile mill strikers at Danville, Va., Miss Elisabeth Gilman, socialist candidate for governor in the November election, left here tonight. As chairman of the Socialist relief committee, Miss Gilman will play Santa Claus to some of the 7,000 children she said are affected. Hundreds of articles have been sent from here in the last three weeks, she said.

COUNTY IS PRAISED FOR KINDERGARTENS

Work in Montgomery Called Outstanding by Group on Extension.

NINE ARE ESTABLISHED

Montgomery County has been praised for its outstanding work in establishing kindergartens by the Maryland Association for Kindergarten Extension. Kindergartens have been established in nine county schools, Bethesda, Chevy Chase, Rockville, Gaithersburg, Kensington, Somerset, Woodside, Takoma Park, and East Silver Spring Schools.

Much of the report on the county system is devoted to a letter written by Mrs. Frederick Keplinger, of Bethesda, chairmen of the committee on education of the Montgomery County Federation of Women's Clubs.

In her letter Mrs. Keplinger tells of the efforts of the women of the county to have kindergartens added to the curriculum of the county public schools. The first kindergarten in the county was at Bethesda and the tuition of $24 a year was paid by each pupil's parents. Later it was found that the State law permitted the establishment of kindergartens and from that time, under the sympathetic guidance of Superintendent of Schools Edwin W. Broome, the county system has expanded its kindergartens until the present standing has been reached.

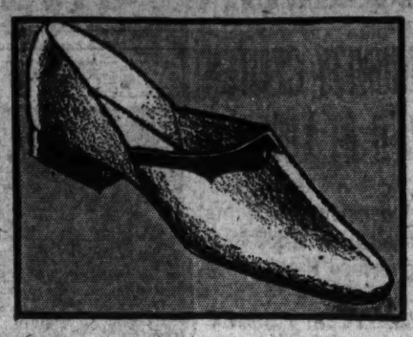

Secretary of Labor William N. Doak has accepted an invitation to light Silver Spring's first community Christmas tree, it was announced yesterday. Robert L. McKeever, vice president of the International Lions Club, will preside. The celebration will be held Monday night at 8 o'clock when Secretary Doak will press a button to illuminate the giant Christmas tree which will be erected in the parkway opposite the Silver Spring National Bank.

Secretary Doak will make a short speech and carols will be sung by the massed choirs of the Silver Spring churches under the direction of Harlan Randall. The Rev. Ralph D. Smith, the Rev. William R. Moody, Edwin Warfield and Walter Crossan have charge of the details.

Secretary Doak will be the guest of the local Lions Club at its regular weekly dinner prior to the Christmas tree celebration.

The motion picture shows which had been planned by the Silver Spring Lions Club to defray expenses of distributing Christmas baskets among the poor have been postponed until after Christmas, sufficient funds having been secured to care for the needs of those whom the club expects to care for.

SPANISH MONARCHY REGAINING CONTROL

Franco, Leader of Abortive Revolt, Seeks Asylum Within France.

DESCRIBES HIS ESCAPE

Madrid, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—The strong hand of the Spanish government tonight was gradually restoring order throughout the country, torn by civil strife after Monday's abortive revolt.

In Madrid itself it had succeeded completely and the city was going about its affairs as if there had been no such incident as the brief rising at Cuatro Vientos Airfield when rebel leaders proclaimed the end of the monarchy and the establishment of a republic.

This was also largely true in the big provincial centers where those general strikes which were proclaimed Tuesday and yesterday had either ended or were petering out.

Franco Was in Madrid.

Lisbon, Portugal, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Maj. Ramon Franco, interned Spanish airman and central figure in the abortive revolutionary attempt at Madrid Monday, revealed to the Associated Press today he had remained in Madrid between the time of his sensational escape from prison recently and the outbreak of the revolt.

He said he escaped from prison by means of a double cord which he pulled down after touching the ground, thus leaving no trace of his means of flight. He stayed with friends in Madrid until he went to Cuatro Vientos Airfield Monday morning to proclaim the setting up of a republic.

Want to Go to France.

He said today that although he and the other Spanish officers who escaped to Portugal with him were deeply grateful for the kindness showered on them at Mafra, where they are interned, they could not bring themselves to accept indefinite confinement in a small town where they could not make any purchases and were forced to contend with day-long idleness.

"That is the reason," he said, "that we petitioned the Portuguese government to permit us to go to France, where we can feel more at home and be among friends. Most of us fled in the clothes we stand in and have no money. We refuse, however, to accept any help from the government which has slain our friends."

It was understood this evening that while Franco's request for permission to go to France was being considered it would probably be refused.

LONG SENTENCE FACES CARNELL, MAHONEY

stopped, they were enabled to reach his garage before Mr. Bush did. Mr. Bush was shot whem he grappled with Carnell in the dark interior of the garage.

Justice Gordon dealt with all this and declared that, under District law, Mahoney was as much to blame as Carnell, since he had aided and abetted in the crime.

The morning session was taken up with arguments. Mr. Whitestone and Mr. Lichtenberg pleaded that their client be found guilty only of manslaughter. Mr. Donahue and Mr. Johnson asked only that their client be found guilty of no crime greater than second degree murder.

Deliberate, Says Collins.

William H. Collins, Assistant United States Attorney, who prosecuted, argued the slaying was premeditated and deliberate, and characterized the killing as one of the most hideous and cruel in the District. Mr. Collins also charged the defense was trying to make the jury believe Mr. Bush had committed suicide.

Mr. Whitestone dealt at length with the testimony of Carnell, who declared Mr. Bush had killed himself in a struggle for possession of the death gun, and that the prosecutor had displayed brazen effrontery by suggesting the defense had even intimated Mr. Bush was a suicide.

The jury was composed of Bradner W. Holmes, foreman, 2210 Newton street northwest; Melville L. Hunter, 3724 Eastern avenue northeast; Harry W. Kellams, 2312 Twentieth street northwest; Eugene R. Reavis, 2025 Bennett place northwest; Lester L. Charlton, 5527 G street northwest; Henry C. Behm, 668 D street southeast; Henry F. Collins, 1020 C street northeast; Roland M. Hudson, 638 I street northeast; Benjamin C. Frazier, 2218 Thirteenth street southeast; Charles M. Medford, 329 Rhode Island avenue northwest; John R. Harden, jr., 936 G street northwest, and Albert M. Snapp, 6201 Twelfth street northwest.

William H. McKay had been indicted jointly with Carnell and Mahoney, but was not tried with them, gaining a separate trial. He appeared as the Government's star witness, linking both men with the slaying.

McKay denied he had been promised immunity for his testimony. The date for his trial has not been set.

"MADONNA OF THE STREETS." Columbia Pictures' filmization of the story of "The Rapped Messenger," by W. B. Maxwell, featuring Evelyn Brent and Robert Ames, supported by Josephine Dunn and Ivan Linow. Directed by John S. Robertson. Reviewed Thursday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

It is by no means a certainty that a young woman, who has been so much to a man she has never married that he makes every effort to bequeath her $1,000,000 before being overtaken by a sudden and fatal malady that strikes so swiftly as to preclude a codicil to the will, would fall in love with and eventually marry the young nephew who gets the money. Especially, I think, is there a doubt when the cool million is to be devoted to the conduct of a waterfront mission that has become the life work and pet hobby of young Peter Morton. If sophisticated young ladies of the primrose paths of dalliance, where hearts of Bessemer steel are an asset, really do go for the more salutary interests of the lads on the docks in a large and open-handed way, then this is a splendid picture.

That is to say, it is a splendid picture in so far as its psychological aspects are concerned. Those, in truth, are about the only aspects the piece can boast as mass entertainment. Until the last five minutes of the plot's unreeling there is not enough physical action in "Madonna of the Streets" to wind a watch. At the very end an attempt to overcome this handicap is belatedly made by staging a modest little riot that is no more explosive than the first Battle of the Marne!

In point of cast, the picture is beyond reproach. Evelyn Brent, in the pivotal role of May Fisher, who poses as Mary Smith to gain a foothold in the Star of Hope Mission, presided over by the God Samaritan, whom she plans to denude of the fortune intended for her, finds the part completely to her liking, in that it is never overly sentimental and always just a little hard boiled. Her performance is interesting and thoroughly believable—in so far as any such attitude as she assumes toward a million dollars can be believable. Robert Ames, as the missionary of the quays, is no less authoritative and convincing in a well-drawn character.

Josephine Dunn, the rival for Peter's favor, is none too authentic in a part of comparatively small opportunity. Ivan Linow, Ed Brady, as a labor agitator; Albert Gran, J. Edwards Davis and Richard Tucker, as Kingsley, the attorney, contribute support that is uniformly adequate.

The supplementary attractions are numerous and not all knockouts. Karl Dane and George K. Arthur are together again in a nondescript comedy, "Dizzy Dates," that falls something this side of both laughability and sanity. Eddie Buzzell, on the other hand, manages to extract no little fun from the visions of a crystal gazer whose clairvoyance gets him into difficulties of an intimate domestic nature.

The news reel features Knute Rockne and his Notre Dame Irishmen returning in triumph from the Coast, and Bert Wheeler and Bob Woolsey, assisted by Dorothy Lee, offer a brief Christmas greeting that is quite as dignified as you would expect!

RIALTO

"THE STORM." Universal picturization of the play of the same name by Langdon McCormick, starring Lupe Velez, supported by Paul Cavanagh and William Boyd. Directed by William Wyler. Reviewed Thursday night by Don S. Reed.

What happens, or rather one of the many things which might happen, when two men and a woman are confined in a cabin by a storm throughout the winter, is portrayed in this story. "The Storm," almost, but not quite, takes one back to the days of the old silent films when action, rather than tense drama was demanded.

Laid out in the West, where all heman stories originate, this one lives up to its early promise of red-blooded action and while it may hardly be classed as a masterpiece, it is thoroughly good entertainment.

Burr Winton needs $5,000 to save his mine from a gambler. His friend, Dave Stewart, war buddy, arrives just in time to save the mine and they go to Winton's cabin for the winter. Meanwhile Jacques Fachard, a smuggler and friend of Winton, is arrested by the Mounted Police. He escapes when his daughter, Manette comes to the rescue in a canoe, but Fachard is wounded. They reach Winton's cabin where Fachard dies, his last request being that Winton look after his daughter. Winton agrees, but finds himself in love with the girl as is his friend Stewart.

They finally stage a fight over the girl, but mistaken impressions are cleared up and Winton wins the girl while Stewart goes back to the civilization to which he had promised to take Manette.

Lupe Velez as Manette is convincing in the role and does a capable piece of work, while Paul Cavanagh, as Stewart, is better as the villain than William (stage) Boyd as the hero. Boyd has his moments, but is not quite fighting man enough on two or three occasions. The only fault to find with Miss Velez's work is to ask how any woman could be as simple with two men in love with her as she pretends to be in the picture.

Alphonz Ethier as Manette's father has an excellnet part and plays it fmust as excellently. In addition to the action of the story, the picture is enhanced by some spectacular storm scenes, including snowslides that make Wednesday's precipitation here seem like a spring zephyr. Then, too, the scene wherein Manette and her father shoot the rapids to secape the police is as thrilling a bit of camera work as has been shown on a local screen in some time.

Auxiliary attractions include the newareel, with Graham McNamee broadcasting, one of the features of which is the touchdown play in the Army-Navy game, instead of the usual line plunges, and then a subtitle announcing the csore. There is also an Oswald, the rabbit, sound cartoon entitled "The Navy," which earned plenty of laughs.

California College Official Is Suicide

Note Increases Mystery in Death of Warren B. Bovard.

Los Angeles, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Warren B. Bovard, vice president of the University of Southern California, died shortly after a bullet pierced his head at his home here during the night. Police reported today that he committed suicide.

They disclosed one sentence of a note left by Bovard, which said: "Good-by, Blanie, I am going."

At first the police reported the note said:

"I am going to meet Doheny's son," but later explained the name "Blanie" had been confused over the telephone with that of Doheny.

The officers had not identified "Blanie."

Edward L. Doheny, jr., son of the oil magnate, a heavy donor to the university building projects, was killed more than a year ago by his secretary who then committed suicide. Bovard was 45 years old. The son of a former president of the university, he became vice president of the institution in 1927. He served in the World War with the American Air Forces, rising to the rank of major.

Girl Admits Role In Buckley Slaying

Avers That She Innocently Asked Him to the Lobby, Where He Was Killed.

Detroit, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—The Detroit News said today it had learned from police that Miss Margaret Owen, actress, had told them she was the woman who called Jerry Buckley to the lobby of the La Salle Hotel, where he was slain by three gunmen early July 23. The News says Miss Owen said she made the telephone call to the radio announcer innocently, believing she was arranging a party to celebrate the recall of Mayor Charles Bowles.

Miss Owen has been in a hospital, under guard, since November 29. On that day she collapsed in a theater where she was playing, after drinking poison liquor. Previously she had been subpenaed as a witness before the grand jury investigating the Buckley slaying.

According to the News, Miss Owen told police she called Buckley about 1:30 a. m. to invite him to the party. She said she had known the radio political commentator for some time and that he had escorted her to several parties. She said Buckley agreed to meet her in the lobby of the hotel in a few minutes, but that the man who told her to make the call prevented her from keeping the appointment. Buckley was shot at 1:55 a. m.

MARKET IS CHEERED BY NEW CONFIDENCE

Strong Buying Movement in Bonds Ends Decline as Stocks Show Rally.

NET GAINS ARE SMALL

New York, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Restoration of confidence in the securities markets today was celebrated by tormenting the bears in the stock market.

More cheering to Wall street, however, was the strong buying movement which developed in the bond market. Bonds made the sharpest advance of the year, terminating a decline which has carried them to the lowest in five years, as measured by the composite price of 30 issues. In the over-the-counter market, bank stocks rallied swiftly.

The advance in stocks lost its vigor late in the day, as traders who bought around yesterday's low levels hurried to take profits, and as the violence of the advance attracted some general selling, in the so-called pivotal shares, there were few net gains of more than $1 or $2.

The bear punishment was staged in Auburn Auto, which is normally a wild mover. The stock shot up $20.75, to $119.75, in contrast to a low price on Monday of $83.12, and on top of yesterday's advance of $10.50. After bears had paid fancy prices for stock to meet their short contracts, the demand relaxed, and the issue fell back to $112, making a net gain for the day of $13.

The violence of the upturn in this issue led to considerable brokerage house gossip of a possible technical corner engineered to squeeze a large operator, but so far as could be learned, it was all gossip. Whether the stock exchange would investigate the matter could not be learned.

J. I. Case was another violent performer. It shot up $12.75, to $106.75, but it slipped back to close at $100.25. On Tuesday it touched a new low at $83.75. In neither case nor Auburn have there been any business news developments to account for their erratic behavior.

Polish Flier Seized As Revolt Leader

Man Who Tried Atlantic Flight Believed Involved in Political Drive.

Warsaw, Poland, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—The noted Polish flier Casimir Kubala, who twice tried a transatlantic flight, was placed under arrest today presumably on political charges, but the authorities refused all information.

It was rumored that Kubala was charged with fomenting rebellion in the army and that he had been guilty of insubordination by formally criticizing his superiors in a report to the war office.

Kubala tried to fly across the Atlantic in 1928 and again in 1929. He abandoned the first attempt because of bad weather and the second ended in a forced landing in which his pilot, Idzikowski, was killed.

Suspended Bank's Assets Are Listed

Counsel for Depositors Says Sum of $112,000,000 Has Disapepared.

New York, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—All assets shown on the books of the suspended Bank of United States have been accounted for by the State Department of Banking, Joseph A. Broderick, State superintendent of banks, announced today.

A charge that $112,000,000 had disappeared between September 24, when the bank made its last formal report, and December 11, when it was taken over by the State, was made at a depositors' meeting in Brooklyn last night by Max D. Steuer, counsel, for 1,200 of the bank's 400,000 depositors.

Superintendent Broderick, in his formal statement, said: "The banking department has been closely and constantly in touch with the affairs of this institution for 15 months. The assets as called for by the books have been accounted for since the department has taken possession."

The State Banking Department, however, has found a shrinkage between the book and sales value of the securities held by the bank as assets.

HOOVER WINS.

President Hoover wins two major points in his relief program. The House refuses to vote $30,000,000 to put the Secretary of Agriculture into the business of feeding drought-stricken farmers. Instead of approving the Senate's proposal to authorize $60,000,000 for drought relief, including the food dole, the House conferees forced the Senate conferees to compromise on $45,000,000.

The Senate conferees also agreed late yesterday at the insistence of the House that no provision be made for loaning money for the purchase of food for persons except in cases of extreme emergency.

The House takes the position that human suffering resulting from the drought can be and will be cared for by the Red Cross. Chairman John Barton Payne has already announced that the Red Cross is in a position to take care of all cases of distress arising from the drought.

The other point gained by the President was the Senate's reversal of the vote whereby it sought to deprive the President of the authority to allocate emergency funds in public construction. By a vote of 42 to 39 the Senate defeated the amendment proposed by Senator Robinson, which would have confirmed the Senate's previous action in denying authority to the President to allocate funds. Thus the Senate agrees with the House in giving the President power to use the emergency funds to the best advantage during the present depression.

Valuable time has been lost in both houses, and relief of unemployment and drought distress has been correspondingly delayed. There is yet time, however, to push through both bills before the holiday adjournment.

One or two Democratic senators so far forgot their public duty as to indulge in partisan diatribes against President Hoover while the public was clamoring for relief. Mr. Hoover's statement that some politicians were "playing politics at the expense of human misery" was more than confirmed by the partisan abuse heaped upon him. But he has gained his objective, and will soon be in a position to move powerfully to the assistance of the country's unemployed.

The resort to partisanship in dealing with the unemployment and drought situation was a grievous political blunder. The Democratic party as a whole is now regarded by the country as an obstructer of public relief legislation. The leaders of that party should have exerted their influence to dissuade party associates from trying to make political capital out of the situation. No possible credit could be gained by obstructing relief measures, or by trying to swell appropriations to preposterous sums, or by trying to cripple the President in applying relief funds to the best advantage.

The net result of the controversies in the House and Senate is to convince the country that a Republican President and Republicans in Congress have endeavored to push through relief legislation with the utmost celerity, and that they have been impeded by Democrats who sought to play politics at the expense of human misery.

COST OF THE HALF HOLIDAY.

Enactment of the bills before Congress to give Federal employes a weekly half-holiday the year round seems to be contingent upon the cost of the venture. Congress is reluctant to cut down working hours if it means a greater drain on the Treasury. The estimate of the director of the budget that the shorter working week would cost the Government nearly $27,000,000 is, therefore, of much interest and importance.

Unfortunately the Budget Bureau does not reveal on what its calculations are based. Presumably the bureau contemplates hiring enough new employes to do the work which is now done by the entire Federal working force on Saturday afternoons. If this is so, the estimate is not altogether trustworthy. Does the Government hire extra help to do its work in the summer time when employes are allowed Saturday afternoons off? Thousands of institutions allow half holidays once each week in the summer months without hiring more men. The employes hustle a little faster during the week, encouraged by the thought of having Saturday afternoons off. Why can not the same rules of psychology be applied to the year-round half holiday?

Industry discovered long ago that it is not profitable to work men for long hours. A workman now accomplishes much more in six or eight hours than he used to accomplish in ten or twelve. Use of machinery does not account for all of this increased efficiency. Men are capable of working faster and with greater accuracy when their hours are reasonably short. They are stimulated and relieved of drudgery. Did the Budget Bureau take this factor into account? It is unfair to assume that Government employes, even though they are hampered with red tape, do not respond to an advantage of this kind.

The argument that the Government ought to make room in the Federal service for a greater number of employes to relieve unemployment is unsound. Prosperity can never be restored by expanding the public pay roll and thus saddling a greater tax burden upon the people. The Federal working force ought to be large enough to handle the work of the Government, and no larger. But if the present personnel could do that work in five and one-half days instead of six, why should they not be allowed to do so? No doubt such a plan would necessitate a gradual increase in the staffs of the busiest bureaus, and additional men would have to be provided for the postal service. But it seems probable that the half holiday could be arranged for most of the departments without any additional outlay.

ROBBING DISTRICT CHILDREN.

With the completion of the building program contemplated for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1932, said the Budget Bureau in reporting the local supply bill to the House, there will remain in commission but eight portable school buildings. Dr. Carusi, president of the Board of Education, was quick to point out, however, that the statement was fallacious, in that no account was taken of the fact that the District is growing and that by 1932 the school enrollment will have increased materially. Tangible evidence of the serious overcrowding of local school facilities now is at hand in the form of a decision of the Board of Education to operate Western High School on a double shift basis with the opening of the new term next February 1. First and second year students will occupy the classrooms in the afternoons, while third and fourth year students will go to school only in the mornings.

The right of the American child to an education is recognized as inalienable. It is the duty of American political subdivisions to provide adequate facilities for the education of children. In Washington, however, the child in many cases is placed in an already overcrowded school building or in an insanitary, poorly heated portable, and he is subjected to a rushed, part-time, mass-production treatment that can not be called "educational" without indulging in hyperbole. It is not the fault of the school authorities nor of the Commissioners that this should be the case. The responsibility is upon Congress.

Obviously, a new high school is needed to relieve the congestion that makes necessary a part-time system at Western. The school board recommended that an appropriation for a new high school be requested in the appropriation bill now before Congress, but the Commissioners eliminated the request before they sent the bill to the Budget Bureau for its official pruning. In view of the fact that the District's revenues are limited rigid economy will have to be practiced next year. The Commissioners were forced to pare requests for appropriations "all down the line," and the school board suffered to the extent that its request for funds for a new high school was eliminated.

With the beginning of the new term 2,019 students will be crowded into Western High School. Originally the structure was planned to accommodate but 1,350 students. It is a reproach to Congress that its niggardly policy toward the District should result in this sorry state of affairs.

SUGAR OVERPRODUCTION.

The remarkable thing about the international sugar conference, which has just closed its sessions in Brussels, is not its failure, but its close approach to success. Cuban and Javanese sugar interests had reached an agreement to limit exports before they went to Brussels to meet the leading beet sugar producers of Europe. Poland, Czechoslovakia, Belgium and Hungary agreed to the limitations proposed for them by Thomas L. Chadbourne, of New York, promoter of the conference. Germany, however, refused to cooperate, on the ground that the economic position of the Reich is such that its export program must be expanded to keep abreast of reparations payments and other international obligations. Germany has been given a month to reconsider, however.

This proposed experiment in stabilization of prices is particularly interesting because it attempts to limit exports rather than production. The world is confronted with an overproduction of sugar. The price frequently sags below the cost of production. But no one country and no combination of interests is capable of limiting production. The Chadbourne plan does not attempt to regulate conditions within the borders of the exporting countries.

The fundamental weakness of previous attempts that have been made to limit the output of staple crops is that production has been stimulated in areas outside the agreement. There is no indication that this deficiency can be overcome by limiting exports rather than production. Should the sugar exporting nations bring about an improvement in the world sugar market countries which now import their sugar may develop domestic supplies of their own. Russia is threatening to dump large quantities of sugar on the markets of Europe. A better price would undoubtedly stimulate production in the United States, the Philippine Islands and in many other parts of the world. Furthermore, corn sugar is beginning to enter into competition.

An export limitation might close to the great sugar-producing areas some of the markets they are now supplying. They would, no doubt, gain a temporary advantage, but the end might be still greater chaos for the sugar industry. But the sugar interests that are hard pressed by the current low prices are anxious to try their hand at stabilization. It remains to be seen whether they will be able to find a magic formula where other groups tampering with the laws of supply and demand have failed.

The Prince of Wales, already an expert on the ukulele and the saxophone, is taking lessons on the banjo and the guitar. The boy must have meant it when he said he was tired of being so popular.

In view of the probable delay in the naval building program, there is some comfort in the announcement that the rebuilding of Old Ironsides will be completed by midsummer.

Just imagine what would have happened in Congress if the agreement to have a harmonious session had not been reached!

Out in Idaho they're burning wheat for fuel. Next thing you know the big problem will be the coal surplus.

UNIQUE WASHINGTON

In the New York Times Magazine.

"No nation," wrote Maj. L'Enfant to President Washington in 1789, "had ever before the opportunity offered them of deliberately deciding on the spot where their capital should be fixed. * * * And, although the means now within the power of the country are not such as to pursue the design to any great extent, it will be obvious that the plan should be drawn on such a scale as to leave room for that aggrandizement and embellishment which the increase of the wealth of the Nation will permit it to pursue at any period however remote."

That period has arrived, and an American of today, reading the correspondence and the notes of the enthusiastic eighteenth-century city planner, realizes with a curious thrill that Maj. L'Enfant's future "however remote" has become our present. Aggrandizing and embellishing is exactly what the Nation is doing to Washington—erecting great public buildings, enhancing the beauty of historic shrines, parking roads and planning drives, preparing entrances and a setting that will make it the loveliest of American cities and one of the finest capitals in the world.

Washington has two inherent characteristics which set it apart from other American cities, and the men in charge of plans for its embellishing have seized on them as the keynotes of future development. One is that natural beauty of trees and parks and mirroring water spaces which is a component part of its structure and a delight to a seeing eye. The other is its historical atmosphere, its tang as of a place steeped in famous deeds, its rich warm sense of the past which closes around the visitor and sets his imagination to conjuring up old drama and rekindling ancient fires.

The natural beauty of the town has endured even in the heart of business Washington. That valuable and busy sheet of land rolling down from the Capitol to the White House, which was meadow and wood in L'Enfant's day and now is a forest of buildings in a network of streets, is set with bits of green mosaic. The Potomac, which was to be the great commercial waterway to the West, is a lovely mirror, silver in the morning, basalt starred with gold at night, repeating over and over again the ever-changing tale of the city's beauty. If you go up the Monument, or to the roof of any tall building, you will see the city below you through a mist of lacy foliage. The White House in its sumptuous setting, the long green rolling away from the Capitol balcony; Franklin Square in the misty twilight of a fall day, stars in the Lincoln Memorial Pool, and cherry blossoms in the Tidal Basin—those are the things that make the heart of Washington a delight to the eye.

Its appeal to the imagination may be more subtle, but it is no less real. The Capital is one of the few cities in this country where history is alive. Older nations are soaked in it. Tourists in Europe run their shoes ragged trying to see where the young prince died, or what place the king favored and where the queen lost her head. The Henrys, the Louis, the Napoleons are as much a part of contemporary Paris as the fishermen along the Seine and the sharp squeak of taxi horns. Seville boasts as many houses in which Cervantes wrote a page as it has rose-hung balconies or patios paved with sky-blue tiles. But most of our cities live in the present, and here in New York buildings change so frequently that a bronze plaque on a skyward reaching bank is all that reminds a passer-by of the great deeds of former years.

It is not so in Washington. There the past is part of the present, and the names of Washington, Lincoln, Jefferson, the Adamses, Jackson are almost as familiar in discussion as the name of the newest curiosity in the Senate. Houses are famous for the people who lived in them, streets are invested with the peculiar glamour that haloes the sticks and stones which inclosed a great deed or a charming scandal. The very air is full of it. It inspires newcomers out of the young West to an awed reading of history, it spreads magic abroad through Georgetown so that one seems to hear the creak of coaches and the rustle of silks and would even swear to seeing two elderly ghosts in tall hats and Inverness capes who tap their way through dim fall streets and discuss ancient political issues in pure Beacon street prose.

It is this combination of natural beauty appealing to the eye and historic memories charming the mind and the imagination which has been stressed in the regional plan for a lovelier Washington.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

TYRANT WINTER.

Winter's settled in with its bluster and its roar,
Soon we'll wake again the find the snowdrifts at the door.
Now the roses lie asleep and the maple tree is bare
And the bird house empty stands—gone is every tenant there.

There is little beauty left, every lovely bloom has gone,
Leaves have fled like refugees from an army thundering on,
And the grim invader soon will have pitched his tent in town
Posting regulations harsh which no rebel may pull down.

"Night begins at five o'clock!" Winter's posters will declare.
"All who venture in the streets must a heavy raiment wear.
I am driving back the sun! In the dark must all awake!
You must regulate your lives to the orders that I make.

"None shall plant or harvest fruit; not a garden shall be grown,
All who dare to break my laws shall by me be overthrown."
But the patient citizen shrugs his shoulders and remarks:
"This dread King will run away when the grass blades green the parks!"

Those Who Have Masters Are Slaves, Though They Call Themselves Princes and Kings.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHY is a young man so filled with the spirit of adventure, so reckless of consequences, so noble in sacrifice, so thoughtless of tomorrow?

Partly, perhaps, because nature would have him venture far to find a bride and bring new vigor to his klan. But chiefly because he has little to lose—because the joy of living and doing seems greater than the joy of having.

Years from now, when his eyes have grown dim and his jowls are fat, there will be none of the dare-devil in him. He will have properties, and his one thought will be to care for them. He will not venture forth without a guard, and at night he will bar the windows and tremble in dread of thieves when a shutter rattles or a wind-tossed bough strikes the wall of his house.

Today a gallant youth, strong and proud and unafraid. Tomorrow a soft and timid creature, bending over his money bags and shuddering at the approach of a stranger.

Nations are like that. Hardy men tempered in the heat of summer and the cold of winter, their muscles steeled by toil, their appetites whetted by want, their hearts made reckless by long endurance of hardship and poverty, compose the conquering hordes that venture all because they have little to lose and ride far in quest of rich and easy loot.

And their victims are old and decadent nations whose men have forgotten how to fight—fat, soft, rich men who live behind walls and sit among cushions, using a little of their gold to hire guards for their treasures.

Vandal and victim have made history. And the youthful, daring nation, made hardy by poverty, in time grows rich by its labors and conquests and in turn becomes fat and timid and pays tribute to the reckless.

When America was young and proud and daring—when men loved freedom and self-respect more than money—a nation of pirates on the other side of the world collected tribute from passing ships—tribute so long tolerated by other nations that it seemed a legitimate tax.

America would not pay. Reckless men with proud hearts went to sea in fighting ships and invaded the waters of the pirates, and when they had finished their work and returned home, any ship was safe anywhere while the American flag flew above it.

There were men in those days! If racketeers had come to them demanding tribute, there would have been a flat refusal, a flash of steel, and a relentless pursuit that lasted until every impudent gangster dangled in a loop of hemp.

"It's cheaper to pay than to fight," men say. It is if money is worth more than honor and self-respect.

PRO AND CON

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

Meddling in Cuba.
New York Herald Tribune.

American sympathizers with the opponents of President Machado argue that elections have become a farce. But they seem to think that a solution can be found in continued meddling by the United States. Should it be demonstrated that the Cubans are unable to conduct their own affairs unaided, the outcome would not be perpetual American interposition; it would be annexation. The Cubans, we think, ought to be left to solve their own problems. That was the original intent of the Platt amendment, and it seems unwise to strain it into a "protectorate" or an implied American sovereignty.

Judge Clark's Decision.
Detroit Free Press.

An aroma highly suggestive of special pleading, rather than of judicial consideration, pervades pretty thoroughly this sensational decision. * * * A good deal of what Judge Clark says sounds as though the young man worked hard to develop an argument in support of his own personal belief about what is good for the country. * * * It is difficult at the moment to see any chance for final support of Judge Clark's ruling.

As to Eugene Meyer.
New York World.

We know nothing of the policies he intends to pursue, but we do know that his past experience in business and in the Government service has given him an unusual grasp of the credit problems of agriculture, industry and commerce and has fitted him to render a conspicuous service at the head of the Reserve system.

Economic Recovery First.
New York Herald Tribune.

The country wants no extra session or special session of either house of Congress. For this reason it will applaud the decision of the Senate committee on foreign relations to defer consideration of the World Court protocol until next December. Attempts to obtain action on it at this time would have caused delay and would have hampered the President in his efforts to advance economic recovery. The vote of the committee, though close, may be taken as a sign that there are forces at work in Washington which reflect the prevailing view that the sooner Congress discharges its business and shuts up shop the better for all concerned.

Democrats on Trial.
Atlanta Constitution.

Fairly one-half of the voters who went to the polls of the Nation on November 4 registered their belief that a change of party, men and policies from Republican to Democrat will be for the better welfare of the Republic and its people.

The voters thereby have put Democratic leadership and party wisdom, patriotism and competency on trial. The Democratic senators and representatives in this and the next Congress are under a national civil service examination to determine whether the party can be safely trusted with full control of the Federal establishment after 1932. The election of that year will be crucial and decisive.

Discouraged Equine.
Boston Transcript.

Perhaps that horse of Senator Borah's went lame trying to find out which way his master wanted to go.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Red-headed Woodpecker Stays in Washington in Spite of the Cold. How Come?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Wednesday morning I was walking by the grounds of the Tuberculosis Hospital at Fourteenth and Upshur streets. I noticed a red-headed woodpecker perched on the limb of a dead tulip poplar tree. This species of woodpecker is the prettiest to be found in this part of the United States. Its head is a brilliant red, going down to where the neck joins the body. Its breast is white. The wings are black, but show some white when the bird is in flight. The rump is white, and the tail is black, but also shows white when the bird is flying.

What this type of woodpecker is doing in Washington at this time of the year is hard to understand. I have always been of the opinion that the readhead went south for the winter and returned in the spring. The bird did not appear to mind the cold, as it was singing (that is, if the noise which a red-headed woodpecker may be regarded as a song) and pecking away very contentedly on the dead limb.

The downy woodpecker and hairy woodpecker are often seen in the woods and parks around Washington during all the winter months, but I have never before seen the red-headed variety in Washington this late in the year. A. W. K.

Disabled Veteran Without Money or Work and With Insurance Lost Urges Payment of Bonus.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Let me add my voice as just one more disabled former service man who is in favor of paying the bonus while we are alive to benefit by it.

This bill, if passed, will do us worlds of good now and will also benefit others that are not directly concerned with it, as it will enable us to pay our bills and start the ball rolling in a time of depression.

In every emergency, national or otherwise, it is the "brave boys," but when it is a case of emergency amongst the "brave boys," then it is as Representative Patman says: "Property rights before human rights." There will be no one to pay a bonus to in 1945, because all that are living will have borrowed all that could be borrowed in little dribs and the 6 per cent interest will cut a hole in the balance.

I personally need mine, as I am out of work, have had to drop my insurance carried for seven years and also have borrowed on my bonus to pay hospital bills, and am here facing Christmas without money, work or prospects of either, so you can easily see where the bonus would benefit me. There are thousands like me.

We have helped the Near East, Far West, earthquakers, fires and everybody that needs help, so now let us begin at home—not charity—just justice. Help us! ANOTHER CRIP.

New Fare Boxes in Street Cars Ideal Method of Choking Traffic.

The the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some time ago "A Taxpayer" made a complaint about the new type of coin boxes that are being installed in the street cars. I have paid particular attention to these boxes since the complaint was made, and find that every one who enters a car makes some protest against these boxes. Many who go to place their fare in the new contraption miss the narrow slit, with the result that the fare falls to the floor, has to be located, then picked up and placed in the box. Much time is lost in this manner.

Others who have pennies or nickels to put in the box fiddle around trying to get them in for a minute or more before they discover that the small slit in the top of the box will allow only tokens and dimes to pass through. Once again time is wasted and the car is held up while waiting for persons on the platform to board the car. Those who wait on the platform can not board the car rapidly, as there is always a crowd of persons around the fare box. Thus passage to the front of the car is blocked.

Of all the inefficient methods of expediting car service the new fare box takes the cake and the candles too. R. S. K.

Farmers Can Go Ahead Now and Produce a Big Surplus of Wheat. Why Doesn't Government Buy Up Surplus Coal?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is reported in the papers that Congress is to appropriate more millions of dollars to buy the wheat the farmers can not sell to any one else. This news has no doubt caused great rejoicing among the farmers. They are now fully informed that the wheat surplus can be sold, and unless they are more foolish than I think they are they will proceed to produce a larger surplus than ever before. What the Government may do with the surplus wheat does not bother them.

Of course, any one who thinks about it at all knows that it is no function of the Government to deal in commodities, to buy and sell them. But if the Government must disregard its true functions, and deal in commodities, why does it play favorites? Why does not the Government buy the surplus of the coal producers and increase the demand for labor there? Why not buy all the other surpluses that are produced by the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker, and so make everybody happy?

A LOOKER-ON.

Time for Statesmanship in Congress to Deal With Unemployment and Drought Distress.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to commend Mr. McLean's editorial in The Post of December 16. It is eminently fair and bravely spoken. I heartily indorse it.

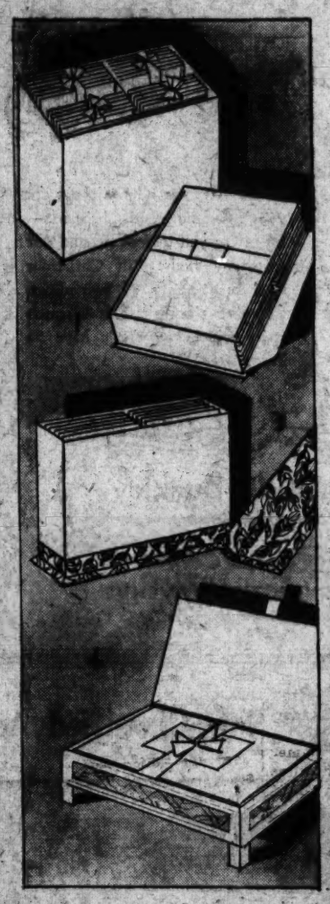

It will merit the approval of all fair-minded people. It is unfortunate that Congress contains so few statesmen and so many petty politicians. This is a period that requires patriotism and statesmanship in Congress. HUGH GALBRAITH.

Vice President Honor Guest at White House

Society Says Hoovers Shatter Another Precedent.

THE President and Mrs. Hoover entertained at dinner last night in honor of the Vice President, Mr. Charles Curtis, the function marking the second state dinner of the season. The members of the Cabinet and their wives were guests at the White House early in December.

Following close upon the heels of tea table gossip, which revolves around the privilege accorded last Tuesday night to the Speaker of the House and Mrs. Longworth in gaining priority over the Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson in giving a dinner to the Chief Executive and First Lady, the dinner last night held significant interest.

Although no question of relative rank of the Vice President and the Speaker of the House obtains, and the dinner last night was quite in order of customary procedure, yet social Washington turned its lorgnette upon the Executive Mansion, wondering what surprises the guest list held, with gossip still buzzing about the very distinguished guests assembled by the Vice President last week to meet the President and Mrs. Hoover, guests goodly in number as compared to the small and exclusive group of ten or so asked by the Speaker and Mrs. Longworth on Tuesday evening.

Incidentally the question of precedence has received impetus once more. The second date chosen by the President and Mrs. Hoover generally is given to the Secretary of State. This year, the action of the President in dining with the Speaker of the House and Mrs. Longworth prior to the top Cabinet member precipitated the question which revolves around seniority by the other members of the Cabinet and by the Speaker of the House. The dinner by the Secretary of State, although unannounced, probably will take place early in January.

The guests last night were the Vice President, Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Gann, Governor of the Canal Zone and Mrs. Harry Burgess, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Baker, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Karl Bickel, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Beckus, Dr. and Mrs. Richard C. Cabot, Mr. J. P. Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Falk, Maj. and Mrs. Charles P. George, Mr. William Green, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Hallanan, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Hanshue, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hepburn, Mr and Mrs. William Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Hilles, Mrs. Edwin T. Meredith, Dr. and Mrs. Stanley M. Rinehart, Mr. and Mrs. Worthington Scranton, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Strawbridge, Dr. and Mrs. Henry Suzzallo, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Whitney, Mrs. Herbert Hoover, jr., Mr. and Mrs. F. Lammot Belin, Mrs. Stark McMullin, Capt. Charles Russell Train and Col. Campbell B. Hodges.

Lavendar chrysanthemums, stevia and maidenhair fern formed the table decorations. The Dolly Madison service was used.

With the introduction of Mme. Frieda Hempel as soloist at the musical following the dinner, something of the glamour of bygone days of kings and royal palaces went glimmering through the audience, as the day, December 18, holds peculiar significance for the famous singer.

On that date, shortly before the World War, Mme. Hempel was summoned to the court of the kaiser, where she sang before a group of crowned heads representing the great powers of Europe. Among them were the Czar of Russia and King George of England. After the concert Mme. Hempel was decorated by the kaiser and delegated court singer of Germany. Today the kings and courts have gone their way, and it remained for the President of the United States to summon the famous singer to the White House on the day of days—December 18.

Ruth Hanna's Wedding Big Surprise Here

Mother Frowns on Match and Refuses to Attend Marriage Rites.

Topping all surprise weddings of the year, news of the marriage of Miss Ruth Hanna, granddaughter of the late Mark Hanna, "maker of Presidents," and daughter of the late Dan Hanna, to Mr. James Grinling, of Chicago, has been received. The ceremony took place at 8 o'clock last night in New Rochelle, N. Y.

Mrs. Stuart Hanna, of New York, mother of the bride, had previously voiced her disapproval of the match, and refused to be present at the ceremony. She is in Cleveland, attending business matters.

Mr. Grinling and Miss Hanna had been engaged, unofficially, for some months. But when Mrs. Hanna first knew of their intention to be married, she immediately frowned on the proposition, and refused to receive Mr. Grinling as a future son-in-law. No reason for her disapproval is known. Mr. Grinling has been married before, his first wife having died less than a year ago. Shortly after her death, Mr. Grinling became engaged to Miss Hanna.

In spite of Mrs. Hanna's refusal to be present, other members of the family gathered in New York for the wedding. Mrs. Richard Porter Davison, the former Betty Hanna, half-sister of the bride, was present as was Mrs. Richard Hume, formerly Charlotte Hanna, sister of the bride.

Mrs. Grinling is the eldest of three sisters, the youngest of whom is Sue Hanna, of sub-deb age, who is at present studying abroad, at Versailles. Mrs. Stanley Carr was also present at the ceremony. She is a daughter of Mrs. Hanna by a marriage previous to the one with Mr. Hanna, although later she was adopted by him. Mrs. Davidson, Mrs. Hume and Mrs. Carr all make their homes in Washington.

The ceremony was performed by Father Martin, who has been a friend of the Hanna family for many years. His parish is in New Rochelle.

Mr. and Mrs. Grinling will make their home in New York, where the former will engage in business. Mr. Grinling is an Englishman, and he has lived in this country for about 10 years. The bride has been a frequent visitor to Washington, and is well known by members of the younger set.

When Mr. Hume and the former Charlotte Hanna startled society several seasons ago by their elopement, Mrs. Hanna refused, at the time, to become reconciled to the match. However, in later months she received the young couple, and although she spends little time in Washington, she, apparently, is on friendly terms with them.

Maj. Robert LeG. Walsh, assistant military attache for aviation at the American Embassy in Paris, has returned to the French capital from Geneva, where he represented the air interests of the United States at the disarmament conference. His wife is the former Miss Carolyn Thom, of Washington.

Miss Sally Thacher, of Smith College, and Miss Mary Thacher, of Vassar, will come to Washington for the holidays and will be with their parents, Solicitor General and Mrs. Thomas D. Thacher. The family will go to Yeaman's Hall in North Carolina for the week-end following Christmas.

Mrs. McCook Knox will present her daughter, Miss Kathleen McCook Knox, to society on Saturday in Pittsburgh at a dinner that evening at the Pittsburgs Golf Club. Miss Knox was presented to society here earlier in the season at the home of Mrs. Peter Augustus Jay.

Miss Knox is the granddaughter of Philander C. Knox, who was Secretary of State under President Taft.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Miller, of East Orange, N. J., have been at the Dodge Hotel for several days.

350 at Brilliant Event See Debutante Make Bow to Society.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jeffries Chewning, jr., were hosts at a ball given last evening at the Mayflower when they presented their cousin, Miss Carol Gordon Herndon, of Suffolk, Va., to the young society group in Washington.

The hosts with the debutante received their guests, numbering approximately 350 members of local society from diplomatic, official and residential groups, in the Chinese room of the hotel where dancing followed later in the evening as well as in the east end grand ballroom, the remaining portion being reserved for the buffet table and enough small tables to accommodate the company. A Virginia supper, including many delicacies known only to the Old Dominion, was served shortly after midnight. Another feature of the ball was the dancing of the old-time "jig" by a southern darkey brought here especially for the occasion.

Mrs. Chewning wore a gown of black velvet with a bouquet of gardenias, and Miss Herndon's frock was pink satin with which she wore a bouquet of orchids, lillies of the valley and pink roses.

Palms and Australian ferns with yellow and rust chrysanthemums were used for decorations in both the Chinese room and grand ballroom.

The floor committee selected by the hosts included Mr. Chewning's cousins Mr. Maurice Gordon Herndon and Mr. Marshall Beverly; also Brig. Gen. William E. Horton, U. S. A.; Mr. Leroy Dougall, Mr. Archibald C. V. Wells, Mr. William Bowie Clark, Mr. Kenneth Watson, Mr. Walter Watson, Mr. Charles Delmar, Mr. Herndon Gordon Phillips, Mr. Douglas Gordon Phillips and Mr. Edward Burr Powell.

Among the debutantes present were Miss Katrina McCormick, Miss Adele Townsend Jahncke, Miss Helen Lee Eames Doherty, Miss Georgette Yerby, Miss Lucille Swift, Misses Eleanor and Margaret Calvert, Miss June Cushing, Miss Virginia Glazebrook, Miss Devereux Green, Miss Katherine Hall, Miss Sylvia Meredith, Miss Dorothy Dodge and Miss Anne Carter Bowie.

Miss Herndon will remain with Mr. and Mrs. Chewning during the holidays. Some of her classmates, Miss Mary Hansford Wallace, Miss Anne Green and Miss Virginia Darling, who came to Washington for the ball last evening, are also house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chewning.

Preceding the ball, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Armour Dodge and their daughter, Miss Dorothy Dodge, were hosts at a dinner dance in compliment to Miss Herndon in the palm court of the Mayflower.

The Friday Evening Dancing Class will hold its first dance of the season tonight at the Willard, with a number of interesting dinner parties preceding the event. The dance is the first of seven dances by this class, which is composed of prominent members of the residential, official and diplomatic circles.

Among those who will entertain at dinner preceding the dance are Rear Admiral and Mrs. Charles E. Riggs, Mr. and Mrs. Colfax Long and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Clarke.

Mr. Edgar Hamilton Funk will be at home in his studio, 1406 M street, on Saturday and Sunday afternoons, when he will have a one-man exhibit of many of his latest paintings which will be open to the public from 2 to 6 o'clock. No cards have been sent out.

YOUR NAME
What Does It Mean?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Lorimer" (also spelled "Lorymer," "Larimer," and "Lorrimer") has come into the English through the French. Its source is the Old French "lorinier," and it may mean "the spur-maker," "the bridle-maker," "the bit-maker" and "the saddler." It is sometimes found in old records with the Latinized form "Lorimarius." A certain Gervase Lorimarius is mentioned in an English document of the year 1289, and a William Lorinar is mentioned in the Hundred Rolls. The French equivalents of this name which are rather frequently found at the present time are "Lorimier" and "Lormier."

The family name "Pomfret" (also spelled "Pomfrett," "Pomfritt," and "Pomphrett") is found in the earliest English records. It is a modern form of "Pontefract" which, in turn, is derived from the Latin "pons-fractus" meaning "the broken bridge." It is very probable that all the families which bear this name have received it because of a former residence in the town of Pontefract, County York. This town was originally called Kirkby, but it received its new name after the breaking down of the bridge over the River Aire in the year 1070. In early English records "Pomfret" was frequently Latinized as "Ponsfractus" and "de Pontefracto." The Hundred Rolls mentions a Robert Pumfret, and a document of the following century mentions a Thomas de Pontefracto.

The family name "Klaus" (also spelled "Klause" and "Claus") is a shortened form of the German "Nicolaus." "Nicolaus" (English "Nicholas") is ultimately of Greek origin, and means "victory of the people."

Art Interprets the MODE

Glowing red velvet forms this smart and dignified evening gown, which needs no other adornment than its rich color and stunning lines. (Courtesy of Patou, Paris.)

Paris, Dec. 18.

HEAVEN pity the poor Lovely Lady today whose shoulders are scrawny, round or streakily and redly sun and wind burned! For the modern decolletage is a charming but pitilessly revealing affair, and the back's importance has never been more cruelly stressed.

The deep V, extending to the waistline in back, and sometimes even slightly lower than that, is perhaps the most prominent. These are variously treated, one of the most striking being an ermine border on black or deep jewel-toned velvets. Strass is very frequently used, and innumerable times the point of the V is accented by a rosette of self material, a large satin bow of contrasting color or a jeweled ornament.

Ruffles are used oh, so many times! They are applied in drooping, double, ruffled bertha effects, in quaint little off-the-shoulder models, and standing out from plain decollete straps like stiffly budding angel wings.

A third very prominent decollete treatment this season is a loose, narrow scarf which is fastened to the middle of the shoulder straps, and tie in back.

Aren't all these good reasons for preserving smooth, white and straight shoulders, at whatever the cost to your patience?

Have you given every girl and woman friend on your list some bit of charming lingerie for Christmas? O-o-oh no woman of any age can ever have enough. So, to fill in any last minute gaps, why not lingerie? Especially as it is so adorable this season. Who could resist a boudoir ensemble of palest Nile green nightie, bed jacket and peignoir, all bound in rose scallops? Or a pink georgette brassiere and pantie set, incrusted with black tulle? Or any one of the dainty and charming lingerie things one sees in the shop windows these days?

• • • •

It is gowns like the one sketched that have made the name of Patou famous all over this funny ole world. For the sheer, stark beauty of its simplicity demands the approval of the most discriminating eye, now honestly it does—all "fashun-writing" language aside. Red velvet, and a Patou model, and the very absence of any trimming giving it its charm. Oh well, now that I am back in Paris again—"Mam-z-e-l-l-e, how does the bank balance stand, or is it fallen?"

• • • •

Our children, lovely as they are, can always be counted on to do the unexpected, can't they—and isn't this their chief charm? For instance, all of us know how our kiddies have spurned the costly and beautiful gifts we have bought for them and retired to the corner happy in the possession of some bright and unusual little present that isn't worth a quarter as much. Knowing this childish tendency, I have prepared for you a leaflet giving, oh, ever so many suggestions for Christmas presents for the kiddies—presents that you make yourself with your own clever fingers for very little money, and ones that will entrance them. Your stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Washington Post will bring this illustrated leaflet to you right away. Hurry—Christmas is just practically here!

• • • •

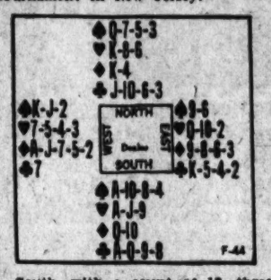

If you're not already a regular reader of Dare's weekly fashion letter you've a pleasant surprise in store. Look for it each Sunday in The Washington Post.

WORK ON BRIDGE

CONTRACT BRIDGE.

The following hand was played recently in a Duplicate Contract Bridge tournament in New Jersey:

South, with a count of 18, three suits stopped and one suit composed of Queen-Ten, was only a trifle short of a two No Trump bid. With the unstopped suit as strong as Queen-Ten and the strengthening "intermediate" Nines and Eights South was conservative in bidding one No Trump. In this case it made no difference; North had just sufficient count to bid two, and South bid three No Trumps, which became the contract.

South might have started the hand by bidding one Club, but no Trump more adequately showed the character of his hand.

West led the Five of Diamonds, the Declarer won with South's Ten. He then led his Nine of Hearts, winning in dummy, and next finessed his Clubs. East held up the King, so three Club leads from North were necessary. When the four Clubs were won and the lead was in the South hand with six tricks to the good, South was stumped. He could take in his Aces of Spades and Hearts, but if he tried to make up the needed extra trick in either suit, the adversaries would win, cash four Diamonds and save the game.

How could South have avoided this situation?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

South's best play would have been the King of Diamonds from dummy on the first trick. He could see that entries in dummy might be needed, and the chances were in favor of West's having the Ace.

If the King of Diamonds had been played on the first trick, the Clubs could have been finessed, the Nine and Eight being played under dummy's Jack and Ten; and on the third lead, the Queen from South. After that dummy could have been put in with the King of Hearts, the Ace-Jack Heart finesse taken, and the game won.

With only two Diamonds in each hand, Declarer was in dire straits as soon as West opened that suit. He knew his game was lost the moment he let the adversaries in, so he dared not touch the Spade suit except to cash the Ace.

GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS.

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great Contract and Auction booklet entitled the PLAYING PROBLEMS. Bridgers who received copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

PLAYING PROBLEMS presents eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer in complete detail.

PLAYING PROBLEMS, which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high-priced textbooks, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of The Washington Post by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request, if you send self-addressed, stamped return envelope, together with 6 cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored. Address Milton C. Work, care Washington Post.

What Today Means to You

"SAGITTARIUS."

IF December 19th is your birthday, the most propitious hours for you are from 7 a. m. to 9 a. m., from noon to 2 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. Those of an adverse tendency are from 10:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. and from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m.

December 19th will prove to be a good time for the initiation of fresh enterprise and the creation of new interests. The signs denote, too, that sports will be favored, and, in nearly all branches of work or play, there will be experienced an urge to forge ahead.

A child born on this December 19th will, for some time after birth, be disappointing. As time goes on it will acquire robusticity, and its intellectual development promises to be very marked, whilst its disposition will be affectionate and sympathetic.

Your judgment is very sound, and lack of impulsiveness will always prevent you doing regrettable things or saying things which had better be left unsaid. At all times you are cool and collected. In the ordinary affairs of life, you never lose your head, and, in times of stress, you inspire others to keep theirs. You do a powerful lot of thinking, and then express your thoughts in well-considered, but laconic, speech. You are neither loquacious, nor are you very communicative. You possess, too, the happy faculty of minding your own business, and letting other people mind theirs.

The emotional side of your character is a strong one, and your passions are deep seated. You rarely lose your temper, although, when annoyed, your remarks leave worse mental scars than those caused physically. Self-confident and sure of yourself, you are neither vain nor pretentious. Loyalty to the obligations of friendship is another valuable asset in your "make-up," and no friend will ever be let down by you. Constancy to those who are tied to you by relationship is not considered by you as a virtue. You practice it because it is part of your nature to do so.

The signs denote that your life will be crowned with success, and that those who really know you will benefit from their association with you.

Successful People Born December 19.

2. Ambrose Swasey, manufacturer, astronomical instruments.
3. Henry C. Frick, manufacturer, steel and coke plants.
4. Donald Budd Armstrong, hygienist.
5. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, capitalist.
6. Minnie Madden Fiske, actress.

FRANCES M'DONALD

A Husband's Problem.

DEAR FRANCES M'DONALD: I am a married man. Have been for four years. Two years ago my wife left me. And I believe I was to blame. A few months later I got into some serious trouble. My parents were wonderful, stood by me and saw me through. Now lately my wife has been writing to me and has come to see me and wants me to take her back—which I am eager to do. But my father has strictly forbidden me to have anything more to do with her—despite the fact that I still care for her, and that our troubles were mostly my fault. Of course she was not perfect, but who is?

Now, if I go back to her, my folks will disown me and they have been very loyal to me even in disgrace. What can I do? I will watch for your answer. RUGGLES.

You do not say, but I sense that your people feel the girl had something to do with your predicament. I can only tell you that thousands of men before you have been escorted down the path to nowhere by some woman and usually left there to climb back if they could. Few have the stamina to make the climb. You probably would not have had if your parents had not extended the needed hand. If your reason tells you that your parents are right, then have the grit to follow their sound advice. There may be about the girl some glamour that fascinates you, but that can be countered with reason and will. Men have conquered the craving for alcohol when they found that it cost them the things that make life worth while. You can conquer the craving for a certain woman if you know that she meant before and will mean again the loss of family and self-respect.

Self-preservation is nature's first law. If you are one of the weak of the world you are—more than other people—justified in thinking of your own well-being first. If you could live without the girl for two years when she forced you to do so, you can do so again for your own good. The parents who stood by matter more than the girl who left you. And your own well-being matters greatly. A second misfortune of the sort your letter describes might well result in consequences beyond the help of your devoted parents. My advice to you is to go to your parents, remain with them, build up a life for yourself, and forget the girl. If Judd Gray had followed the urgings of his reason and given up Ruth Snyder he would not have died in the electric chair. She She was the evil genius. He had been a decent and respected business man until he met her. From then on he was her slave. His 35 years counted for nothing. In two years he was a murderer. The victim of indecision. All he needed was to turn from her. They turned from each other promptly enough when trouble came.

Learn from their ghastly experience. Go to your parents and live down your mistakes.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

LANDRY'S PARALYSIS.

M. E. W. writes asking for an article on Landry's paralysis.

A young lawyer in her town has just died after a five day's illness. The diagnosis was Landry's paralysis. The household is still under quarantine. No one seems to have heard of this disease.

REPLY: The anatomical name for this disease is "acute ascending paralysis," but it is commonly given the name of a French physician who died 65 years ago. Since Dr. Dandry saw cases of it and described them, the disease is not exactly a new one. However, it is rare.

The paralysis starts in the legs, both of them, travels upward, and causes death when it involves the nerves of breathing and heart action. In many cases the illness does not last five days. Very few cases recover. There is not much fever or constitutional reaction, less than in infantile paralysis, and much less than in epidemic encephalitis.

The impression given is that death results from paralysis of nerve apparatus, the integrity of which is necessary for life, and that intoxication with the products of the bacteria is of much more importance. There is no known treatment except to keep the patient as comfortable as possible.

Recently we read day-to-day newspaper stories of a girl paralyzed from infantile paralysis who was kept alive in a Drinker artificial respiration apparatus until her disease had left the breathing centers and she could again breathe by natural methods. It is logical to think it would be worth while to try this method with cases of Landry's paralysis. The few cases that have recovered managed somehow to keep on breathing until the disease had cleared up in the breathing centers.

Acute ascending paralysis has all the characteristics of a disease caused by invasion by some bacillus of some part of the nervous system, probably the cord. Dr. Osler once wrote of at least one case due to the typhoid bacillus, but the bacterial cause of the general run of cases has not been discovered. There is no proof that quarantine is of service in protecting the community against this disease.

MIGHT HAVE X-RAY.

F. R. writes:

Twenty-one months ago I fell from a swing and hurt the lower part of my backbone. Soreness is still present and sometimes I have sharp pains in this region. Shall I ignore these symptoms?

2. Do physicians know the cause of cancer in women?

3. I have heard that using certain drugs causes cancer. Is this true?

REPLY.

1. You might have an X-ray picture taken. If this shows nothing I expect you will be better off if you ignore the soreness and pain.

2. The answer is almost—No. They know that chronic inflammation and other chronic irritations contribute to cancer and that is about all.

3. No.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Too Critical.

One frequently sees even small children who find fault and criticize their playmates. As they grow older they find themselves unpopular and lonely, excluded from the companionship and the activities which they would enjoy.

These children, who seem to practice instinctively the art of making enemies instead of friends, are usually wholly unaware of the reason for their isolation.

The sharp tongue and superior air which alienate from them the children with whom they are really eager to make friends have been unconsciously acquired in response to certain pressures that have been brought to bear upon them in the family circle.

Parents often speak critically of their own as well as of their children's friends. The children naturally take over these expressed attitudes and, being still unsophisticated, behave toward their playmates without adult disguise of courtesy.

It takes only a little of this sort of thing to make a child thoroughly unpopular, especially among older children.

Children are also made excessively critical of others because they themselves are suffering from feelings of inferiority.

Any solution of this difficulty must take into account the child's whole adjustment, especially as it is affected by the manner of his parents' love for him and their expressed judgments of him as an individual.

Emphasis on his good points, reassurance that he is warmly loved by them will do much to change his entire outlook.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

WITH vacant playhouses on their hands, managers of local theaters are being approached by promoters—promoters of this and that—all anxious to stage crazy attractions for the holiday trade. The managers, however, are pursuing the even tenor of their ways, merely watching and waiting for the day when the doors open again with regular plays. It may be, however, that a stellar debate will be held in the National, and a grand concert in the Belasco within the next five or six days. The Belasco has the first opening—on Christmas night—with John Drinkwater's play, "Bird in Hand." Four days after Christmas, the National opens with Belasco's play, "A Wise Child."

* * * *

When Boston takes a look at "Scarlet Sister Mary," with Ethel Barrymore in black-face, a great decision will be made in the managerial offices responsible for Miss Barrymore's road showing. Depending on whether the New Englanders like a glimpse of Gullah life, word comes from headquarters that the celebrated star wants to revive an old play, "Sunday," in which she appeared in 1907. It was in this dramatic work that Miss Barrymore added a line to the language: "That's all there is, there isn't any more!"

* * * *

All New York is now talking of William Bolitho's play, "Overture." This is a posthumous piece of drama based on revolutionary Europe, after the World War. A great subject, by a great writer who had never written for the stage. There are, therefore, many differences of opinion expressed all along the line—whether its shortcomings as a play and as a performance, its superabundance of ideas over action, and all that sort of thing, will permit a long run. The test will be given in a week or so. The intelligensia have already taken the play at its face value. The mob has yet to be heard clamoring at the doors.

* * * *

"Grand Hotel," incidentally, is the biggest hit New York has seen in some ten years, and it happens that a former Washington stock favorite, Romaine Callender, has quite a fat part in the play by Vicki Baum, the German novelist. Vicki—though you might never guess it by the name—is a member of the gentler sex. She succeeds in this play, where most of the men of the theater fail. Her characters are caught on the wing and pinioned to the narrow confines of the stage. The whole action—in eighteen scenes—takes place in a hotel, in the foyer, in the cabaret and in various private suites. Mr. Callender plays the part of a doctor.

* * * *

From such an astute observer as Charles Washburn, the advance agent and publicity expert for Mr. George M. Cohan, comes word that box-offices throughout the country are showing first signs of a return to normalcy. Mr. Washburn just finished a tour of the country, ahead of Mr. Cohan's "The Tavern," which played Washington not so many weeks ago. The Cohan show closed in Toronto last week. It seems that many cities in the Midwest have enjoyed lower theater prices these past few months—and that is one reason given for augmented lines at boxoffice windows. Musicians and stage hands, in these places, have seen the handwriting on the wall. Instead of a hindrance they are proving a real help to the theater—keeping it open to keep their jobs.

* * * *

Alice Brady, after two seasons of hard luck trying to find something worth while, is to have a new play and a new manager. Instead of being starred by her father, William A. Brady, who recently sponsored Grace George, his wife, in "The First Mrs. Fraser"—at the Belasco—Miss Brady will appear under the managerial banner of James Elliott in the new comedy by Lyman Brown, "Zero Hour," a play the theater boys hope will go over the top.

* * * *

As their New Year's gift to the theater, Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt will add to their repertoire "Much Ado About Nothing," opening in New York on New Year's night and alternating thereafter with the present Theater Guild success, "Elizabeth, the Queen."

The Custom of Clinking Glasses

BEFORE ANCIENT GLADIATORS WERE SENT INTO THE ARENA THEY WERE GIVEN WINE TO DRINK...TO MAKE SURE THAT NEITHER GLASS WAS POISONED THEY TIPPED A LITTLE WINE FROM EACH GLASS INTO THE OTHER. THAT'S HOW THE CUSTOM OF CLINKING GLASSES STARTED. (THANKS TO ALBERT JUDAS -NEW YORK, N.Y.)

A PHOENICIAN FISHERMAN'S DOG BITING INTO A SHELL-FISH WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS DYE... BEING THE MOST EXPENSIVE COLORING OF ANCIENT TIMES, IT WAS ADOPTED BY KINGS AND CALLED ROYAL PURPLE.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood.—New York has Atlantic City for testing its new shows, and Hollywood has Glendale to ascertain the audience reactions to its new pictures.

NANCY CARROLL

About 6 miles from the heart of Hollywood lies Glendale, the "preview town" of the movie industry. Although physically only fifteen minutes removed from Hollywood, Glendale is as far distant in the characteristics of its townspeople as is any mid-western town.

Glendale is as proud of its privilege of passing critically upon its neighboring city's product before it is marketed as Hollywood is of making most of the world's screen entertainment.

No Film Folk There.

Practically no film folk, great or small, live in Glendale; hence the audiences at previews are not at all film-wise, as are those of Hollywood. So popular is Glendale as a preview spot that as many as four new pictures have been shown there in one evening. The town averages three previews a week.

Often first-night audiences are treated—no, subjected is the word—to a picture before it has been "cut," when it still runs many reels longer than it will when released. Likely Glendale audiences are bored once in a while to see and hear twenty reels of something that ought to be in two.

Nearly every star is thoroughly familiar with Glendale, its four theaters and its people.

Here Nancy Carroll or John Crawford or Ann Harding or any other star is met just as she would be on a personal appearance tour anywhere.

Fans State Views.

At every preview cards are passed out to the audience on which comments may be written. At Glendale previews these cards are only of secondary importance, for officials receive more enlightenment of their picture's value from the response during the showing.

Among Glendale citizens is one who has made a study of these audiences. He is Don Ashbaugh, who holds a typical "small city" position as dramatic and sports editor on one of Glendale's newspapers.

"From seeing an average of seven pictures each week I have learned to know Glendale theater audiences," he says. "From the way a Glendale group receives a preview I can pretty accurately predict the degree of success or failure of a picture the country over. The crowd has never failed me yet."

SCARLET GERANIUMS FOR THE YULETIDE.

What could be more Christmassy than a plant of red geraniums flaunting a half-dozen brilliant scarlet trusses above a mass of the softest dark green leaves?

This little plant that has for so long been sort of taken for granted has at last come into its own and today is one of the most sought-after plants the florist has to offer. Especially is this true at Christmas, when it enters so beautifully into the Christmas color scheme and, I might add, can be purchased for far less than the average gift.

Aside from its sheer beauty, the geranium has much to recommend it.

First, it is a free bloomer and under the most adverse conditions will continue to send forth an abundance of blossoms.

Second it is rarely attacked by insects.

Third, it will stand almost unlimited neglect. You can water it today and forget to do so tomorrow and it will continue to blossom merrily on.

Fourth, it is utterly indifferent to temperature, thriving in any degree above 45 Fahrenheit.

It has, however, two very definite requirements—soil and root space. These are absolutely necessary for blooming plants.

A geranium must be grown in sandy soil. One composed of two parts good garden loam and one part sand is best. The sand keeps the soil open. A sandy soil, you know, is always perfectly drained and rarely acid. An open soil permits perfect freedom for the tiny rootlets to ramble as they choose.

Never be tempted at any time to offer a geranium extra stimulation in the form of liquid manure

Never overpot a geranium. This is a mistake so often made by an amateur and will always cause a plant to develop more foliage and less blooms.

To make geraniums bloom well in winter they require to be kept in pots all summer. And small pots at that, not larger than florists' style 4-inch pots—that is, 4 inches high and 4 inches in diameter. You might use 6-inch sizes, but large growers, men of wide experience, prefer the 4-inch size.

There is a reason for this. Plants kept in these small-sized pots all summer are not apt to grow much and very often they will be quite dry and neglected looking; but notwithstanding these facts, these are the plants that will bloom all winter, provided you keep them in a sunny, light room.

And here let me say—to the surprise, no doubt, of many of my readers—that it does not matter in the least if the room is quite cool, just so it be free from frost.

When you take these geraniums into the house in the fall, do not repot them, but keep them in the same small pots.

Don't Blame the Begonia—

if it is losing its glossy leaves and producing few flowers. For a tropical plant it does pretty well, don't you think?

But if you would like to have a healthy, blossom-laden plant, why not write for a leaflet on begonias which has proved very helpful to numerous readers? Be sure to inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and write to

JEAN'S SANTA CLAUS - - - - By Julie Anne Moore

CHAPTER XXIX.

Sandy had not wanted Jean to return to her room alone, but the doctor had settled that. "The blow on his head may not be serious," he told her, "but it was sufficient to render him unconscious for a time, and I shall be able to tell more about it tomorrow * * *."

"But * * *" Jean asked anxiously * * * "the place on his shoulder * * * where he was shot * * *?"

The doctor's smile reassured her. "A slight laceration," he declared. "But at the same time, there's no sense in taking a needless risk. He must stay here, preferably in bed. Tomorrow * * *."

"Yes, of course," Jean agreed quickly, and looked very gravely at Sandy as if to tell him that orders were orders and he had no alternative but to obey them.

So Jean went home alone, and found Philip's letter, and spent most of the night crying, and praying that Sandy's injuries were not serious.

All of which may have helped, for when she was admitted to his living room next by an extremely grave, oldish Negro servant, she found Sandy shaking the doctor's hand and artfully maneuvering him toward the door.

"He's an obstinate young man," the doctor told her good naturedly. "Another day in bed would do him no harm, but he refuses to listen. However, I think he will survive."

The doctor departed. For a long moment they stared at each other self-consciously. Then the laughter was in Sandy's eyes again, and he took her hand and led her to a chair before the little fire in the open hearth, and pulled up another for himself.

Their talk was of everything * * * and nothing. Bit by bit the events of the afternoon before were revealed until, at 11 o'clock when Sandy observed that they should begin to think about luncheon, their stories were told.

Sandy had arrived in the city, after his return from Boston by air, a little after 4. He had gone directly to an attorney's office on business. A quarter of an hour later he had taken a taxi to the apartment, feeling the need of a bath and a change of clothes after the long, stuffy ride in from the air field.

It was when he stepped into his bedroom that something struck him on the back of the head with such force that he stumbled forward and fell on his hands and knees by the bed. Stunned, he turned and saw a little man in a black derby step from behind the door and move stealthily backward into the reception hall.

Sandy, his half-blind eyes on the retreating figure, was trying to get to his feet when there was a flash of fire and the sharp report of a revolver. He remembered nothing after that until, opening his eyes, he discovered Jean, lying unconscious on the floor beside him, and thought immediately that he as out of his head. But he managed to get to the telephone and ask the house operator to get a physician at once.

"And * * * Jean asked * * * "you didn't recognize the little viper in the black derby?"

"Recognize him * * *?" Sandy asked, puzzled. "Why, no. Some thug hoping to rifle the place while I was away, I suppose."

"Oh, no. He was Slim Diggers, the little man who came up to Marcia's apartment with Fergeson the night I was there," Jean informed him.

"And you saw him as he ran out?"

She nodded. "I couldn't be mistaken. I told you about him once, you know, and you were almost angry that I hadn't told you sooner."

Sandy smiled grimly. "Yes, I remember. I reported it to the police; but I suppose they couldn't find him." And after a moment, "But then we only suspected him. Now, if you can identify him, we have the goods on him. I think I had better go to police headquarters before we lunch, Jean. Neither of us is safe until that man is caught."

They were to meet at 2 o'clock. Jean went first to the office and called Miss Trelling at the factory. "We're all running a temperature," Miss Trelling laughed. "Absolutely nothing but an act of Providence can keep us from finishing by tomorrow night."

Jean repeated this report to Lionel, a very busy and a very happy young man, who promptly called for three cheers and provided them himself.

"Did you have a visitor sometime this morning?" he asked. "Or weren't you home? Mollie was going out. She's gotten her license now, and I'm looking for an accident report any minute."

Jean laughed easily. "Leave it to Mollie to take care of herself," she told him. "She still has her key to the room. Do you suppose she's waiting there for me?"

He didn't know, of course, and having an hour before she was to meet Sandy, she decided to go out.

But neither Lionel's car nor Mollie were in evidence when she arrived. Instead she found in her mail box a yellow envelope on the back of which was written in pencil: "Sorry I missed you, darling. Tell Lionel when and where I can find you. Found this half-way under your door, but decided it was safer in the mail box. Hope it isn't bad news. Love,

"MOLLIE."

She turned the envelope over then and saw that it was a telegram. That it could be bad news never once occurred to her since she could think of no misfortune that had not already befallen her. But when she unfolded the yellow sheet and saw in bold capitals the name at the bottom, she felt suddenly ill.

The message was necessarily, to the point: "Decided to buy cottage without waiting reply stop See you Christmas * * *" "PHIL."

* * * *

Sandy had arranged for Ellen's adoption. He told her about it as they lunched in the same hotel grill room to which Lionel had taken her long ago.

"They have one of the most beautiful estates in Boston. Not a young couple, but youthful in their zest for life. And a large quantity of money, which may or may not be fortunate."

"But * * *" Jean asked anxiously * * * "do they understand? Her parentage * * *"

"Everything * * * I had to put all the cards on the table, of course. They were a little shocked, but * * * they want her."

"And Miss Wood * * * is she to go, too?"

Sandy nodded, smiling. "I think they were a little relieved to know that the child would be accompanied by someone who knows what she requires. Physically, I mean. They never had but one child of their own, and that was a great many years ago."

Jean said quietly: "How good you are, Sandy. I wonder if there's another man in the world who would do for others what you are doing, constantly * * *?"

Sandy laughed as if she had said something very amusing, but the color rose in his cheeks. "You're trying to make me feel badly," he declared. "Sometimes when I think of the service I might render, if I had the courage to obey my impulses, I wonder I don't have a heavy conscience all the time. The world is full of trouble, Jean, and those of us who might make it a better place to live in, do nothing about it."

Jean disagreed. "I can't see that the world's wrong," she told him seriously. "The trouble is with us mortals. We aren't happy unless we're in difficulty. We're made that way. And you're only half right in saying that nothing is done to make it better. Think of the hundreds of thousands of dollars being spent to give the poor a little happiness at Christmas. Money provided by those who rarely or never come in contact with those they help. Why, look at your own father * * * spending a small fortune to bring Santa Claus to New York's little girls, a great many of whom would otherwise have nothing."

But if Sandy heard her, it was in a vague, unintelligible way, for his eyes, drinking in the glowing beauty of the girl before him, said all too plainly that his thoughts were not of the troubles of the world, nor of his father's own peculiar philanthropy. Jean saw, and understood * * * and felt a sharp thrust at her heart. She wanted suddenly to say something * * * anything that would carry them back to neutral ground. But her throat filled up, and she knew that just when happiness was nearest, she must turn her back upon it.

"I had almost lost hope, Jean * * * until yesterday." His voice came to her across the table, soft and ardent. "You told me once that you were to be married, on Christmas day. Remember? * * * You were so utterly final about it * * * But when you opened your eyes there in the apartment yesterday * * *"

Something in her flushed face checked him suddenly, almost violently. He saw her take her purse from her lap and presently take out a yellow sheet.

She did not look at him, but quietly laid the open telegram on the table before him. There were no tears in her eyes, no outward sign. To the casual observer at another table, she might have been considering the pattern on the handle of her fork. But inside, hidden from the curious, invisible even to Sandy, her heart was breaking.

His voice, quiet and a little hoarse, broke the long silence. "Then it's all settled * * *"

"Yes * * * You see * * * he has bought the house. With all the money he has in the world."

Sandy nodded, slowly. "I see. And * * * you promised. You are very fond of him, Jean?"

She did not answer. Inside the pain was almost unbearable.

"Does he love you as I love you * * * Or isn't it love at all that holds you to him, but * * * a foolish promise * * *?"

"An insane promise * * *" Jean admitted desperately, * * * "but binding."

Sandy said angrily, "And you'll ruin your life because he holds you to a silly pact * * * He will not!"

Jean's immediate surprise gave way slowly to a sad little smile. "If that's what it means, Sandy," she told him quietly, "I'm afraid he will * * * Why are you smiling * * *?"

Hours later, as she tossed, sleepless, in her bed, she was still asking the question; but she could find no answer, no excuse for that half smile that had quivered on his lips while her own heart bled.

It was that same night, while Jean lay wide-eyed, dry-eyed, in the darkness of her room, that the police emerged from a village speakeasy raid with a short, thin wiry little man in a black derby in custody.

So his knees interfere when he walks;
To say the least
He's an obstinate beast

BAER AND SCHAAF IN FISTIC SPOTLIGHT TONIGHT

Kummer Dies, Ending Turf Career

Man o' War's Noted Jockey Succumbs at 31 to Pneumonia.

Driven From Saddle by Weight; Rode in Famous Duels.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Clarence Kummer, whose heels booted the great Man O'War home and drove some of America's finest thoroughbreds to victory less than a decade ago, died of pneumonia today at his home in Jamaica, Queens. He had been ill only a week. He was 31 years old.

Kummer, one of the outstanding jockeys of his time, was driven from the saddle by increasing weight some time ago after a career stretching from his apprentice days in 1915 through triumphs in almost every important stake on American tracks.

His mounts, among them Man O'War, Chance Play, Audacious, Snob, Blazes, Westy Hogan, Naturalist and Ladkin, brought him home first usually after brilliant rides and nose-to-nose duels in the stretch, in such classics as the Preakness, Suburban, Realization, Belmont, Travers, Withers, Juvenile, Toboggan, Tremont, Nursery, Champlain, Grand American and Manhattan. The only major stakes that evaded him were the Kentucky Derby and Belmont Futurity.

Last Battle With Weight Last Spring.

Last spring, seeking a comeback, Kummer went into training for several months under "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons, conditioner of Gallant Fox, but he could not remove enough weight to get back to active riding. He was negotiating for a position as trainer when he became ill, probably as an indirect result of his exertions in the spring.

Two magnificent rides stand out above all others in Kummer's colorful career. Famous as a strategist and finisher, Kummer brought Man O'War from the ruck in the stretch of the Dwyer stakes in 1920 and through sheer generalship and lavish use of the whip drove the great Riddle thoroughbred home in front of John P. Grier, Harry Payne Whitney's star.

In 1924 Kummer was credited with another masterful bit of riding in an international match race classic of that year. He was astride Ladkin in a neck and neck finish in which his mount defeated Epinard, famous French racer.

Rode Man o' War in Sir Barton Defeat.

Kummer rode Man o' War in almost all of his 3-year-old engagements, including the decisive victory over Sir Barton, Canadian champion, in a match race for $75,000 at Windsor, Ont., in 1920. This was the last race in which the famous pair teamed, but Kummer continued to ride the "big shots" of the turf for years afterward.

As an apprentice rider for Sandy McNaughton, almost fifteen years ago, Kummer was a sensation and rose rapidly to a position where many of the turf experts hailed him as the greatest of all jockeys. He rode for Joshua S. Cosden, Mrs. Charles Amory, Frederic Byers, H. W. Sage, Mrs. Louis Viau, and A. Charles Schwartz in addition to the mounts of the Belmont, Riddle and McNaughton Stables.

His honesty and integrity were never questioned on a race track, although he was set down on several occasions for unbecoming conduct on the courses. He was barred from New York tracks in 1928 as a result of a contract dispute. He was restored to good standing later.

He leaves a widow and two children. A brother, Eddie, won several victories last fall on Harry F. Sinclair's horses.

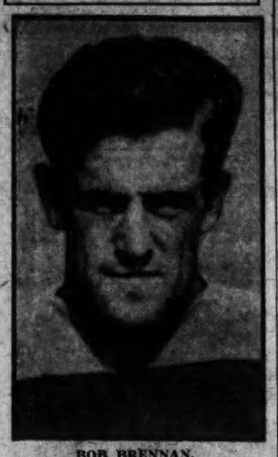

Good Mounts Thrilled Him, Kummer Declared

Clarence Kummer, who succumbed to an attack of pneumonia at his home at Long Island, N. Y., yesterday, was a prime favorite with racegoers who were accustomed to wager on his mounts regardless of the form of his horses.

"To me there is no greater thrill than riding a real good thoroughbred," Kummer used to say. "And having piloted, among others, such great horses as Man o' War, John P. Grier, Exterminator, Audacious, Snob II and Ladkin, I have no complaint that my riding career has been lack-

ALABAMA'S DRILLS AT HOME END

Team to Leave for Coast Today; Send-Off to Be Quiet.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Dec. 18 (A.P.).—With a final drill beneath drab skies, Alabama's Crimson Tide today put aside cleats and moleskins until December 23, when work will be resumed at Pasadena, Calif.

There will be no rousing send-off tomorrow as the Tide rolls westward to engage Washington State at Pasadena in Rose Bowl on New Year's Day. It is Alabama's third trip to the West Coast in six years.

Most of the students remaining on the campus will be attending classes and the others are treking homeward for Christmas.

Echoes of Wednesday night's pep meeting were still being heard tonight as final preparations to board the Crimson Tide special were made. Wallace Wade said at the pep meeting, his last pregame speech in Tuscaloosa, he hoped the Tide would "give you a happy New Year with a victory."

Campbell, Alone, Is Ailing.

The Tide was in fine fettle except for John "Monk" Campbell, sprinting ace, who twisted a knee a few days ago in practice.

What method of attack the Tide will use against the Cougars remained a question, although it was certain that a new combination would be tried and many new plays would be turned.

In addition to the official party of 82, including 35 players, coaches, President Denny and university officials and sport writers, railway officials have announced a number of other passengers will be aboard. Gov. Bibb Graves, due to the press of official business, found that he would be unable to head Alabama's westward caravan. The governor expressed hope that he might be able to take a later train to California.

While the Crimson Tide special will roll into Pasadena, December 23, railways have announced that two or three special trains will head for the West Coast December 26, carrying the main body of the Alabama rooting section.

Legion Riflists Win International Match

Indianapolis, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Headquarters of the American Legion was notified today that the Legion Pidac Rifle Team won first place in the 1930 international rifle match sponsored by Pidac, the Interallied Veterans organization.

The official report from the International Rifle Association of Paris showed the legion team scored 1,948 points out of a possible 2,000. Belgium was second with 1,687 points and France third with 1,659.

W. & L. Five Routs Lynchburg Club, 50-14

Special to The Washington Post.

Lexington, Va., Dec. 18.—Unleashing a heavy scoring second-half attack, Washington and Lee tonight opened its 1930-31 basketb lall schedule, swamping the Shawnee Club, of Lynchburg, 50-14.

The first half found the Generals moving slowly, and the whistle found them in front, 9-5, but during second period Williams, lanky center, led his mates with a barrage of two-pointers that left the opposition far in the rear.

Brennan, End, Named G.U. Captain

Massachusetts Youth, Star All Season, Is Honored.

Students Vote Scalzi Most Valuable Player on Squad.

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY took official recognition of the outstanding play of Bob Brennan at right end during the past football season by electing him to the captaincy of the 1931 team yesterday.

The slightly-built Brennan, a graduate of Dean Academy, in Massachusetts, blossomed into a regular end last season after a year's apprenticeship with the varsity squad in 1929, and became a fixture at the post from the start of the 1930 campaign at the training camp at Point Lookout, Md. He is a junior at Georgetown. His home is in Franklin, Mass.

Brennanx supported his natural football ability with an aggressiveness that endeared him to Coach Tom Mills and Georgetown followers, offsetting his lack of weight. He was one of the most deadly tacklers on the squad with an especial facility for getting down under punts.

Adept Receiver Of Passes.

Brennan also figured prominently in the Georgetown forward passing attack. He was an adept receiver, specializing in short passes in scoring territory. It was his blocking on one play in the Michigan State game that removed the last defender and enabled Johnny Scalzi to score what proved to be the winning touchdown.

Formal recognition of the play of Quarter Back Johnny Scalzi was also made last night when the Georgetown student body voted him the most valuable member of the squad. He was the recipient of a loving cup symbolic of the honor presented by Jos. A. Willner & Co. Father Vincent J. McDonough, prefact of discipline, made the presentation in the presence of the student body last night at Ryan refrectory.

Mt. Vernons Win 29-22 Over Strong Trinity "5"

The Mount Vernon, the United Brethren and the Calvary Drakes Basket Ball Teams returned victories last night in their regular scheduled Sunday School League games played at the Y. M. C. A.

The feature of the night was the strong fight put up by the Trinity five before bowing to the champion Mount Vernons by the score, 29-22. The Mounts, however, with Timmns scoring 15 points, were able to keep clear of their rivals throughout the game.

In the two other bouts, United Brethren won, 20-13, from Atonement while the Drakes were 24-15 victors over the Calvary B. Y. P. U.

Bass Signs to Defend Title Against Massey

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Benny Bass, junior light weight champion, signed articles today to defend his title against Lew Massey, of Philadelphia, in a 10-round bout at the arena on January 5. Massey's signature evidently had been obtained.

G. P. O. LEAGUE.

The Document Team gained a tie for the lead with the Mono quintet last night in the Government Printing Office Basket Ball League by defeating the latter club, 16-11 at Central High School. Both now have won four games and lost one.

In another game, the Job Room dealt the Hand Section Team its fifth straight defeat, 24 to 15. Play in the league will resume on January 8.

McLean Five Rallies To Defeat Leesburg

Special to The Washington Post.

McLean, Va., Dec. 19.—A sensational last half rally enabled the McLean Volunteer Fire Department basketers to pounce the Leesburg quintet tonight on the McLean floor, by a 37 to 32 score.

The visitors led at the intermission, 22 to 12. But with "Bevo" Hileman showing the way, the McLeans rallied to knot the count early in the third period and then forge into a small lead which they held to the end.

Hileman with 14 points was the leading scorer of the contest. Kearns, McLean center, also showed to good advantage. Presgraves and Murphy were the big guns in the Leesburg play.

Canadian Hockeyists Jeopardizing Status

Winnipeg, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—More than a score of Canadian amateur hockey stars may be branded as professionals under a new ruling of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

The ruling states that players who try out with professional teams stand suspended and can be reinstated only at the annual meeting of the Amateur Union.

Since the next annual session of the union will not be held until the latter part of 1931, players who have returned to amateur competition after pro try-outs would be banned from simon-pure play during the current season.

FRAT FIVE SCORES.

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., December 18.—Alpha Delta Omega Fraternity basketers experienced little trouble in defeating the Indian Head Marines tonight on the Alexandria Armory floor by a 44-to-18 count. The Alexandrians took the lead at the start and were never headed thereafter.

Davis, of the Alpha Deltas, with half a dozen field goals, was the leading scorer of the contest. West, Dreifus and Williams also starred for the Fraters. Sherman and Burton looked best for the Marines.

U. S. IN HOCKEY TOURNEY.

New York, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—An American team probably will be sent abroad to compete in the world's amateur championship hockey matches to be held at Krynica, Poland, January 8 to 11, Avery Brundage, president of the Amateur Athletic Union, announced today.

Hinkel Shames Fiction Hero, Gaining New Central Honor

Six-Letter Man Is Named Class Head; Stars in Studies.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

PAUL HINKEL was elected president of the February graduating class of Central High School yesterday.

Just as practical men and philosophers do not inhabit the same body, so is it a rarity when a stellar athlete finds time to become a student who gathers A's and B's with the surehandedness with which he gathers in passes from Larry Pinckney. The rarity becomes even more rare when the class, as a man, chooses him to lead them in what is perhaps the most vital moment of their current lives—graduation.

Merriwell Was No Hinkel.

The brown-haired Central youth would be the first to condemn his being classed with Frank Merriwell, and there is no attempt to put him alongside of Mr. Standish's admirable and virile gentleman. It so happens that Hinkel and Merriwell can not be named in the same sentence. A glance through my library of the great Yale wonder man fails to give any inkling as to whether he ever deigned to appear at Durfee, Farnam or Connecticut Halls for exposition of the difficulties of calculus, applied Algerian or the use of the king's English.

Hinkel garnered his sixth "C" yesterday when he was awarded for his services with Central's grid team during the season just closed.

game of 1929; a split eye that required four stitches, along with concussion of the brain, received in the Devitt-Central contest of 1929; two fractured ribs and a broken collarbone, received in the Central-Tech game this year—Hinkel has had time to recuperate and win for his school a national scholastic 220-yard dash championship in the 1929 Devitt meet; to establish a local monarchy in the 220, to become a member of the relay team which broke the C Club record of 3 years' standing, to become president of the junior and senior councils, secretary of the "C" Club, president of the Sigma Delta Fraternity and secretary-treasurer of the Athletic Association.

Twelve members of the group of stars from Eastern and Big Ten Colleges who will meet an all-coast team at San Francisco December 27 in a charity game were captains of their respective squads during the past football season. They are pictured above, left to right, (Front row)—Fogarty, of Brown, half back; Gardner, of Villanova, full back; Siano, of Fordham, center; Brockmeyer, of Minnesota, quarter back; Hart, of Colgate, half back. Rockne Is at Clinic, Fearing Recurrence of Leg Ailment

ROCHESTER, Minn., Dec. 18 (A. P.).—Worn by the strenuous foot ball season just ended, Knute Rockne, famous coach at Notre Dame, was registered at the Mayo Clinic here again tonight for a physical inventory.

Although Rockne said he feared a recurrence of an old leg ailment which laid him low last spring, his physician, Dr. C. J. Barborka, said a preliminary examination revealed the coach may be suffering from a fatigued physical condition. Further examinations will be made later, but Dr. Barborka said he expected to find nothing organically wrong.

Rockne said he would remain here about two weeks for a thorough examination and rest and "to make sure" that the recent slight twitching in a leg is not a return of plebitis which brought him here on a stretcher six months ago.

Fatigue Is Ailment Says Doctor.

Dr. Barborka, who has taken care of Rockne for the past two years, said his preliminary examination revealed no definite symptoms and he believes his patient is suffering from fatigue "induced by strain of emotions" to which he was subjected during the football season.

"Mr. Rockne looks fine," the physician said, "except that he is tired from strain and from making three or four speeches every day. His condition is just what is expected of any one who has gone through such a strenuous season. I don't see any reason for confining him to his bed. On the contrary, he should be perfectly ambulatory at present."

Rockne to Attend Banquet.

Dr. Barborka said it would be at least three days before he could announce anything definite on the coach's condition. Meanwhile Rockne will rest, except for attendance at a high school football banquet here tomorrow night.

Frank Leahy, first string tackle of the Notre Dame Ramblers, accompanied his coach to the clinic. Leahy injured his knee early in the season and has been out of the game since. He will undergo an examination to determine whether surgical attention is needed.

ON THE SIDELINES by BRIAN BELL

THE player who ran the wrong way in the football game; the lad who tossed a basket ball into the wrong basket, and the other "goats" of athletic contests, will have to move over to make room for another club member.

J. E. Griffin, full back for the high school football team of Florence, S. C., has qualified for initiation.

The pigskin, it seems, was on Florence's 25-yard line in a game with Columbia, S. C., high. Griffin went back to punt. The ball left his foot, went straight back over his head, crossed the goal line and bounded across a fence beyond the end, resulting in an automatic safety.

The ball had to be retrieved from the outside of the field before the game could go on.

This performance will take high rank for the season among the miscarried efforts of earnest young football players. Reports from some of the outlying districts have told of players catching their own punts, but they only lost the ball and no automatic scores were counted against them.

One player caught his own pass, but it struck one of the opposition athletes before bounding back into the arms of the passer and a gain instead of a loss was recorded.

MANY football fans who never saw the Boston Red Sox play, and never will, hope that Bob Quinn, the popular president of the American League's cellar tenant will "get a break" in 1931. John (Shano) Collins, once a great major league player and a successful manager in the minors, will try to succeed where some great baseball leaders have failed.

Bill Carrigan could not get the Sox out of last place and Heine Wagner, his assistant, failed to do any better when he was promoted to the baseball bridge.

Quinn is an eternal optimist and he believes that if at first he fails to succeed, he should try, try again.

The players like Quinn and will hustle for him, but unfortunately in the last few years their spirit has not been enough. They needed some base hits.

Quinn never had a contract in his long baseball career as an executive and with Carrigan the two old friends did not bother about contracts until it was time to file a document at league headquarters.

"There was no use for any formality between us," said Quinn, speaking of his relations with Carrigan.

"If Bill did not want to stay, I wouldn't want him to do so, and as far as I was concerned I wanted him just as long as he was willing to go along with us."

Quinn probably knows baseball players as well, or better, than any other major league president.

He speaks their language.

Maybe he will get the break that has been a long time coming.

GEORGE TOPORCER, one of the first men to make spectacles standard baseball equipment, will get his chance as a manager at Jersey City. The International League club has had poor success in recent years, and is a good spot for the former St. Louis Cardinal infielder to make a reputation. If he can get the club up in the race he will be a hero.

Toporcer was the leading figure at the meeting of the board of arbitration, the minor league supreme court, at its 1929 meeting at Chattanooga, Tenn. He had been suspended and fined as a result of a mix-up during the playing of the "Little World's Series," between Rochester and Kansas City, and unless the "court" lifted the suspension Rochester would be deprived of his services during most of the 1930 season.

The case was heard behind locked doors, but the minor league board members did not bother to pull down the shades and curious spectators could see the deliberations from a distance.

Branch Rickey, eloquent vice president and general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, appeared to plead the case of the accused player and from his fiery gestures, it must have been one of the Michigan man's greatest efforts.

As a result of Rickey's earnest appeal, perhaps, George was reinstated with a nominal fine. Scores of persons who saw Vice President Rickey's speech wished that it might have been their privilege to hear it.

RALPH DE PALMA, veteran automobile racing driver, speaking over the radio at Los Angeles, praises the younger generation of speed kings.

Youth Has No Chance, Referee Halting Unequal Battle.

LONDON, Dec. 17 (A.P.).—Primo Carnera, Italian man mountain, brushed aside the puny efforts of Reggie Meen, English heavyweight, in less than two rounds at Albert Hall tonight. The referee stopped the unequal struggle after Meen had been floored twice in the second round.

Meen, a curly haired, pink cheeked English youth of 203 pounds from some shoe factory in the north of England, was game enough and received a great ovation for his efforts in the first round when he held the 268-pound Venetian on fairly even terms. But it was a contest between a mountain and a mouse and Meen never really had a chance.

Crowds Want Bout Stopped.

Carnera settled down to business in the second round and floored his man twice and the big crowd yelled for the referee to halt the carnage.

It was Carnera's first appearance in England since his American tour and he showed improvement in speed and footwork.

The Carnera-Meen bout topped a heavyweight boxing carnival in which eighteen other behemoths of the ring, all beefy and all raw, participated.

Among the crowd were a number of Indian potentates, including the Maharajahs Patiala and Alwar.

Army Coach Minus Court Dependables

Special to The Washington Post.

West Point, N. Y., Dec. 18—The opening of the Army basket ball season with Harvard here next Saturday will find Leo Novak, head coach, minus the services of several of his best players. Military Academy regulations will keep Ray Stecker, star forward, and Ed Messinger, a guard, on the bench until after the first of the new year, as one month must elapse before a cadet engaging in one sport can take up another. Both Stecker and Messinger were on the football squad. They each won letters in basket ball last season. "Doc" Strother, cocaptain of the team, will also be unable to play because of the recurrence of an injury from last season.

As Harvard defeated the cadets last year 30 to 25, Novak was anxious to put his strongest team on the court Saturday. His tentative lineup for the game includes Blanning and Krueger, forwards, each of whom won letters last year; Epler at center, a sophomore who won numerals on the plebe team, and Abell, another letter man, at guard. Adams at the other guard position did not play last season because of illness.

Berger, of Braves, Seeks $12,500 Wage

Los Angeles, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Walter Berger, who hit more home runs for the Boston Nationals last season than any Brave slugger since Babe Ruth, wants a "real big league salary," and says he'll be a holdout if he doesn't get it.

Berger is picking up extra money playing winter league ball here. He disclosed today he is asking President Emil Fuchs for at least $12,500 to play on his club next year. Last season he hit 38 circuit clouts but his pay was little more than he would have received had he remained with the Los Angeles Angels, he said.

Young Boxers Show Wares At Garden

Baer Brings Record of Knockouts East for First Time.

Sharkey Will Second Schaaf, His Protege; Both Hit Hard.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—A couple of heavyweights from the sophomore class, Max Baer, of San Francisco, and Ernie Schaaf, of Boston, will grab the spotlight in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night to display what brand of power and ability, if any, lurks in the youngsters of the division.

Baer, a 200-pound puncher, with a record of 24 knockouts in 27 matches, is new to Eastern rings, and Schaaf, a former sailor with more experience, has never appeared before in the Garden. Schaaff is a protege of Jack Sharkey, however, and holds two decisions over Tommy Loughran. Sharkey is scheduled to second him tomorrow night.

Steal Thunder of Veterans.

With the line-up forming for the next heavyweight title go next June, and all the old familiar faces—Sharkey, Young Stribling, Victorio Campolo, and Max Schmeling—failing to excite the faithful, the youngsters have an exceptional opportunity to steal the thunder of the veterans. A decisive victory for either will provide the element of youthful punch and ability the heavyweight picture now lacks. Baer particularly, because of his punch, size, and general color, can win himself a shot at one of the leading contenders by scoring a knockout.

The Californian has impressed the critics during his training workouts at Gus Wilson's camp at Orangeburg. Baer has a splendid physique, a wallop in either mitt, and just enough youthful braggadocio and enthusiasm to catch the eyes of fandom. He has been swaggering about town in high-powered raiment with a liveried chauffeur and a private car the size of a small locomotive. He believes he will knock Schaaf over in four or five rounds. The bout is scheduled for ten.

Schaaf Staging Comeback.

Schaaf, who followed Jack Sharkey's trail from the Navy to Boston rings, is a smart boxer and a sharp hitter. For some time he was regarded as the likeliest of all the younger heavyweights, but a reaction set in and only recently has he climbed back to favor with victories over Loughran and Johnny Risko. He has been working hard with Sharkey in Boston.

Joe Banovic, of Binghamton, N. Y., and Bob Olin, New York, light heavyweights, meet in a ten-round semi-final.

Pocket Piece Good Omen, Is Belief

'A's Mound Ace Won Easy Game on Day He Got Medal.

Says Team Play Was Secret of Success of Mackmen.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—It was not alone the right arm of George Earnshaw that helped to win the American League pennant and the world baseball championship for the Philadelphia Athletics last season, but a lucky pocket piece was an important factor, said the pitching ace today.

Earnshaw was the guest speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Poor Richard Club. He told the members the lucky charm was a bronze medal about the size of a half-dollar, with the likeness of Benjamin Franklin mounlded on one side and "The Poor Richard Club wishes you good luck" inscribed on the other.

George was given this medal last spring, and a few days afterward he won an easy ball game and decided to carry it with him in all ball games. "I stuck it in my uniform every time I pitched."

Lost Charm Before Series Started.

A few days before the world series began, Earnshaw said, he lost the medal, and it was not found until the second day of the series. "I carried it in that game and won, and I have had it with me ever since," said George.

Earnshaw said the Athletics won because the players were willing to submerge their individual records to aid in team play.

"It's not hard to compile a record as a winning pitcher," said George, "when you have a greater pitcher like Lefty Grove hanging around and waiting to finish up a game in case you weaken."

Mohawks Will Add Only 2 New Players

Irked by persistent reports that the Mohawks were "padding up" for their next Sunday's clash with the St. Mary's Celtics, Manager Patsy Donovan, of the Hawks, yesterday denied emphatically that this was true, and declared that only two new players will be signed for the tilt, both of whom will take the place of regular men who are incapacitated with injuries.

Donovan also said that so far he had not been able to secure the services of the two players he desired, although he expected to do so shortly. He refused to reveal the identity of these men until after he has definitely signed them. They will replace Briggs, lineman, who has a bad shoulder, and Coach Abbey, back, who is still suffering from a broken leg.

The Virginians, augmented greatly by a number of Philadelphia all-Marine performers who played under aliases, plastered a 13-to-0 defeat on the champion Apaches last Sunday. Managers Charles Corbett and Jack Tulloch, of the Celtics, are expected to use the same players against the Mohawks this Sunday.

Woodward 20-9 Victor Over Georgetown Prep

Woodward School basketers scored their first victory of the season yesterday when Georgetown Prep was defeated by the score 20-9 at Garrett Park.

Woodward displayed unlooked-for teamwork, working the ball down the home court of the losers in fine fashion, and showing five men who capitalized scoring chances.

However it was the defensive play of Woodward which won for them the game. Only one Prep basket was the result of a dribble through the Woodward defense, the others resulting from long potshots.

ing in 'kick.' I have been astride the winner of every stake race east of the Mississippi at least once, with the exception of the Kentucky Derby and the Futurity.

"Never shall I forget the thrill of winning an international race—the cheering crowds, wild over the triumphs of a home-bred, yet chivalrous enough to appreciate the brave efforts of a visitor."

Kummer was reported to be worth $500,000 as he had accumulated desirable property on Long Island in the last few years. Most of his real estate holdings were located in Jamaica.

Kummer began riding in 1916. His father was a blacksmith in Brooklyn. Sandy McNaughton gave Kummer his first job around the tracks and after eight months put him on a horse at Pimlico. He won his second race.

"He rode a great many horses for me and never gave me a bad ride," was Mr. Riddle's tribute to Kummer.

Special to The Washington Post.

AGUA CALIENTE, Baja California, Mexico, Dec. 18.—Entries of 73 outstanding professional golfers and eleven amateurs already have been received for the second annual Agua Caliente $25,000 Open Golf Tournament which will be held at the Agua Caliente Golf Club here January 13, 14, 15 and 16.

About half the professionals now entered will be exempt from qualifying in the two-day test, December 23 and 24, which will be the final factor in determining the field to compete for the $10,000 first money and other prize awards, totaling $25,000.

Outstanding golfers, exempt from qualifying, include the first 32 in the 1930 National Open, the low 32 in the qualifying round for the 1930 championship of the Professional Golfers Association, foreign golfers and all prize winners in the 1930 Agua Caliente Open, held last January.

Fifty Qualifying Places Open.

This group totals about 50 players when those not on the coast are deducted—leaving some 50 places in the field to be determined by the two-day qualifying test later this month. A field of 100 players—90 professionals and 10 amateurs—only will be allowed to start in the tournament proper, of 72 holes, in January.

Three foreign entries have been received to date. They are: Phil Taylor, Victoria, B. C., and David Black, Vancouver, B. C., both professionals, and John De Forest, amateur, of Addington, England, a scratch player. Some others are expected, but many of the leading British professionals have found it impossible to play this year. All will be on hand for the Rydor Cup matches in the United States next June and plan to remain over for the following series of winter tournaments, playing then in Agua Caliente's third event, in January, 1932.

CAGERS IN MEETING.

Palace-District Grocery Stores cagers will meet tonight at the clubrooms for a short drill. The practice will start at 8 o'clock.

SNOOZE WINS SPRINT AT JEFFERSON

Whitney Filly Staves Off Cog-Air and Omareen.

JEFFERSON PARK RACE TRACK, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—C. V. Whitney's Snooze, favorite, under a very well-judged ride, scored in a drive in the Evergreen Handicap, the feature of the card here today. Snooze ran her best race. She was under pressure all the way, and at the end the daughter of Peter Pan showed real gameness by standing off the determined challenges of Cog Air and Omareen.

The start was good, Snooze being the first in motion, but Supreme Sweet, with her brilliant early speed, quickly ran into the early lead, and Russell took Snooze back and bided his time. It was a wise move. Supreme Sweet stepping the first quarter in 0:22 3-5 and the half-mile in 0:47 3-5, and at this point she began to tire. It was then Russell sent Snooze up and into command. She drew away, but tired in the stretch run, and had to be ridden out to win by a head in 1:13.

Delmonico Scores In Fifth.

Delmonico, with James up, scored in a drive in the fifth race, leading Thomas Seth to the wire by a small margin, with Dark Simon third.

Dark Simon led to the top of the stretch, where James brought Delmonico up and, taking the lead, won in a drive by a head. The time of 1:45 3-5 was very fast for the mile and a sixteenth.

Jockey James broke his run of hard luck when he landed his mount in the first race, Wig Rose, home by a small margin in the opening event, a 5½ furlong sprint. My Sweets was second and Delco Del third.

Agnes Sorrel, the favorite, was badly bumped just after start and never had a chance to run.

Wig Rose led all the way to win by a nose and paid $7.60. Her time for the abbreviated distance was 1:07 2-5.

The Moon Disappoints In Second Race.

Scot Free, making his first start of the local season, scored in a drive over Yeggman in the second, with Copper Son third.

The Moon, odds-on-favorite, failed to finish in the money, turning in a very poor performance.

The Moon led Blue John by a small margin to the top of the stretch where he stopped and dropped back. Scot Free then took up the running and lasted to win in a drive by a head. Yeggman beat Copper Son a length for the place.

The winner paid $12.20.

Our Johnny, ridden by J. McCoy and paying $52.40 for a $2 ticket, was a handy winner of the third race, defeating the well-played good thing Jaz Age, Fudge and five other sprinters.

Kentucky Bill, on whom there was a heavy plunge just before post time, was knocked out of all contention by Jaz Age at the far turn. He never recovered and finished way back.

Bardalid, after disappointing his backers several times, finally came to life and won the sixth race in a drive by a head and paid $43.40 for a $2 ticket. Trompe of Dawn was second and Yalovian third. Big Gun, favorite, was a poor fourth after a very weak ride.

Yalovian made the pace to the stretch, where Bardalid and Trompe of Dawn both closed and in a drive Bardalid won by a head. The time was 1:48 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SNOOZE, $5.40, $3.60, $2.60; COG AIR, $3.80, $2.40; OMAREEN, $3.20.

SNOOZE broke very fast, but was outrun by SUPREME SWEET, who showed dazzling speed for half a mile, but in the stretch SNOOZE, under a hard drive, took command and held on gamely. COG AIR, showing sudden improvement, closed with a rush. OMAREEN moved up very fast around the turn, closed with a rush on the inside and was wearing the winner down at the end. THISTLE ANN dropped out of contention early. WAR INSTIGATOR showed a dull effort.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 3:48. Off at 3:51. Winner, J. Keller's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DELMONICO, $12.80, $5.00, $3.20; THOMAS SETH, $7.40, $3.80; DARK SIMON, $4.20.

DELMONICO, under good handling, saved ground all the way, moved up very fast on turn and outgamed THOMAS SETH. The latter slipped through on the inside and finished gamely under weak handling. DARK SIMON opened a wide early lead, but tired badly at the end of seven furlongs. LILLIAN T. had no mishap. ULTIMATE VOTE ran a disgraceful race, being outrun from the start.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles (split of seventh race). Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:17. Off at 4:18. Winner, J. BARDALID, badly outrun in early part, came around field and, finishing fast, was up to win in last stride. TROMPE OF DAWN took a brief lead in the stretch, but weakened in the last twenty yards. YALOVIAN ran a good race. BIG GUN was allowed to drop far out of it in early part, closed a big gap and, with better handling, might have been closer up. HAYES' CHOICE had no mishap.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

MOVING his heart from one side to another was only one of the unusual chest accomplishments of Young Herman. He could expand it 16¾ inches! He could snap leather straps an inch and a quarter wide and three-sixteenths of an inch thick. And he could contract his stomach so much that his spinal column outlined itself against the front wall of his abdomen!

A junk without an eye simply couldn't find its way around, according to the superstitious Chinese who sail the briny deep. Superstition is a strong influence in the life of the average Chinese. One of their customs is to discharge firecrackers to frighten away evil spirits, and another is to clothe their boys in girls' attire because it is thought that the evil spirits won't take the trouble to molest a girl. The Chinese bridges are crooked and precipitous because it is believed that evil ones can not make passage over them.

"Old Silverspot" has been caught by the Minnesota State hatchery staff once a year for some time. Each time, relieved of her eggs, she has been returned to native waters. She is easily recognized by a silver spot near a dorsal fin. Weighing 25 pounds now she is believed to be near the end of her career.

—Jefferson Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

THE Studio Club Purse for all-aged horses at 6 furlongs is the high-light at Jefferson Park today, and eight horses have accepted the conditions. ROCKET GLARE is selected to win the purse, but will not be the favorite. In Maryland, this English-bred filly of Sylvester W. Labrot was run with better horses, such as Frumper and Adequate, and was beaten a length by Aziz in one race. This will be her first start on a winter track, and having been freshened up, should be fit, and most any of her Maryland races would give her a chance here.

BETTY BEAU is another filly that on Maryland form would have a chance, and should be the contender. WHILEAWAY, third to Hot Time last out, should be the show horse. SILVER CORD, winner last out, beating Skibo and others, also has a chance. The weather is cloudy, track fast

FIRST RACE—DON CAESAR, which was a beaten favorite, looks best in the first race for two-year-olds, at 6 furlongs, on races previous to his last one, which was bad. There was a cause for making him the favorite over FLAGG PORTER and others, but the chart of the race gave him no excuse for his dull effort. He should improve over that race. TAN FACE, which ran well in Kentucky, would be very dangerous on earlier form. Mardie has shown good racing, and last out was third to ZAILA.

SECOND RACE—DODIE LEIGHTON may win back in the second. In her last race, she won by three lengths over Supawna and others, which could hold their own in this field. PERFECT ALIBI looks like the contender, and should improve. TIN HAT won his last out, and will figure in this race. He beat Don Tinky and others quite up to this field in class, except the two mentioned above, but a longer route than 6 furlongs would suit him. He is not a sprinter, but a front runner, and should be catching the leaders at the end.

THIRD RACE—This test is under the same conditions as the second. THEO. ROCHESTER should show something. He is overdue. The public has been backing him for several races past and the best they have received was third money three races back. But he has been running against better horses than those found in this race, and was fourth to My Hobby. That race repeated would win this. BOZO has a chance. His second to Kadiak last week makes him look dangerous. ZOOM on his best races also would have a chance and should get in the money with no interference. There will be no outstanding favorite in the race.

FIFTH RACE—LANSQUENET stands out. The son of Angon ran away from his field earlier in the week, winning by four lengths, and he beat some very good platers. THE ORLEANIAN, also a recent winner, should be the contender, but likes mud better than a fast track. BLACK ON WHITE has shown sparkling form at this meeting and will doubtless figure in the race, with every chance to be as good as third. LANSQUENET figures the most probable winner on the entire card.

SIXTH RACE—There is nothing to suggest that AVIATOR will not win right back in the sixth event, a mile and a eighth. He beat Fair Folly two lengths a week ago, at the same distance, and E. James probably will ride him again. VOLE is picking up speed again, finishing second to Water Fowl last out. He offers the most dangerous threat to AVIATOR. HAM was never in better form and has won twice at this meeting, but seems a shade outclassed by these, and should get third money, with Fair Folly, his only danger for the short end of the purse.

SEVENTH RACE—KING KELLY is overdue and is selected. He was second to Spanflow Wednesday, and that race shows him up. He has nothing to do now, but repeat that effort and win. DON TINKY is rated the contender. FAIR ORB should come closer than in recent races and should be at least third.

COLUMBIAS VS. BAPTISTS.

Maryland Avenue Baptists will meet the Columbia Cagers on the Wilson Normal School floor tonight, starting at 7 o'clock. Columbia players are asked to meet at the home of Joe Healey, 1012 Fifth street northeast not later than 6 p. m.

WOLVERINES VS. QUENTINS.

The Wolverines will play the Quentins for the football championship of Southeast next Sunday on the Silver Spring Field, starting at 2:30 o'clock.

JAN. 1 STAKE ATTRACTS STARS

Special to The Washington Post.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 18.—That handicap horses of real class are ready to compete in the big stake events at the Fair Grounds this season is best attested by the list of nominations for the New Year's Handicap. This stake marks the feature for the opening of winter racing at the plant of the Louisiana Jockey Club on January 1.

Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, son of the late Harry Payne Whitney, leads in nominations. Trainer Goldblatt is represented by Flimsy, Crazy Coot, Rueful, Skiri and Tantivy. Skiri, a bay son of the mighty Broomstick, already has demonstrated his ability to keep step with the fleetest runners here this winter, while Tantivy and Crazy Coot are regarded as dangerous in any kind of company.

E. R. Bradley, master of Idle Hour Farm, is the second largest nominator. Boot to Boot, famous for his past deeds on American tracks, Broad Meadows, a son of Black Servant—Bit of White; Burgoo, by North Star III—Breakfast Belle, and Bide a Wee, a daughter of Black Toney—Doreid are ready to carry the popular silks of the Kentucky sportsman. Buckeye Poet, belonging to Col. Bradley, is being reserved for the $10,000 New Orleans Handicap.

Golden Prince Nominated.

Golden Prince, Sidney Grant and Hillsborough were named by the racing firm of Bartelstein. Golden Prince is a past winner of the Coffroth Handicap, while Hillsborough is regarded by many smart turfmen as the probable winner of the Derby Trial Stakes.

George Collins came through with a trio of nominations by naming Patricia Marian, Thistle Ann and Thistle Fyrn. These racers have performed in fair fashion so far and are due for improved performances when they race at the Fair Grounds.

A. T. Sansone made a belated nomination when he entered Voltear. This racer is a 5-year-old son of Volta—The Wife and he showed remarkable speed in Maryland the past fall. He is regarded as being one of the best mud runners in the country.

W. S. Pollard will depend entirely upon Cog Air. He failed to nominate the popular Ulunlu, which showed signs of lameness. Storm, Galahad, Dixie Lad, Chilly Flight, Silver Chord, Supreme Sweet, Royal Son, Battle Ax, Jack Haskell, Dark Abbott, Ben Marshall, Ima Dreamer, Martis, War Instigator and Grier of Spain have been seen in action frequently and are known to be ready to line up at the barrier.

Field of 15 Likely To Go to Post.

With 45 nominations, it is certain that at least 15, and possibly 18, starters will line up at the barrier for the $5,000 prize. The race is at 1 1-16 miles. Weights will be assigned the various eligibles on December 27.

So closely do the eligibles figure for the distance, Secretary McLennan states, it will be quite a problem to select the top-weight horse. It seems quite probable, however, that Golden Prince, Boot to Boot, Cog Air, Galahad, Skiri, Tantivy and Dinah Did Upset will be closely weighted.

Dinah Did Upset, which will carry the colors of S. W. Labrot, is a recent arrival. The bay mare is quartered at the Fair Grounds and is being given a special prep for the opening feature. It is not improbable she will be accompanied to the post by Fortunate Youth, a stable companion, which also has been going along smoothly in private trials.

Bert Mitchell, former trainer of Reigh Count and Anita Peabody, ventures the opinion he may furnish a big upset in Yankee Doodle. The Colgate Stable has a "sleeper" in Blimp, while W. L. Brodie, local turfman, states that Wellet was never better than at present and he expects the bay son of Atwell to be a contender from start to finish.

ALCOVAS VS. CARDINALS.

The Alcovas, who won the Northern Virginia 150-pound championship last Sunday by beating the Del Rays, will play the National Press Club Cardinals next Sunday on the Arlington Field. The game will get under way at 2 o'clock.

WESTERN AND CENTRAL WIN; BUSINESS NOSED OUT

Stenogs Bow To G. W. Cub Five, 20-19

Emerson Quintet Is Beaten by Central, 26-19.

DISTRICT High School quintets were victorious in two of the three games played yesterday. Western took a 36-19 decision from the Alexandria High five while Central was taking the Emerson Institute team in camp by a 26-19 count.

The feature game, however, developed in the clash of Business and the George Washington Freshmen which resulted in a 20-19 victory for the collegians.

The scheduled battle between the Tech and Landon fives failed to materialize due the recent fire at the latter school.

Western was forced to come from behind to defeat Alexandria High, 36 to 19. The contest was played in the Western gym.

The Virginians took the lead at the start of the game and topped the Red and White by one point as the first quarter closed. Western, however, rallied in the second quarter to ring up enough points to earn a 15 to 12 lead at half time.

With Yowell and Latona leading the play, the Washingtonians swept the Alexandrians off their feet in the second half, holding their visitors to seven points, while they were hitting the iron hoops from all angles to register three times that many counters.

Latona, of Western, carried off high point honors, sinking six field goals and two fouls for a total of 14 points. Yowell, a teammate, was close behind with five double-deckers. The guarding and passing of Amidon also featured for the locals. Travers, Evans and Bruin led the Virginians.

Central Defeats Emerson.

Central defeated Emerson yesterday at Central Gym, 26-19, in a game which saw the well-beaten Emersonians turn and present one of their finest games of the year, even though it was a second team they met.

It was a real test for the Centralites and showed up the merit of the Blue and White reserve strength.

Emerson led, 7-6, at the close of the first quarter, but Central won on the long end of 13-10 at the half. The Hill Dwellers pulled away in the closing minutes of the fray to mold the victory.

Cross, with 10 points led the high scorers of the day. Emerson displayed a more even brand of teamwork without the services of Jakie Lewis, the outstanding Maroon basketer.

G. W. Frosh Beat Business.

The G. W. Cubs staved off a small but viciously fighting squad of Business basketers to win, 20-19.

It was a game in which mediocre passing was made up by the willingness of the players and the closeness of the battle at all times.

The Cubs were forced to come from behind to effect the victory, trailing at 10-7 at the half in favor of the schoolboys. Hickman, substitute forward, led the Buff and Blue basketmen to even terms with Business shortly after the start of the second half.

Riding on the crest of this spurt, G. W. went on to lead at 18-12 until the closing minutes of the game, when Bobby Lucas, flashy Business forward, showed unexcelled speed of foot in eluding his guards to sink two vital baskets which brought his team within reaching distance of the collegians.

But G. W. had saved enough reserve to hold the final drive of the high school lads and finished one lone, but safe, point ahead.

Lehigh Five to Play During Holiday Period

Special to The Washington Post.

Bethlehem, Pa., Dec. 18.—For the first time in several seasons the Lehigh University basket ball team will spend part of the Christmas holidays in competition with other quintets. The Brown and White five will leave here on December 28 for Pittsburgh where Carnegie Tech will be engaged on December 29. On the three succeding days the team will meet Wittenberg at Springfield, Ohio; Geneva at Beaver Falls and Duquesne at Pittsburgh.

Starting the season with comparatively green material with the exception of Capt. Buck Schaub, a guard, and Allen Ware, center, the squad has been further weakened by the loss of Ernie Issel, veteran forward, who pulled a ligament in his knee in the opening game of the season. Issel will be definitely out of the line-up until sometime in January and perhaps longer. He is now obliged to use a cane in walking around the campus. Chick Halsted, a regular guard, has been unable to take part in the practice sessions this week because of a severe cold. He will probably be in shape in time to go on the trip.

SAKS ROUTS SOLDIERS.

The Saks Company Basket Ball Team scored a clean-cut victory over the Army War College quintet last night, 53 to 20, at the War College. Jones, Letvin and Dougherty were the leaders of the high-powered Saks offensive.

G. W. MEETS BALTIMORE TONIGHT

Game to Be Played Here; C. U. Faces Rider Five.

WASHINGTON will have a collegiate basket ball game this week-end, after all, as George Washington University authorities yesterday announced that the Colonial-University of Baltimore game, originally scheduled to be played in Baltimore, will be staged tonight on the George Washington floor, starting at 8 o'clock.

Catholic University, the only other local college cage team to play this week-end, will meet the Rider College quintet tonight at Trenton, N. J. Coach "Chick" Gagnon and a squad of ten Cardinal players will leave for Trenton at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The following men will make the trip: Hickey and Spinelli, centers; Walsh, Oliver, Darowish and Guarneri, forwards, and Sheary, Ambrose, Hanley and Cummings, guards. Manager Girard Ambrose and Trainer Lewis Brunnell also will accompany the squad.

Cardinals in Action Tomorrow.

Tomorrow night the Cardinals will oppose the Manhattan College basketers at the Jaspers' gym in New York City. The two schools have not met on the court since 1927, when the Catholics nosed out the Jaspers by a close 13-to-12 score.

Georgetown basketers also will be in New York City tomorrow night, but not for a game. Following a short practice at Ryan Gym in the morning, Coach John Colrick, Manager Bill Dennis and a squad of ten players will leave for Gotham on their annual Christmas trip. Arriving in New York, the team will temporarily disband for several days to enable the men to visit their homes, as most of them live in the immediate vicinity of the city.

The players will assemble again for practices next Tuesday and Wednesday and will play the Brooklyn Knights of Columbus Team on Friday night. The Hoyas then will meet the Crescent A. C. the next night, December 27; St. John's College on December 29, and Manhattan on December 30.

Best Girl at Hooper's Side As He Fights Grid Injury

Romance Comes to Aid of Science in Baltimore Hospital as Strange Malady Baffles Hopeful Doctors.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 18 (A.P.).—With "the favorite among his few girl friends" keeping vigil nearby with members of his family, Henry V. (Bird) Hooper, Virginia Polytechnic Institute football star, waged a fight for life at the Johns Hopkins Hospital today.

The specialist treating him for the brain injury he sustained in the Thanksgiving Day game with the Virginia Military Institute, which brought the State championship to young Hooper's eleven, studied the puzzling case for several hours today and hinted that he thought the fight would be won.

The specialist, Dr. Walter E. Dandy, said the examination was not completed, however. "It is not a cerebral hemorrhage and there is no sign of meningitis," he said. "He is a mighty sick boy, but we are hopeful."

Romance Comes to Aid Of Science.

Romance came to the aid of science with the arrival of Miss Frances Eppes, of Newport News, described by young Hooper's father, Frank B. Hooper, as the boy's "favorite."

Mr. and Mrs. Hooper, and the football star's sister, Rosaline, a student at Hollins College, accompanied him when he was brought here Tuesday night.

"Henry has not told me that he and Miss Eppes are formally engaged, but I know that he prefers her among his few girl friends," said Mr. Hooper, Newport News shipping man. "He has taken her to all the college dances and she goes to the games when he plays.

"She seems to prefer him among her friends and I think thew ay she hurried to Baltimore is a pretty good indication."

Miss Eppes, an accomplished cellist, has played in several radio concerts. Her father is a stationer at Newport News.

All visitors have been barred from the patent's roo mbut she and members of the family waited nearby. L. W. Clarke, football line coach at V. P. I., arrived today and visited the hospital, hopeful that he could be of service in the puzzling case.

Captain and quarterback of his eleven, Hooper is president of the student government of V. P. I., and a leader in his studies and extro-curriculum activities other than athletics. He was selected captain of a mythical all-State team.

Young Hooper was injured early in hte second half of the Thanksgiving Day game with the Virginia Military Institute when he was tackled hard by two men. His team was leading 12 to 0 and Hooper told Coach Orville Neal and other friends that was the last he remmembered though he directed the team to the end of the game, which V. P. I., won 24 to 0.

Becomes Delirious At Chapel.

Except for that lapse Hooper seemed norma lafter his injury until last Sunday, according to his father, when in the college chapel, he suddenly leaped to his feet, seized the back of a pew in front of him and shook it violently. He was taken to a hospital at Roanoke, Va., before it was decided to bring him here.

Words that the youth utters in delirium were carefully noted today by Dr. Dandy and his associates in the hope of finding what section of his brain is affected. Members of the family said thus far his sister is the only one he consistently recognizes and the only person able to quiet him.

N. C. U. SEEKS DIXIE RING CROWN

30 Promising Candidates Out; Six Meets Listed.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Dec. 18.—The 1930 boxing season will bring a hard schedule of five Southern Conference matches, an intersectional tilt with Penn State's Eastern leaders and participation in the Southern tourney for the University of North Carolina boxers, according to the schedule announced today by Graduate Manager, C. T. Woollen.

The Tarheels will be seeking to regain the Southern title they lost to Florida last season after holding the crown for two of the three preceding years.

30 Men in Pre-Christmas Training.

Coach Crayton Rowe had a large squad of 30 men at pre-Christmas work in anticipation of the difficult feat, but rookies will have to carry on at half the posts, and much work lies in store yet.

Capt. Noah Goodridge, star 135-pounder and Southern Conference finalist last year; Obie Davis, 160-pounder, and John Warren, heavyweight, are the lettermen available, with a chance that Harry Sheffield, letter 125-pounder, may be out after the holidays to give lettermen for four of the seven posts.

Marty Levinson and Platt Landis, two hard hitters, are good prospects in the 125 and heavy classes, respectively, as also Clark, a 125-pound reserve.

The 115 and 145 pound classes are very much unsettled.

Boren and Biggs, two newcomers, have been plugging along on even terms in the bantam class, but Biggs lost the intramural finals to the freshman Glover.

Holderness Likely to Succeed Archie Allen.

Dale Holderness, hard-hitting winner in the intramural tourney, has been looking best to succeed Archie Allen in the 145-pound berth, but Henderson, Jackson, Lumpkin, Stallings and Gatlin have been pushing him hard. The way these youngsters come through must determine the team's success, thinks Coach Rowe.

The 1930 card follows:

January 10—N. C. State at Durham; 17, South Carolina at Durham; 30, N. C State at Raleigh.

February 6—L. S. U. at Baton Rouge, La.; 7, Tulane at New Orleans, La.; 13, Virginia at Charlottesville, Va.

Apaches Recognize Gunners As Co-Holders of D. C. Title

A NOVEL note in sandlot football in the District of Columbia was struck yesterday when Seymour Hall, manager of the Champion Apaches, declared in a letter to the manager of the Seaman Gunners that he recognized them as coholders of the District title in view of the Gunners' record and the Apaches' inability to schedule a decisive game with them.

In shining contrast to the usual state of affairs in sandlot football when claims and counterclaims for championships usually mark the close of each season, the Apaches voluntarily voted away a full share of their honors after one of their most difficult campaigns in history, which was climaxed by a decisive defeat of the Mohawks.

The Gunners projected themselves into the running for the District championship this season after several lean years on the gridiron and experienced only one defeat—that at the hands of the St. Mary's Celtics, of Alexandria.

They challenged the Apaches to a game for the title after defeating the Mercury A. C., unlimited champions of the Capital City League, but Manager Hall was forced to decline in view of the fact that his team had already disbanded. His action in recognizing the Gunners as joint holders of the title followed and was received with a great ovation at the Naval Receiving Station yesterday.

Skinker Eagles Open Season December 28

The Skinker Bros. Eagles, holders of the District independent basket ball title for the past six years, will swing into action for the first time this season on December 28, when they meet the Detroit (Mich.) Clowns at the Silver Spring Armory. Manager Bernie Peacock is arranging a schedule which will bring a number of crack out-of-town clubs here, including the Olsen Swedes, from Humansville, Mo., who will be met on January 4.

Except for the addition of Julie Radice, who returns to the club after a star athletic career at Maryland U., the Eagles have the same players as last year. They are: Jack Faber, Duke Allen, Joe Sweeney, Ralph Bennie, Dick Streeks and Burt Thompson. The Eagles have been drilling for the past two weeks and expect to start the season in top form.

DUKE BOXERS FACE HARD SEASON

Bouts With Tulane, L. S. U. to Feature Schedule.

Special to The Washington Post.

DURHAM, N. C., Dec. 18.—By scheduling eight matches with comembers of the Southern Conference, Coach W. T. (Tex) Tilson, of the Duke boxing team, is planning to give his veterans a test of the best of boxing talent in the Southern body.

The feature of the schedule is the meeting of Duke's pugs with two of the Far West members of the conference, Louisiana State University and Tulane, at Baton Rouge and New Orleans, on February 6 and 7. The Devils will open the season January 10 with North Carolina State at Durham.

While a number of veterans are back for positions on the Duke mitt team, there are sophomore candidates and other fighters seeking places on the team at the expense of the veterans.

In the 115-pound class, Coach Tilson will have Mark Edwards, veteran, and Riddick, experienced fighter, bidding for the berth. Capt. Martin, in the 125-pound class, will have to whip Scott, a hard hitting sophomore, before retaining his berth. Ralph Starnes, a two-letter man, has strong opposition in Wilson, an able pug.

There is a three-cornered fight in the 145-pound class between Wentz, veteran slugger, and Barnette and Fuller, sophomores. The veteran Bolich is opposed by two sophomres, Ershler and Bowden, in the 160-pound class.

ADVANCE OF STOCKS SLOWS UP SLIGHTLY

Large Part of Gains Later Lost, but Average Rise Is Around One Point.

BROKERS' LOANS DECLINE

New York Dec. 18 (A.P.).—An emphatic upturn in bonds was one of the most heartening developments in the financial market today.

Stocks, on the momentum of Wednesday's spectacular climb, rallied briskly, only to lose a large part of their gain when purchases made for a trading turn were sold. The net advance for the session averaged about a point, although numerous issues were up much more than that. Sales totaled 3,290,370 shares.

The recovery in bonds signified that that market's recent weakness had been due to temporary conditions which seemed to disappear quickly with the turn in stocks. Relief from nervous tension served to dry up the supply of domestic liens and debentures and the well-advertised bargains finally found buyers.

Greater Confidence Seen.

Wall street's second thoughts on the rebound in stocks confirmed its first opinion namely, that it was due to a badly overcrowded short position for which the only solution was just such a turn as appeared. There seemed to be, however, a more confident feeling in commission house circles.

Although few cared to go on record as predicting that actual bottom had been reached pending the market's action under realizing and a secondary reaction such as would normally follow so sharp a rally, it was felt that the two-week decline had discounted a large part of any further unfavorable business news, particularly fourth quarter earnings.

The market's progress was fairly consistent through the early hours. At their highest levels of the day prices of some stocks were 10 to 30 points above Wednesday's lows, which represented probably as vigorous a recovery as the market had witnessed this year. The sharpest reaction came in the final hour when prominent industrials lost all but a fraction of their 2 to 3 point advances, yet the market still retained enough vitality to close generally above the day's lowest quotations. An exception was the weakness of the coppers, with Anaconda and American Smelting sagging sharply.

Commodity Prices Stop.

While security prices were gaining courage, the leading commodities lost heart. Bar silver again went to a record low. Copper exporters pared a half cent from their quotation, the second cut of that size this week. Corn turned heavy as larger Southwest offerings appeared, sagging about a cent and a half a bushel. Cotton weakened under a renewal of liquidation and final quotations were of 10 to 20 points. Wheat was unsteady, reflecting bearish Government reports and a disappointing export demand. Futures closed one-eighth cent lower to one-quarter cent higher.

The weekly Federal Reserve Bank statement showed some interesting changes, traceable to operations over the Treasury financing interval as well as efforts of New York banks to strengthen their position following the recent suspension by a reserve member here. There were large gains in discounts and holdings of Government securities and an expansion of more than $100,000,000 in currency circulation, part of which was seasonal.

Heavy liquidation in stocks during the past week brought a $91,000,000 drop in brokers' loans, which are down to the nominal amount of $2,008,000,000. Most of the reduction was in loans for New York City member banks' own account. The latter's loans on securities to nonbroker customers rose $23,000,000.

Auburn Gains 13 Points.

The most spectacular stock today was Auburn. Opening at 101, up 2 points, it soared to 119¾ as shorts took a squeezing, and then fell back to 112, for a net gain of 13. Its Wednesday low was 89. J. I. Case was another wide mover, although the 12-point rise was halved. Stocks like American Can, Westinghouse, General Electric and Union Carbide finished fractionally higher after rising two or three points. United States Steel, which had reached 141¾, closed at 139⅜, off ⅛. American Telephone lost half of a 3-point rise.

Rails displayed encouraging strenth, New York Central retained 3 points of a 6-point advance and Baltimore & Ohio, Atchison, Northern Pacific and Missouri Pacific were up 1 to 3 net. Union Pacific and Illinois Central, however, were heavy.

Small advances covered the list of foreign exchanges, with both sterling cables and the French franc up slightly. The Spanish peseta was a trifle heavy.

STRONG RECOVERY PUSHES BONDS UP

Many Issues Climb 1 to 3 Points in Broad Buying Movement.

RAILS' GAINS NUMEROUS

New York, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—A robust rally by a wide list of railroad and other corporate domestic bonds today reversed the most stubborn and protracted decline of the year.

Impressive gains of 1 to 3 points were registered as a broad buying movement was launched which definitely turned the tide after bond prices had ebbed almost steadily for two weeks, making a long string of successive new lows for recent years.

The advance confirmed the feeling in the street that an upturn in the share market would have a favorable psychological effect on investors. The recent liquidation of high grade investment issues along with bonds not so favorably situated had all the earmarks of nervous selling by holders whose confidence had been impaired by the general trend of security prices.

Buyers Dominate Situation.

Today the buyer dominated the situation. His bidding for investment and second-grade issues brought the first advance in the weighted averages in two weeks. Both the average of 10 rails and the composite was up a full point from the year's low reached yesterday. The volume of business was large although somewhat less than the heaviest turnover on days when selling was most persistent.

The broadest demand developed for railroad mortgages and advances of from 1 to 2 points were numerous and in some were larger. Bonds making a strong recovery included various issues of the Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian National, Canadian Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s, Burlington, Chicago & Northwestern, Big Four, Erie, Louisville & Nashville, Missouri Pacific, Nickel Plate, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific and Western Maryland.

Entire Domestic List Gains.

Virtually the entire domestic list of high grade bonds reflected the bolstering effects of the inquiry and tended to revive widely circulated reports in the financial district that organized support for the market had been decided upon.

That a pool had been formed was denied in important quarters yesterday, but the report persisted that investment houses were more active on the buying side than they have been in many weeks.

The market was not without its soft spots. A few low grade rails and speculative industrials dipped to new lows for the year and the movement in the foreign list remained irregular. The principal changes of trend, however, were on the upside. Some Latin-Americans, notably Bolivians and Peruvians, rallied sharply. German bonds joined the upward movement and the 5½s and some others in the group closed more than a point higher.

Curb Review

New York, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—The curb market rebound from its latest bottom levels was carried further today, but it lost its momentum in the last hour.

Trading remained fairly active, the day's transfers aggregating 763,300 shares. Oils and several of the industrials and specialties made marked progress, but the list was inclined to yield to profit-taking in the last hour, particularly the utilities.

Electric bond and share closed a fraction lower after recording a temporary gain of 1¾. American Gas & Electric sold up 1½, then lost its gain. Niagara Hudson showed little recuperative power, closing a shade lower. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, Tampa Electric, Peoples Light A and Central Public Service A gained a couple of points, but the last named lost some of its advance. European Electric dropped 3 points to a new low at 6⅞.

In the oils, Vacuum shot up 4½ points, then slipped back 3 from the top. Gulf and Humble gained about 2 each. Standard of Ohio closed up a point, and Indiana, up ½. Cities Service rallied nearly a point to 16¼, but closed at 15⅞. Cosden preferred, however, tumbled 19¾ to a new low at 10¼.

Among the industrial specialties, Anglo Chilean Nitrate shot up about 3 points to 11, and retained most of its gain. Deere and Lehigh Coal advanced 2, and Driver Harris 4. Aluminum Co. rallied 10 points.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—After advancing early today on a continuation of yesterday's buying movement, cotton eased off under renewed liquidation or reselling, which appeared to be promoted by weakness in grain. March contracts sold off from 10.23 to 9.97 and closed at 9.99 compared with 10.11 at the close of the previous day, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 10 to 20 points.

The opening was steady, 7 points higher to 1 point lower, most months being higher on overnight buying orders brought in by the firmness of yesterday afternoon. Liverpool did not quite meet yesterday's local advance and there was some Southern selling, but the offerings were quite readily absorbed and after some little irregularity, the market worked about 7 to 12 points net higher. New January sold up to 9.94 and May to 10.48 on this advance, but the buying tapered off later, and the market eased during the afternoon when there was comparatively little support in evidence with prices sensitive to small orders either way. Some further covering and trade buying was reported on the dips, but was supplied on moderate bulges and the lowest prices of the day were reached in the late trading. January sold off to 9.70 and May to 10.21, making reactions of about 20 to 27 points from the high levels of the morning and the close was within 2 or 3 points of the lowest on most of the more active months.

According to reports published here this morning an English trade authority estimates the world's carryover of American cotton at the end of next season at about 9,000,000 bales. A private report was also published estimating ginnings prior to December 13 at 13,384,000 bales. These statistics, however, seemed to attract very little attention with the early buying attributed chiefly to the continuation of yesterday's covering movement. Later the market appeared to lack support and according to some observers there was a little more Southern selling here as well as realizing or reselling by recent buyers.

Liverpool cables said that continental and Bombay buying there had been supplied by hedging and realizing and reported as improved cloth inquiry from India. Exports today, 27,808, making 722,195 so far this season. Port receipts, 56,255. United States port stocks, 4,172,970.

UPTURN IS FORESEEN IN TRADE BY BANKS

BUDGETS ARE INCREASED

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Basing their hopes on the average gain in advertising appropriations by banks in 1931 and the report of deposits of $28,485,000,000 in savings banks and trust companies at the present time, representatives of these institutions at a recent meeting of the National Thrift committee, preparing for National Thrift Week, January 17-23, expressed the opinion that the depression is leveling off and nearing an end.

Preston E. Reed, executive secretary of the Financial Advertisers Association, Inc., declared that bankers are apparently beginning to believe that the depression is dying and that "we will have bluer skies and more men in blue overalls working in 1931." He bases the optimistic outlook on the answers to a questionnaire asking financial institutions over all the country about their advertisement appropriations for 1931.

22½ Per Cent Gain Shown.

The result showed that 40 per cent of the banks will increase their budgets from 4 to 100 per cent, 40 per cent will retain the 1929 appropriations and 20 per cent will slash advertising expenses. The comparison shows an average gain of 22½ per cent for 1931.

From the ofice of J. G. Nettleton, general agent, Pennsylvania Railroad, in the Hibbs Building, came the news yesterday that the road will ask immediately for bids from American manufacturers for 200,000 tons of steel rails for delivery during the year 1931. At current rail prices, the Pennsylvania's order will total over $8,500,000. Attachments for laying this amount of rail, including frogs, switches, splices, tie plates, rail anchors, bolts and spikes will increase the year's expenditures for laying new rail to more than $15,000,000.

Directors of the McLachlen Banking Corporation yesterday declared a 3 per cent dividend payable December 31, and a 5 per cent bonus for employes of the institution.

American Ice Dividend.

Directors of American Ice Co. have declared the usual quarterly dividends of 1½ per cent on the preferred and 75 cents a share on the common, both dividends payable January 26 to stockholders of record January 9, 1931.

The Investment Bankers Association of America will publish the first issue of a new monthly magazine, to be known as Investment Banking, in April, 1931, according to an announcement made at the association's offices in Chicago. John P. Mullen, for five years assistant educational director of the association, has been named editor and business manager.

National new car registrations for October show that Packard has moved up to eleventh place in number of new cars delivered. In September, it was in twelfth place. This gain has been made from sixteenth position, which Packard held in October, 1929, and fifteenth place in 1928.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Corn fell 2 cents a bushel today, influenced by liberal arrivals and by reports that some corn products manufactories would shut down. Reports said industrial users of corn contended that crop shortage had been overemphasized, and not enough attention had been given to curtailment of demand owing to use of rye and other substitutes. A further weight on the market was announcement that 442,000 bushels of corn had been delivered today on Chicago December contracts.

Corn closed unsettled at nearly the day's bottom level, 1⅜ to 1⅞ cents a bushel lower than yesterday. Wheat closed irregular at 1 cent decline to ¼-cent advance, with oats 1¼ to ¾ cent off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15 cents.

Corn values went into a nosedive in the late trade, rallies which preceded being minus adequate buying support. The Government crop report as to corn was construed as slightly bullish, but not enough so to make any vital difference in aggregate supplies as compared with recent somewhat larger figures as to the 1930 corn yield. On the other hand, corn receipts were 159 cars, against only 23 a year ago. Considerable of the selling of corn futures was of a stop-loss character.

Much of the general commission selling of corn and wheat futures, however, some authorities said, was attributable to the approach of Christmas and to a need in various quarters of holiday funds. Another factor tending to pull wheat down was additional moisture for domestic winter wheat Southwest. Moreover, the Australian wheat crop was estimated semiofficially at 5,846,000 metric tons, against 3,442,000 metric tons in 1929. Oats were chiefly dominated by the action of corn.

Provisions averaged higher, influenced by demand for December delivery of lard, especially on the part of traders who have been speculative sellers.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—May, 81, 81; July, 67@67⅛, 69@69⅛. Corn—December (bids), 66⅜; March, 69⅜, 71⅞; May, 71¼@71⅜, 74⅛; July, 72⅞, 75½.

SHEPARD GAVE WIFE POISON, NURSE SAYS

TESTIMONY IS RULED OUT

Kansas City, Kas., Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Two witnesses testified today in the murder trial of Maj. Charles A. Shepard that his wife stated before her death she had been poisoned.

The testimony of Mrs. Shepard's purported declarations included one alleged direct accusation against her husband, which the court ruled out as improper evidence.

Miss Clara Brown, of Topeka, Kas., a nurse who attended Mrs. Shepard, and Sergt. J. F. Gresser, attached to the Army medical laboratory at Fort Riley, Kas., provided the highlights of the government's final efforts to convict the Army medical officer for the alleged poison murder of his wife at Fort Riley in June, 1929.

"Dr. Shepard has poisoned me," the nurse testified Mrs. Shepard told her.

Testimony Stricken Out.

Judge Richard J. Hopkins ordered the jury to disregard the nurse's statement when the defense objected that such evidence was improper. Defense attorneys said it constituted an unsupported opinion on the part of the deceased if such a remark had been made.

Miss Brown quoted Mrs. Shepard as making the declaration after the patient asked her to obtain a liquor bottle from Major Shepard's closet and bring it to the bedside. The witness said she smelled the contents as the request of Mrs. Shepard and had pronounced the odor "peculiar."

Mrs. Shepard, the witness continued, asked if enough remained in the bottle to make a test for poison. Miss Brown said she replied there was not, the bottle containing only a table spoonful of liquid. The bottle then was returned to the closet, the nurse said.

Discharge Motion Overruled.

A defense motion for discharge of the jury as the result of Miss Brown's testimony was overruled.

Sergt. Gresser testified he talked to Mrs. Shepard five days after she was stricken.

"Mrs. Shepard told me she was being poisoned," he said without amplifying the purported statement.

The witnesses were called in rebuttal by the prosecution after the defense rested late in the morning by placing on the stand several physicians who stated that from all the evidence they would not pronounce Mrs. Shepard's death due to mercurial poisoning as charged by the Government.

Miss Brandon Not Mentioned.

As the case drew to an end both sides centered their evidence around Mrs. Shepard without mention of Miss Grace Brandon blonde stenographer of San Antonio, for the love of whom the 59-year-old defendant is charged with having disposed of his wife.

It appeared likely tonight that final arguments would begin tomorrow afternoon with the case going to the jury some time Saturday.

The Government put on a dozen witnesses in rebuttal to counter the defense testimony that Mrs. Shepard was a heavy drinker, addicted to narcotics and melancholy.

Most of them were wives of Army officers. They testified that to their knowledge the major's wife did not drink to excess, that she was normal, and that she always appeared sober and well in public.

Made Beer and Wine.

Mrs. Maurine Townsend, wife of Maj. S. A. Townsend, now stationed at Fort Leavenworth, testified that while Maj. Shepard was away from Fort Riley taking a flight surgeon's course in San Antonio, where it was previously brought out he first met Miss Brandon late in 1928, the witness and Mrs. Shepard made some beer. They also tried to make wine, but "it was not successful," Mrs. Townsend said.

Medical authorities, who constituted the late day Government rebuttal witnesses, said it was not likely the mercury mouth wash used by Mrs. Shepard in her last illness, could have caused death by absorption through the gums into the blood stream as testified by defense experts.

Reports that executives of four large Eastern trunk lines were ready to agree on a four-party consolidation plan lacked confirmation in railroad circles today, although it was understood that progress had been made in discussions held here recently among the heads of Pennsylvania, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio and Chesapeake & Ohio. One version of the alleged agreement said New York Central was to get the Lackawanna, Pennsylvania, the Wabash, Baltimore & Ohio, the Reading & Jersey Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, the Lehigh Valley and Virginian. Pennsylvania now controls the Lehigh, but bought its holdings at a much higher price, and it was pointed out that that circumstance would be an obstacle in the way of such a consolidation.

Increases in estimated car requirements for grain, flour, fresh fruits and vegetables, almost sufficient to offset anticipated decreases in other industries were outlined in reports to the Great Lakes Regional Advisory Board in Buffalo today. The board is composed of representatives of shippers and transportation companies. Its program today consisted largely of a review of business and forecasts for the first quarter of 1931.

Explorer to Lecture On 'Lost' Eskimo Tribe

A lost tribe of Greenland Eskimos, last seen in 1923, will be described by Capt. Robert A. Bartlett, who was Peary's chief officer, before the members of the National Geographic Society in the Washington Auditorium this evening. "Cap'n Bob," as he is known, has lectured before members of the society three times. He traveled 15,000 miles last summer, battling winds and seas to within 800 miles of the North Pole to obtain colorful motion pictures of this Eskimo colony.

The expedition visited Shannon Island, where two musk ox calves were captured and brought alive to this country. In the dense fogs off the Greenland coast Bartlett often had to steer by a thermometer. When the mercury dropped it was evident the ship was approaching the ice-bound shore, and the captain veered off.

MYSTERY WITNESS TELLS OF BOAT FIRE

REFUSES TO GIVE NAME

Miami, Fla., Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Belief that Miss Mary Holler, Milwaukee, was the fourth person to perish when the excursion boat Eureka II burned and sank south of Miami Beach Sunday night and that the official findings would hold the crew blameless, was expressed today by John Nolan, member of a Federal board of inquiry investigating the disaster, after hearing a statement of a woman survivor who refused to give her name.

Three bodies were identified shortly after the disaster.

Nolan said the woman's statement, made in an executive session, was "by far the most graphic picture brought into the hearing" since it started Wednesday.

The woman declared she experienced difficulty in rounding up her three children when fire broke out aboard the boat, Nolan said, and finally threw two of her children overboard and jumped over herself in an attempt to locate the third child. The child was found later.

A check of the list of survivors showed Mrs. Weeks Smith, Paducah, Ky., was the only woman reported saved with three children.

Shortly after she jumped in the water, the woman told Nolan, another woman whose clothing and appearance tallied with that given of Miss Holler, seized her by the arm and begged to be saved. The woman making the statement exhibited an injured arm to show where she was scratched in the encounter.

The other woman was frantic, Nolan quoted the witness as saying, but was given some assistance in adjustment of her life preserver.

JURY MAY REOPEN CASE IN ORDER TO CLEAR MAN'S NAME

Taxi Driver Tells Police That He Mistook Bunch in Holdup Charge.

LATER IDENTIFIES YOUTH AS RIGHT ONE

Girl Held in Connection With Alleged Robberies Is Turned Loose.

The District grand jury will be asked today to reopen its hearings in the case of Edward Eldridge Bunch, of 1301 Belmont street northwest, for whom an indictment was sought last week in connection with several taxi cab hold-ups, in order that a taxi cab driver who mistakenly identified Bunch as the man who robbed him, can change his testimony.

The driver, William J. Michell, of Bladensburg, Md., last night identified Thomas J. Higgins, the 18-year-old youth accused of several taxi and gasoline filling station bandit, as the man who robbed him. Mitchell admitted that he had been mistaken in going before the grand jury and pointing out Bunch as the man who cowed him a gun and robbed him of $6.90.

Anxious to Clear Bunch.

Police are anxious to clear Bunch of the accusation of robbery. The cab driver said last night in talking to detectives that he was not certain Bunch was the right man, and he claimed he now recognizes Higgins as the one who robbed him.

Higgins himself aided in clearing up the tangle. He recognized Mitchell in the Detective Bureau and pointed him out. He even went so far as to give several details about the manner in which he forced Mitchell from his cab in Rock Creek Park, and told police he informed Mitchell he would leave the keys to the machine in a front pocket.

The unusual spectacle of a youth accused of robbery pointing out his victims was seen last night in the squad room at Detective Bureau, as Higgins faced a score of people and picked among them to designate his unwilling benefactors.

Higgins, as a result of his uncanny memory for faces and details, was charged with four additional robberies, the total now being eleven. The new cases against him list as complainants: William J. Mitchell, of Bladensburg, Md.; Walter O'Loughlin, of Sherman avenue, Takoma Park, Md.; Thomas Berry, of 729 Jefferson street northwest, and Walter P. Hildebrand, 1730 K street northwest.

Somewnat confused by the maze of details into which they have been thrown by Higgins' admissions, detectives said last night they would not be ready to take the boy into court until Saturday, or possibly Monday.

Miss Ottilee May Simmons, 20 years old, of apartment 303, the Southern Apartments, who had been held for investigation in connection with Higgins' alleged hold-ups, was freed by detectives last night. The sleuths announced they were satisfied she knew nothing of Higgins' operations.

Frederick P. Hess, Merchant, Is Dead

Resident Here for 45 Years Succumbs to Long Illness.

Frederick P. Hess, well known Washington merchant, died yesterday at his home, 1746 K street northwest, following an illness of two years. He was 62 years old.

A native of Germany, Mr. Hess had been a resident of this city for the past 45 years, coming here in 1885. For a number of years he had been connected with the retail grocery business, and at the time of his retirement in 1928 he was one of the owners of the Philadelphia Market Co., 1128 Connecticut avenue northwest. He made his home here with his wife, Mrs. Makdalena Hornback Hess, whom he married in 1893.

Besides his wife, Mr. Hess is survived by four children, Miss Helen Hess, the Rev. Carl F. Hess, of Baltimore; Dr. Valentine M. Hess, of Philadelphia, and Dr. Frederick J. Hess, of this city. He also leaves a brother in Germany.

Funeral services will be held on Monday at St. Matthew's Catholic Church, with interment in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Man Freed on Bond Under Habeas Corpus

David H. Selsky, of L street northwest near Third street, was released on $2,500 bond yesterday by Justice Joseph W. Cox, pending hearing on a petition for habeas corpus.

Selsky, who was arretsed here several days ago and held at the Eighth Precinct Station, sought a habeas corpus writ on the ground that he was being illegally detained. Justice Cox, in fixing bond for the man's release, set hearing on the petition for January 5. Selsky is alleged to be wanted in Virginia on a lottery charge.

Woman Alleging Cruelty Seeks Limited Divorce

Mrs. Jane Caswell, of Twenty-fourth street northeast near Varnum street, yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to grant her a limited divorce from Jay Hubbard Caswell.

Through Attorneys Raymond Neudecker and Jean Boardman, the wife charges that her husband is addicted to habitual intoxication and has treated her cruelly. She also charges that her husband on one occasion attempted to choke her. The couple was married July 24, 1920, at Upper Marlboro, Md.

The subject of "Christian Culture in Church Colleges" will be discussed at the first conference, with representatives of the faculties of 14 colleges of the United Lutheran Church, attending. Speakers at this meeting include Dr. Ralph B. Heim, dean of men and professor of religious education at Thiel College, Greenville, Pa..; Dr. S. G. Plans for the construction of a building in Washington, to be known as the Lutheran Women's College, also will be discussed.

Weather Halts Search for Body

Harbor Precinct Abandons Dragging of River for Boy's Remains.

Blustery weather and rough water yesterday afternoon again forced police of the Harbor Precinct to abandon their search for the body of Jack Bingham, 17 years old, who is believed to have drowned in the Potomac River near Alexandria, Va., Monday night.

The police dragged the river off Fox Ferry, Md., for more than 10 hours yesterday, but were forced to put back to the Seventh street wharves in the early afternoon when the water became too rough to allow them to operate.

The funeral of Henry Florence, 17 years old, of Alexandria, who was Bingham's companion when the two boys attempted to cross the river in a small boat, will be held at 1 o'clock this afternoon from the Cunningham Funeral Home, in Alexandria, conducted by the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, pastor of the First Baptist Church. Burial will be in Bethel Cemetery at that place.

Connecticut Society Plans.

A social program for winter and spring will be formulated at a business meeting of the Connecticut State Society to be held in the Willard Hotel tonight at 8 o'clock. All members and residents of Connecticut are invited. President C. O. Buckingham will preside.

FARE CUT HEARING MEETS OBJECTION

HASTE SEEN UNNEEDED

Rumors were current yesterday that the street car companies would object to the proposed Public Utilities Commission hearing on reduced fares for school children because of its "unofficial" character and the likelihood that it will be held before Congress acts on the bill now before the Senate District committee.

Neither William F. Ham, president of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., nor John H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction Co., would say yesterday what their attitude toward the hearing would be, but they indicated that they considered the proposal irregular.

Mr. Hanna said further that he saw no reason for such haste upon the part of commission and thought that there would be time enough for a discussion of rates after the bill was adopted.

Meanwhile, William A. Roberts, assistant corporation counsel for the commission, was preparing to refute any charge of irregularity with provisions of the act which, he says, entitles the utilities body to hold a hearing whenever a proper complaint has been made. In the instance in question, he contends, it was not even necessary for the commission to observe the usual procedure of giving 20 days' notice.

The proposed hearing was suggested by Senator Copeland, of the Senate District committee, during the course of the hearing in order to speed the lower fare should the bill become a law, according to Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the commission.

Suit for Divorce Filed By District Employe

Charging his wife with misconduct and naming a corespondent, Ralph Gedney, said to be a building inspector for the District of Columbia, yesterday requested the District Supreme Court to grant him an absolute divorce from Mrs. Catherine A. Gedney, of Thirteenth street northwest, near Girard street.

Gedney charges that since he moved to the District last September his wife has been keeping company with the corespondent, even receiving him in her home. He also charges that his wife, while visiting in Virginia, received the corespondent, who at that time gave her money.

The couple was married December 22, 1908, according to the husband's bill. Attorney Raymond Neudecker appeared for Gedney.

Army Carnival Donates $2,000 to City's Chest

The Community Chest yesterday received a check for $2,000, representing part of the proceeds from the military exposition and carnival held at the Army War College last September. The check was forwarded by Maj. Gen. William D. Connor, commandant.

Although the exposition was held primarily to raise funds for Army relief purposes, Gen Connor wrote: "As the success of our efforts is due in a large part to the loyal support of the people of this community, it is felt that the Community Chest, which is all-embracive in its relief activities, should share in the proceeds thereof."

Boy, Shot in Movie, Returns From Academy for Holiday

Washington Student Wounded in Thigh and Chum in Leg as One Handles Revolver; School Forgives Violation of Rule.

Philip A. Dieterich, 15 years old, a Staunton Military Academy student, returned yesterday to his home at 3701 McKinley street northwest, with a bullet wound in his thigh, but with an excellent report from the school authorities.

Despite the fact that the possession of firearms is forbidden to the students, the school authorities were prompted by the Christmas spirit to forget the incident which resulted in the wounding of Dieterich and a companion last Saturday night, in a Staunton motion picture theater.

Anyway, it was an accident. Dieterich was unloading a small caliber revolver in the theater, where Hoot Gibson was doing his stuff on the screen. The bullet pierced Dieterich's thigh and made flesh wound in the calf of Glenn Irvin's leg.

Glenn, who hails from Buffalo, supported his friend's story of the affair. The boys spent the week-end in the school infirmary. A school custom wipes the slate clean at Christmas time and cancels all marks against the students. Dieterich is the son of Albert E. Dieterich, a patent attorney.

$7,500 PAID BY WIFE AS KELLEHER'S FINE

Action Linked With Outlook for His Release Before Christmas.

SERVING FIVE-YEAR TERM

John B. (Dapper Jack) Kelleher, former "big shot" in local sporting circles, is expected to be a free man by Christmas.

This was revealed in part yesterday when Mrs. Anna T. Kelleher, his wife, appeared in District Supreme Court and deposited a certified check to pay his fine. This procedure usually is not done until a few days before a man in jail and under fine is eligible for release.

Kelleher is serving a sentence of five years, having been convicted before former Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy in June, 1929, on sixteen counts of an indictment which charged him with violating the gaming laws.

Chief Justice McCoy, in passing sentence, committed the man to eight years and nine months imprisonment and imposed a $7,500 fine. Kelleher went to jail, but shortly before Chief Justice McCoy retired the man was called back and the term was reduced to five years, but there was no reduction in the fine.

Whether Kelleher is being shown special clemency because of the approach of Christmas could not be learned, the United States attorney's office being without knowledge of any parole.

It was pointed out, however, the man had served 19 months of a 60-month sentence. This, with good conduct allowances, would make one-third of the sentence served and thus make him eligible for parole.

At the time Chief Justice McCoy reduced Kelleher's sentence he was informed the man had been a model prisoner and had indicated an intention to reform.

The fine, which Kelleher paid, is said to be one of the largest, if not the largest, ever paid into the coffers of the local court. Larger fines have been imposed, but not paid, it was said. Prisoners, by taking a pauper's oath, can escape heavy fines.

Three City Architects Gain Awards in Contest

Three Washington architects, John D. Cobb, Robert E. Rader, jr., and Harvey P. Baxter, were winners of cash prizes in the Standard Manufacturing Co.'s competition for bathroom designs, H. H. Steck, local manager, announced yesterday.

The competition was international in scope. On the jury of award were William H. Beers, of New York; Gen. Allison Owen, of New Orleans; Addison B. LeBoutillier, of Boston; Louis C. Mullgradt, of San Francisco, and Eugene H. Klaber, of Chicago.

Objections Heard On Highway Plan

Strongest Protest Is Filed on Widening of Piney Branch Road.

Objection was offered to two proposed changes in the District highway plan at a public hearing of property holders involved before the District Commissioners yesterday morning. Five other suggested changes met with no opposition.

The strongest objection was voiced to the widening of Piney Branch road to 120 feet in a proposed turn so as to connect with the underpass which is planned at the Baltimore & Ohio tracks. The proposal to change the route of the Foxhall road, between Cathedral avenue and Fulton street, brought forth arguments that the extra property should be taken from the east rather than the west side so as to spare some shade trees.

The five other proposals involved minor alterations in the northwest, northeast and southeast sections. The contested changes were taken under advisement by the Commissioners.

HOOVER MAY REFUSE TO AID HOLIDAY PLAN

Budget Bureau Reports That Half Saturdays Would Cost $27,000,000.

TWO BILLS IN CONGRESS

A Saturday half-holiday the year round for Federal employes would cost the Government nearly $27,000,000 a year, the Budget Bureau has informed President Hoover.

In view of this, the President is not expected to approve any legislation at this time that would put the half-holiday plan into operation.

Recently William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, called at the White House and urged President Hoover to give his approval to a Saturday half-holiday bill. At that time President Hoover said that, while he was in sympathy with the idea, he could not give his approval if the cost was very great.

The report of the Bureau of the Budget was disclosed after a visit to the White House by Representative Dallinger (Republican), of Massachusetts.

The only way that Mr. Dallinger can now get the half-holiday bill up for a vote is to bring the measure up under a suspension of the rules or to persuade the rules committee to report out a special rule for its consideration.

There are now two half-holiday bills before the House—the one reported out by the civil service committee and the one reported out two days ago by the postoffice committee.

Mission Seeking Truck To Send Wood to Poor

With 50,000 cords of kindling wood offered to the poor of the city, the Central Union Mission yesterday was on the lookout for a truck so that it might make door-to-door deliveries of wood to the hundreds of families on its list.

Lacking a truck at the present time, Superintendent John S. Bennett has been sending individual applicants to the big woodpile supplied the Commissioners' committee on unemployment through the Marine Corps, where stacks of it are still available at the Occoquan wharf, on Water street between H and I streets southwest.

WHEN an old beau comes a-phoning
When a catty girl friend beckons—
On occasions such as these
I've a formula completed
That invariably wins,
For "a previous engagement" hides a multitude of sins.

When my best beau's kept too busy
By the great preyuletide rush,
And I get a sudden phone call
From a bygone "heavy crush—"
When I don't know what to answer
And I'm wobbly 'round the shins,
Well, "a previous engagement"
Hides a multitude of sins.

With United States Steel common selling around 137 we appreciate now why the governors of the New York Stock Exchange gave a medal to Mr. Richard Whitney, who bid 205 for it during the 1929 crash.

King Alfonso is probably spending these nights dancing with fears in his eyes.

THE comptroller of the City of New York is refusing to pay the bills of the Seabury vice probers there and expresses particular suspicion of an item, "lunch with beer, $7.80." That would naturally arouse the suspicions of a Tammany administration, which knows very well that such expenditures are almost always put in under the item, "research work and incidentals."

Congress evidently can't make up its mind whether it is holding a sensible session or participating in a charity football game.

This department's idea of irony is a card to President Hoover from a member of the House or Senate wishing him a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

London, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—The Prince of Wales suffered from a slight cold today, necessitating canceling all his immediate engagements, but he was reported to be improved tonight.

Sir Stanley Hewitt, physician to the royal family, called at York House to see the prince this evening, and a bulletin was issued, saying the patient was "very much better."

An equerry in waiting to the king also visited the prince's residence in order to make inquiries on behalf of their majesties.

Although the prince's illness was not regarded as serious, he was ordered to stay indoors lest it interfere with his trip to South America which is to begin January 15. It is understood the prince will remain in bed for the present, but it is thought that within 24 hours he will have thrown off all effects of his ailment.

One of the first engagements to be canceled was the prince's week-end visit to Melton Mowbray, where he was to have hunted. News that the royal visitor would not come caused great disappointment to hundreds of the villagers, who had planned to attend the meets of the hounds in the district.

Regrets were sent those in charge of a Pan-American dinner tonight commemorating the life of Gen. Simon Bolivar, to which the prince had accepted an invitation.

Unusually vigorous, the prince is seldom sick and has never had a serious illness, although he was twice troubled with malaria last spring during an African hunt. His robust physique is attributed to the large amount of exercise he takes, including long walks, riding and indoor exercises. An extraordinary drain is made on the time and health of the younger members of the royal family at this time of the year by their almost constant attendance on the opening of hospitals and charities.

Plaster Tenders Seek Injunction

Claim Four Members Refuse to Surrender Records of Union.

In an effort to regain records which they claim four members of the organization refuse to surrender, three newly elected officers of the Plaster Tenders Local, No. 871, yesterday applied to the District Supreme Court for a mandatory injunction.

James Scott, president; Frank Davidson, treasurer, and James Williams, financial secretary, are the plaintiffs, and assert that unless they can obtain the records, the local union may lose its charter in the International Hod Carriers Building and Commercial Laborers Union of America.

The petitioners state that last October 17 former officers were ordered to turn over to a committee the records of the local for investigation. After that, it is charged, the committee made an oral report alleging a shortage in the records of the former financial secretary and has since then refused to return the records or make a written report.

Buenos Aires Students Wreck Medical School

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Fifteen hundred students at the University of Buenos Aires wrecked the classrooms in the medical school today, destroyed examination papers, and gave the police a stiff battle as rioting against government intervention in university affairs was renewed.

Eventually the police restored order and placed a guard over the school. The faculty announced that examinations would go ahead on schedule tomorrow under police guard if necessary. Five hundred out of 800 students arrested in disorders last night were still in jail this morning.

Christian Science Lecture Is Heard

Speaker Describes Belief in God of Love, Omnipotent Good.

A lecture on "Christian Science: What It Is and What It Is Not" was delivered last evening in First Church of Christ Scientist by Charles E. Jarvis, C. S., of Los Angeles, Calif., of the board of lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. He was introduced by Wilbur E. Yocum, first reader of First Church, under whose auspices the lecture was given. The lecturer said in part:

"Instead of regarding God as a remote, indefinable, mysterious power, we are learning to know Him as a God of love, as omnipotent, omniscient, and omnipresent good.

"One of the most frequently encountered although seldom recognized obstacles to human progress is a limited sense, or lack of expectancy. How often have we heard expressed a desire to undertake some worthy or perfectly innocent undertaking, accompanied in the same breath by fear of failure. After having striven for and finally achieved something really commendable we are so apt to doubt its continuance with a 'too good to be true' or 'too good to last' reservation. All that is real and good is of God.

"Therefore all good is permanent and indestructible. How important then it becomes to maintain resolutely an attitude of expectancy. Jesus was so positively convinced that his prayers would be answered, that he often gave thanks to God in anticipation of their fulfillment. There was no fear or doubt in Jesus' thought."

Italian Air Squadron Delayed by Weather

Cartagena, Spain, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Unfavorable weather tonight continued to hold Italy's transatlantic air squadron apart, six of the fourteen planes which left Orbetello, Italy, yesterday, remaining at Iviza, one of the Balearic Islands.

The six planes were expected to join the other eight, which came down at Cartagena, tomorrow, and it was believed the whole squadron would resume the flight, whose final goal is Brazil, probably Saturday.

NEW TRIAL SOUGHT FOR SLANDER CASE

LOST VERDICT OF $4,000

Unless Mrs. Marguerite du Pont Lee, 68-year-old member of the Du Pont family of Delaware, who Wednesday was assessed $4,000 for alleged slanderous remarks made about Mrs. Maude Bell Ford, wealthy real estate operator, obtains a new trial she will take the case to the District Court of Appeals, it was announced yesterday by her attorneys.

Mrs. Ford sued Mrs. du Pont Lee for $50,000 damages, claiming that the latter had made remarks reflecting on her morals and had asserted she had gotten the Rev. William Thomas Reynolds, former rector of the Grace Episcopal Church, Georgetown, intoxicated. The alleged remarks are said to have been made in the presence of several persons during the progress of a healing service at a fashionable church near Washington Circle on February 5, 1928.

The jury in its award specified that Mrs. Ford was entitled to $2,000 compensatory damages and $2,000 punitive damages.

The trial of the case occupied the attention of a jury before Justice Frederick L. Siddons for three days. It was featured by introduction of letters written to the minister by Mrs. du Pont Lee and by testimony that the rector had been drunk in Mrs. Ford's apartment on N street northwest near Twenty-second street.

Attorneys J. Edward Burroughs and John C. and W. W. Mackall appear for Mrs. du Pont Lee, while Attorneys W. Gwynn Gardiner, Edward L. Marthill and South Trimble, jr., represent Mrs. Ford.

Guide's Association Row Goes to Court

Officers Seek Return of Records by Former Office-Holders.

Four of the present officers of the Washington Guides Association yesterday appealed to the District Supreme Court to help them regain the books of the company.

In a petition to compel an accounting, the four officers—Herbert E. Lugenbeel, president; Charles R. Burgess, vice president; William G. James, secretary, and Chester M. Atwood, treasurer, charge that William H. Hickey, former president and treasurer, refuses to surrender the records. The petitioners explain that Hickey was elected September 17, 1929, and was removed on June 2, 1930.

The present officers also tell the court that the organization is composed of fifteen charter members among the professional guides of Washington, and assert that an action is now pending against Hickey in Municipal Court in which it is sought to recover $797.52. Attorney Hallock P. Long appears for the petitioners.

Army Stops Use of Titles In Commercial Pursuits

Under a revision of regulations announced yesterday by the Third Corps area headquarters of the Army, officers are prohibited from engaging in or permitting their names to be connected with any activity, participation in which is incompatible with the status of an officer in the Army.

In disapproving the use of military titles in connection with commercial enterprises, the War Department stated that such titles are conferred upon individuals for military purposes, and their use as a commercial asset may subject the individual officer and the service in general to unfavorable criticism.

2, Facing Theft Charge, Brought From Florida

Two youths, wanted in Washington in connection with a drug store robbery, were brought back from Florida yesterday and held at the Seventh Precinct station. They are Charles Leo Thomas, 19, of Thirty-fifth place near U street northwest, and Harold Leroy Weaver, 16, of Thirty-fifth near Q street northwest.

Thomas and Weaver are charged with entering the store of Stanley E. Haney, Wisconsin avenue near R street northwest, November 6, when $66.50 was stolen, according to police. Detective Aubrey Tolson conducted the investigation.

The Washington Kiwanis Club was entertained by Miss Madeleine McMahon, star of the "Gingham Girl," "New Moon," and other Shubert productions, at its weekly luncheon yesterday at the Washington Hotel.

Ernest Spitzer announced that arrangements have been completed for the Kiwanis Christmas party for underprivileged children Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Gordon Junior High School. Due to the Christmas holiday the next luncheon of the club will be held Friday, December 26.

Volunteers of America Plan Dinners for Needy

"Open House" will be the slogan of the Volunteers of America, who will open their relief station at 928-930 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, on Christmas Day, serving food to all unemployed who apply.

The building, which was recently turned over to the Volunteers by the Government, will continue to function as a headquarters for relief work, until labor conditions change. The Volunteers say that hundreds of appeals are pouring into their headquarters daily from families who are in dire need of assistance.

Infant Deserted at Door Gets Temporary Name

Police were still attempting last night to identify the 3-weeks-old baby girl which was found on the front stoop of the home of Mrs. Violet Blair Janin, 12 Jackson place northwest, within sight of the White House.

Nurses at the Children's Hospital, where the infant was taken by Third Precinct policemen, christened it "Grace Lafayette," the name being conferred on her, at least temporarily, because of the fact that the doorstep on which she was found faces the famous public park.
